Bus Drivers Planned to Walk Out Over Firing

Company Retracts Worker's Discharge In Eleventh-Hour Mediation Session

How It Started

THE DISMISSAL of one man—who had only one arm—started the bus dispute. Page 12.

Last-Minute Action

A strike which threatened to tie up transportation of 25,000 persons between the District and Maryland was averted late last night.

At 11:10 p. m., management of the W. M. & A. bus lines and Division 1365 of the Amalgamated Street Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America (AFL) announced agreement on a dispute after a three-hour session called by Gilbert McCutcheon, Federal mediator.

The dispute had nothing to do with wages and working conditions, only the discharge several weeks ago of Bernard J. Garrity of West Beach, Md., a mechanic who had lost his arm in the company's service.

Garrity, a member of the union, was employed in the stock room for some time after he returned from treatment for loss of his arm. Subsequently, after another illness, he was discharged.

A joint statement issued after McCutcheon's enforced session was signed by James Holcombe, president of the union local, and Leslie L. Altmann, president of the company. It assured reemployment on his stock room job to Garrity if he is able to return to work by September 1, and lighter work for him if he cannot return by that date.

Both the union and company had girded for the strike. Altmann said he personally would be behind the wheel of a bus. The union was mobilizing 60 automobiles to haul "emergency" cases. The bus company serves the Suitland area and a number of other Washington suburbs.

McCutcheon brought the contending factions together in the old Tariff Building at 7th and E sts. nw., and kept them there until 50 minutes before the strike was scheduled. Then, agreement was announced.

Blue Ridge Drivers Vote to Strike

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 4 (AP).—Bus drivers and maintenance workers have voted for a strike in their contract dispute with the Blue Ridge Transportation Co.'s eastern division.

Union officials said 92 per cent of the 175 employes had favored the walkout in voting which began Tuesday night and continued through yesterday.

The company operates from Washington, Baltimore and Pittsburgh, with branch routes to areas in Maryland, including Frederick and Hagerstown, and in Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania

Acne Cleared Up By Dry Ice, Two Doctors Report

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—Common acne, an unsightly skin affliction, can be cleared up swiftly by dry ice applications, two Philadelphia doctors reported today.

The blemishes usually are obliterated with one or two applications and leave little or no scarring, they said.

Small pieces of dry ice are applied directly to the pustules for three to five seconds. Within a few hours the pustules begin blistering, drying and shrinking. If the lesions are deep, the doctors added, several such treatments may be necessary.

The report was made by Drs. Carroll S. Wright and E. R. Gross in the Archives of Dermatology and Syphilology.

Badly Split GOP Committee Elects Gabrielson Chairman

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Guy George Gabrielson of New Jersey was elected chairman of a badly split Republican National Committee yesterday, and put in charge of GOP campaign strategy for 1950. He won out by a margin of only five votes.

The new chairman, a lawyer and businessman of 58, was backed by supporters of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota-Pennsylvania, both of them presidential candidates in 1948.

These were the same forces that tried last January to oust Representative Hugh D. Scott, jr., of Pennsylvania as national chairman at a meeting in Omaha, and came within four votes of succeeding.

Friends of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Republican presidential nominee in 1948, voted yesterday for Axel J. Beck of South Dakota. They were allied with Westerners who demanded recognition for their area.

Three men were put in nomination when the national committee assembled in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel—Gabrielson, Beck and A. T. (Bert) Howard of Nebraska.

The vote was: Gabrielson, 52; Beck, 47; Howard, 1.

Actually, Gabrielson's victory was much closer than these figures would indicate. His total of 52 was just enough to put him over, according to Committee Counsel Barak Mattingly, who was prepared to rule that he needed a majority of the votes represented at the meeting—102. An even 100 votes were cast, candidates Gabrielson and Beck "passing."

D. C. Tax Act First Payoff Tops Estimate

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

The first payoff on the new city revenue act—tallied by District tax collectors last night—showed better than expected returns.

Sale of cigarette stamps under the penny-a-pack levy the last two weeks in July netted the District $93,564.58, or about one-third more than the estimated monthly yield from this one new tax source.

City budget experts had figured the cigarette tax was good for an $800,000 annual take, or about $66,666 each month.

Expects Higher Figure

George H. Kidwell, acting District Tax Collector, who revealed the first collection figure on the recently-enacted tax law, guessed last night that the $93,000 cigarette yield will run even higher for the full month of August.

The figure represents all the cigarette stamps and coupon impressions sold to vendors thus far.

George H. Duckett, assistant manager of the G. B. Macke Co.—the city's largest cigarette vending machine operator—estimated that most merchants have purchased only a two or three-week supply of stamps so far.

"It's my guess that the $93,000 return will go up at least another $20,000 before the month is out," he said.

Meanwhile, Sales Tax Administrator Allan T. Brooke handed down two more official rulings yesterday; one on beer drinking, the other on what constitutes a "transient" in the District.

1-Drink Charge Exempted

Your 10-cent beer drinking will not be subject to the sales tax if you pay as you drink. But if you're hoisting a few and pay for several glasses of beer on one check, bartenders may collect the tax on the total bill.

The Washington Restaurant Beverage Association had been pressing Brooke to rule that customers pay the tax on two or more beers consumed at the same sitting even if each one is paid for separately.

Brooke cleared up the question of who is a "transient" and who is a permanent guest at a local hotel or rooming house (permanent

'Russia Can't Attack Us,' Tito Asserts

Belgrade, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Marshal Tito said today that Soviet Russia could not attack Yugoslavia because it would mean the end of world socialism.

Tales have been spread, he said, that if the Russians attacked "we would fall helter skelter on their bosoms."

But Yugoslavia's fighting forces, he said, will remain vigilant and resist any aggressor because "we are not sure nobody has any pretensions against us."

Tito also asserted the Yugoslav army had to face "enemy" harassment on the Albanian, Bulgarian and Greek borders of Macedonia, and that such incidents are continuing.

"You are in a state of alert in order to safeguard the peaceful construction of our socialist country," Tito told a group of army officers.

This was a follow-up to his speech Tuesday in which he offered the Bulgarian and Albanian people his support in any revolt against their anti-Yugoslav leaders.

Tito spoke at a ceremony in his honor by army officers at Skoplje, capital of Yugoslav Macedonia near Albania, Greece and Bulgaria.

Tito said at first capitalist countries and new eastern European countries spread rumors about Russian army movements "in one place or another" in an attempt to intimidate Yugoslavia.

But Yugoslavs, he said, are not men who frighten easily.

"We are prepared to prevent all provocations and to defend our country against anybody," Tito said. "Because anybody who might try to hinder our peaceful socialist construction and threaten our integrity would be our enemy, no matter who he might be . . ."

The Gallup Poll

District Home Rule Favored By 65% in Survey of Nation

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 4.—Home rule for Washington, D. C., America's only voteless city, is favored by a large majority of persons questioned throughout the Nation by the American Institute of Public Opinion. A home rule bill for the District is now pending in Congress.

Washington's 900,000 people are governed by officials who are appointed, not elected, and the residents are not even permitted to vote for their own school board. The Constitution makers wanted the national capital to be free from local political control. But agitation for self-rule has gone on for many years.

The Senate voted unanimously for home rule over two months ago, but the House has delayed taking action on the bill.

Here is the way voters questioned by the institute feel about the issue:

"At present, people who live in Washington, D. C., cannot vote for their city officials since they are appointed by the President of the United States. Do you think the people of Washington should elect their city officials—or should they continue to be appointed by the President?"

The vote:

Veto Voted On Welfare Dept. Plan

Senate Unit Deals 1st Reorganization Setback; Job Bureau Shift Turned Down

The Senate Expenditures Committee yesterday voted to veto President Truman's plan to create a powerful new Federal Department of Welfare.

It also voted against another reorganization proposal which would have transferred the Bureau of Employment Security from the Federal Security Agency to the Labor Department.

The action was taken shortly after the House Expenditures Committee voted 14 to 7 to permit Mr. Truman to go ahead with the transfer of the unemployment compensation service.

First Rejection

The Senate action was the first rejection of any of the reorganization proposals sent to Congress by the President under a new law permitting him to reshuffle the executive branch.

The committee's adverse report now goes to the Senate floor, where a hot fight is expected. Both plans will become law on August 20 unless either the House or Senate vetoes them.

The Senators voted 7 to 4 to send the Senate a hostile report on the proposal for a new Government department with broad authority over public welfare activities.

It then voted 8 to 3 against the second proposal, to hand back to the Labor Department the employment service and unemployment compensation functions of the Federal Security Agency.

Urged by Hoover Unit

The Labor Department handled the programs during the war, but they were transferred to the Federal Security Agency by the Republican-steered Eightieth Congress. The Hoover study commission recommended their return.

The Senate committee on Wednesday voted not to interfere in four other reorganization plans, but Senator Joseph McCarthy (R., Wis.) at that time accused Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing of "insulting" the Senators.

Ewing had said that rejection of the welfare plan would "repudiate Hoover and all the work of his commission." McCarthy promptly accused Ewing of insulting the group by trying to bring pressure on it.

The House committee rejected a motion by Representative Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) to turn down the President's plan to transfer the employment service to the Labor Department.

Howley Warns Red Berlin Policy Has Not Changed

Berlin, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Brig. Gen. Frank L. Howley, retiring American commandant of Berlin, said today that Russian policy has not changed and is still aimed at economic and political domination of Berlin and all Germany.

Howley warned the American people not to forget these basic Soviet aims because of some immediate gain like the lifting of the Berlin blockade.

He estimated he has spent more than 1600 hours negotiating with the Russians.

Truman Men Back Down On Arms Bill

Fight for Blanket Power Dropped But They'll Press for Full Cash Outlay

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Administration leaders yesterday abandoned their attempt to obtain blanket authority for the President to determine who shall receive aid under the $1,450,000,000 foreign arms aid bill.

They insisted, however, they will continue to press for passage of the full cash outlay originally requested, and an attempt is still expected to be made to give the President some limited form of freedom in apportioning the aid.

To attain this it is believed that program leaders will agree to make other concessions in the original bill to meet some of the other strong objections to the program.

While opponents of what was termed "blank check" authority for the President under the draft bill hailed the Administration's retreat on this point, there were some indications that that victory may have formed part of the original program strategy.

The program's sponsors no doubt wanted that authority if obtainable, but while opposition attention centered on it, that issue diverted opposition from the cash outlay involved.

As a result, passage of some form of arms program now appears more likely than before.

An expected attempt to carve out of the bill new aid for Nationalist China was made yesterday by Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) and 11 Senate colleagues.

Knowland introduced an amendment calling for 175 million dollars of the arms aid to be earmarked for non-Communist China, to be used upon advice of a military mission which would be named by the President.

The Administration has repeatedly declared that new aid to China is not feasible at present, and this entire issue is due for extensive debate with publication today of the State Department's long-awaited "white paper" recording our relations with China.

Administration revisions in the original arms program draft are expected to be presented today to the joint Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committee, which has planned to begin hearings Monday.

Dr. Lloyd V. Berkner, special assistant to the Secretary of State, and Maj. Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, who have directed preparation of the arms plan, are to present the revisions to the Senate group.

Last night, program officials were still studying proposed modifications, evaluating reactions of key Senate members, and also the opposition to the bill expressed in the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which began hearings on the program last week.

Divorce In the District

Psychiatrists Place Blame On Personal Shortcomings

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

(Sixth of a Series)

"I have this patient," the psychoanalyst intoned, looking out over the rooftops of Washington, "who's married to a wife a year older. She's alcoholic and won't accept treatment for her alcoholism. The man is in love with a woman eight years younger than himself. He comes to me.

"He feels bad about leaving his wife yet wants to leave her. What he wants, what he really wants, is for me to tell him how to get rid of his wife. He will be disappointed in that expectation. My course of action is . . ."

Among the positions of attack from which your foundering marriage may be snatched from the celebrated rocks is that of the horizontal, reclining on the psychoanalyst's couch.

In these troubled times, the Nation as a whole is suffering from a great dearth of psychiatrists.

Washington Better Off Than Most

Washington, one is relieved to report, is somewhat better off, this being, what with St. Elizabeths and all, a training ground for the profession. There are upwards of 200 psychiatrists here.

This is a report on several hours spent in the offices of a number of them—though in a rigorously vertical position—in an effort to discover some of the causes and cures of divorce in the District as they see it.

And so, with one man today half in, half out of the shadow of divorce . . .

The Washington man who has the alcoholic wife and is in love with another woman walks into the psychanalyst's office.

It is a small, almost ascetically-furnished room, with a raised-end leather couch along the wall and a lone Monet reproduction on the wall opposite. The man shakes hands with what, to his knowledge, is the first psychoanalyst he has ever laid eyes on—

Gen. McNarney Slated to Head 'Action Group' on Unification

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, veteran airman, will head a new high-level board to be created under the soon-to-be-established Department of Defense, The Washington Post has learned.

Its duties will be to make unification work. Officials say that it will be an "action group," speeding the elimination of duplicated functions, expediting consolidations and passing on such questions as closing Army posts, Navy Yards and air bases.

At the same time The Washington Post was informed that Karl R. Bendetsen, San Francisco lawyer and former Army colonel, is slated for appointment as an Assistant Secretary of the Army. A reliable Capitol Hill source said that Bendetsen is the choice of Defense Secretary Louis Johnson and Army Secretary Gordon Gray and probably will be approved by President Truman.

Bendetsen is well known in military circles here. He was on duty in the War Department during part of the war, concerned with drafting legislation, and returned to the Pentagon as a civilian consultant for a time last year.

The McNarney board, officials said, will consist of the chairman and one representative from the Army, Navy and Air Force. They will be either undersecretaries or assistant secretaries.

Since October, 1947, McNarney has been commanding general of the Air Materiel Command at Wright Air Base, Ohio. He was called to Washington last March to act as "special adviser on boards and committees" to Johnson.

Defense Plans Agreed On by U. S., 3 Nations

Paris, Aug. 4 (AP).—The American Chiefs of Staff reported today they have reached complete agreement with European leaders approached thus far on defense lines to be laid by Atlantic Pact nations. They hopped over to Paris from London this afternoon.

In London they met with army, navy and air force heads of Britain, Norway and Denmark.

In Paris and at Fontainebleau they will meet for two more days with similar leaders of France, Holland, Belgium and Portugal, and Britain's Viscount Marshal Montgomery.

They already have visited Germany and on Sunday will leave for Vienna.

All three Americans were optimistic. Adm. Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations, told a news conference they are in complete understanding with the British, Norwegians and Danes on mutual defense measures to be undertaken.

He said the defense setup might be functioning by the end of this year.

Denfeld said the final forming of the organization would be done at a future high-level meeting on the basis of the current talks. He said the Americans had not come over with a ready-made plan but to exchange views and that was going most satisfactorily.

(Informed British sources said foreign ministers of the 12 Atlantic Pact nations are likely to meet in Washington in the next month or two, presumably as the supreme council of the Atlantic Alliance.)

[Other London sources said the United States has asked Atlantic Pact countries to guarantee they

U. S. to Issue China Policy Report Today

President Truman announced yesterday that the State Department today will publish a "frank and factual record" of American relations with China.

America's role in China has been "subject to considerable misrepresentation, distortion and misunderstanding," he said. He expressed hope that publication of the White Paper will provide a new basis for an "informed and intelligent public opinion" on the whole situation.

Mr. Truman issued his China statement at a news conference. Shortly afterward, the State Department distributed for publication at 10 a. m. (EST) today a thick volume dealing with the whole history of American-Chinese relations over more than a century, but concentrating on the last five years, which culminated in Communist conquest of much of China.

In his statement, Mr. Truman made clear that a chapter in American policy toward China is ending and that Secretary of State Acheson and he are now confronted with the task of working out new policies to deal with the situation created by the Communist conquest.

The American Government up to now, he said, had been "reluctant to reveal certain facts" about China because their publication might have "served to hasten the events in China which have now occurred."

"In the present situation," he said, "the mutual interests of the United States and China require full and frank discussion of the facts. It is only in this way that the people of the country and their representatives in Congress can Hearings on Lustron Corp.

$1000 and Patent 'Parlayed' Into 35 Million RFC Loan

By The Associated Press

Industrialist Carl G. Strandlund yesterday told a House committee he launched his Luston Corp., in Columbus, Ohio, with $1000 of his own, patent rights on a process for prefabricating houses, and $35,500,000 borrowed from the Government.

Strandlund said his prefabricated housing project should be on a financial break-even basis within 90 days and that he hopes to pay off his debts in six years. He said it now is losing about one million dollars a month.

Strandlund appeared before the House Banking and Currency Committee to explain circumstances of the loans. Representative Smith (R., Ohio) had demanded an explanation. Smith contended the deal amounted to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's setting Strandlund up in business and taking most of the risks.

Richard C. Dyas, an RFC official who also testified, declined to answer a question posed by Representative Cole (R., Kans.) on "whether or not the RFC is satisfied with this loan as a good investment."

He said the transaction is so unusual that "I don't know how anyone can say they are or are not satisfied."

Both Strandlund and Dyas confirmed published stories that E. Merl Young, an RFC trial examiner, quit his Government job and became a vice president of the Lustron organization after the lending had started.

Both insisted Young had no voice in making the loan and never attempted to influence the RFC.

Failure to Erase Proviso on Aid To French Dims Truman Victory

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senate Administration forces yesterday stripped a 50 million dollar loan to Franco Spain from the $5,647,724,000 foreign aid bill.

A ruling by Vice President Barkley, backed up by a 55-to-36 vote of the Senate, erased the controversial Marshall Plan "rider."

It was the Administration's second ECA victory in two days, but it was dimmed by a partial reverse.

In a try for a clean sweep of all legislative riders, they attempted and failed to wipe out a third "crippling" amendment.

The third provision denied ECA local currency aid to France unless French Morocco stops alleged discrimination against American businessmen there.

Barkley Overruled

As on the Spanish loan, Barkley ruled it was clearly "new legislation" and as such had no place in an appropriation bill.

But this time the Senate overruled the Vice President by a vote of 44 to 42.

That left the Morocco amendment still before the Senate and subject to a vote on its merits. Senate Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois forced a recess, postponing the vote until today.

So close was the count, leaders weighed the possibility of a reconsideration motion to sustain the Barkley ruling.

The foreign aid bill, sidetracked last week in a parliamentary snarl and now on its second trip through the Senate, was freed Wednesday of what ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman considered the chief hazard to the program.

Vice President Barkley, supported by the Senate, eliminated the so-called McClellan rider, requiring Marshall Plan countries to spend $1,350,000,000 for surplus American farm commodities.

New Moves Forecast

Senator McClellan (D., Ark.) said he will try to revive the amendment by suspending the Senate rules. But that takes a two-thirds vote.

Senator McCarran (D., Nev.), author of the Spanish loan rider knocked out yesterday, likewise will attempt to put back the Spanish loan by a two-thirds vote.

During the bitter debate preceding yesterday's voting, Senate Appropriations Chairman McKellar (D., Tenn.) accused ECA Administrator Hoffman of "lobbying" Senators for his bill.

McKellar alleged that Hoffman visited Senators Wednesday and

Miss Bergman Seeks Divorce; To Quit Films

Rome, Friday, August 5 (AP).—Ingrid Bergman today announced she will divorce her husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom, and retire from pictures.

The announcement did not mention Miss Bergman's Italian director, Roberto Rossellini, 43. Sources close to the Swedish actress said she intends to marry Rossellini.

Miss Bergman's typewritten statement was handed to reporters shortly after midnight by her personal representative, Joseph Steele. She said:

"It was my desire not to make any declaration until the conclusion of the picture I am now making ('After The Storm').

"But persistent malicious gossip that has even reached the point where I am made to appear as a prisoner has obliged me to break my silence and demonstrate my free will.

"I have instructed my lawyer to start divorce proceedings immediately. Also, with the conclusion of my present picture, it is my intention to retire into private life."

The beautiful actress told close friends she is "fed up with being in the public eye."

"She wants to lead a private life," Steele said. "She has yearned to get away from the bright glare of publicity. She has made her decision in good faith."

Miss Bergman's first picture with Rossellini also will be her last, he said, adding:

Korean Peninsula Fight 'Dying Down'

Bomb Not Needed

5 Peace Bids Made by Japs, Officer Says

Lake Success, Aug. 4 (NYHT).—The atomic bomb was not needed to defeat Japan, which already had made five secret peace bids through the Vatican and the Kremlin before the first bomb was dropped on Hiroshima, Rear Admiral Ellis M. Zacharias, wartime deputy director of the Office of Naval Intelligence, writes in United Nations World, published today.

Zacharias said he has not disclosed these facts before because of "my own hesitancy to revive a controversy involving a crucial moral issue that far transcends the circumstances of Japan's surrender per se."

Admiral Zacharias charged that Washington officials were determined only to accept "pessimistic intelligence reports whenever prospects of termination of hostilities by non-military means were discussed." He said military officials didn't bother to report peace bids from Japan to the late President Roosevelt, and that President Truman didn't "carry them to their logical conclusions."

Diplomatic maneuvers taking advantage of the peace overtures would have brought a "quicker victory" than the atomic bomb, the admiral writes, because "we knew in February, 1945 that Japan was ready to surrender."

Seoul (Friday) Aug. 5 (U.P.). American and South Korean army sources said today that fighting between North Korean army forces and South Korean border troops on the Ongjin peninsula, 85 miles northwest of Seoul, was "dying down" and the lines had been stabilized.

The sources said it was still too soon to determine whether it was a full-scale attempt to take the peninsula or merely the largest of recent probing attacks.

Two strong points were reported recovered by the South Korean regiment defending Ongjin, but the loss of two companies, overrun in the initial attack by the North Koreans, was confirmed.

have the understanding necessary to the sound evolution of our foreign policy in the Far East."

American friendship for the people of China "is as strong today as it has ever been," the President added, but the problem now is to "find ways to give practical expression to that friendship."

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, said the White Paper, totaling more than 1000 printed pages, would contain a letter from Secretary Acheson to the President, a running account of the history of American-Chinese affairs, and scores of documents, heretofore secret, dealing with American aid, proposals for Chinese reform and reports of American diplomats on conditions in China.

Other general topics included, said White, are relations between China and Russia, the missions of Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley and Gen. George C. Marshall and the ambassadorship of J. Leighton Stuart, the present envoy to China.

Dollar Shortage Cuts Exports of U. S. Chewing Gum

The great bubble in chewing gum exports may be about to burst.

The United States shipped a record amount—nearly 11,000,000 pounds—to foreign countries in 1948, the Commerce Department reported yesterday, but the 1949 outlook has taken a turn for the worse.

It's the attitude of foreign governments. Many of them are short of U. S. dollars and have clamped down import controls.

The report added, as if whispering out of the corner of its mouth, "such controls are not always effective."

A couple of claims were made elsewhere in the report:

1. During the war, with millions of GI's and sailors working their jaws steadily all around the world; "foreign civilians acquired what seems to be a lasting taste for United States-manufactured chewing gum."

2. "Foreign manufacturers have not yet been able to duplicate the quality of the United States product."

Bunche Calls For Lifting Of Arms Ban

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Acting Palestine Mediator Dr. Ralph J. Bunche called today for formal lifting of the Near East arms embargo and substitution of a big power pledge to limit arms shipments to the legitimate defense needs of Israel and the Arab states.

Britain and the United States quickly responded to Bunche's call for a "moral embargo," by promising the United Nations Security Council they would not contribute to a Near East "arms race."

The proposal was a disappointment to Israel, which had called for continuation of a stringent U. N. arms ban.

Bunche said continuation of the strict embargo would be pointless without indefinite maintenance of U. N. observers at all ports and airfields in the Near East.

"This I think neither side desires," he said.

Bunche added that a renewed embargo "would seem also to imply that the solemn armistice pledges that no warlike or aggressive acts would be undertaken are not to be regarded as fully sincere."

2 Probes Under Way In Mine Disturbance

Washington, Pa., Aug. 4 (AP).—A two-way investigation of the damaging of 14 lumber trucks at Vesta No. 5 coal mine of Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. was started today.

FBI agents sought to learn if interstate shipping regulations were violated and State police probed the arson angle.

The mine at Vestaburg had been picketed in a strike of 15,000 timbermen, members of the United Construction Workers, an affiliate of District 50, United Mine Workers. The timbermen, who cut and haul for coal mines, objected to outside deliveries to the mine while the strike was in progress.

Nationalists Admit Loss Of Changsha

Canton (Friday), Aug. 5 (AP).—The Nationalists today officially admitted the loss of Changsha, rice bowl bastion 365 miles north of this refugee capital.

An official announcement carried the hint the city fell by treachery.

The statement said the government had ordered the arrest of Gen. Cheng Chien, thrown out of the governorship of Hunan province last week. Changsha is the capital of Hunan.

It said that to save himself and his family Cheng tried to arrange a local peace in Hunan province. Fearing arrest, he left Changsha July 31. The statement said the city was turned over to the Communists the next day.

Cheng, 57, once was chief of China's general staff and was a close associate of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Toronto Police Seek Pistols in 3 Murders

Toronto, Ontario, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—A special session of the Police Commission ordered a roundup of all .38-caliber pistols in Toronto today after three of the most brutal murders in Ontario history.

A price of $8000 was put on the heads of the unidentified killers of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McKay and Alfred Laying.

Cabinet Fuss

Truman Raps 2 Top Aides On Knuckles

By Robert S. Allen

The lecturing took place in his own office after a Cabinet meeting in which the two secretaries tangled rather sharply.

The clash arose from a complaint by Acheson of military meddling in foreign affairs. He indicated he was constantly being embarrassed by this. Acheson referred specifically to China and Spain, where the military strongly disagree with the State Department's hands-off policy.

Acheson did not specifically mention his department's "White Paper" on China. But it is an open secret that Pentagon chiefs opposed publication of the revealing document. They contended it would play into the hands of Communists by confirming charges of Nationalist incompetence and corruption.

The President is in complete agreement with Acheson on both Spain and China.

Johnson defended himself vigorously. He hotly denied meddling in foreign affairs. He said he repeatedly had enjoined civilian and military officials under him to exercise the greatest care in any matters affecting foreign policy.

A tense atmosphere prevailed in the Cabinet room following the exchange. The President said nothing at the time. Later, at the close of the meeting, he asked Acheson and Johnson to accompany him to his office.

That was where he did his "Dutch uncle" talking on the need for harmony in his official family.

Europe's First Parliament Is Created

London, Aug. 4 (AP).—Europe's first parliament has come into being formally, the British Foreign Office announced today.

A Foreign Office spokesman announced the seventh ratification of the 10-nation Council of Europe has been deposited here, four days before the council's scheduled opening at Strasbourg, France.

Those of Luxembourg, Italy and Norway arrived in the past 24 hours, added to the earlier ratifications by Britain, Denmark, Sweden and the Republic of Iseland. France, Belgium and the Netherlands still are to deposit their instruments.

Aides of the 10 nations met in Paris Friday to study rules and regulations for the parliament.

The committee of ministers of the Council of Europe meets in Strasbourg Monday and the assembly gathers Wednesday. Britain is sending a 100-man team to the first assembly session.

Pope on Vacation

Stalin Said to Ask U.S. Loan for 'Peace'

New York, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Premier Stalin of Russia has formulated a five-point "price for peace" with the United States, including a two billion dollar United States loan to Russia and a treaty based on the commitments of the Yalta and Potsdam conferences, it was reported tonight.

The United Nations World, a magazine with no official connection with the United Nations, said Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko told a "top-ranking American businessman" that Stalin considers the Yalta and Potsdam agreements as "the two cornerstones of Allied cooperation in the postwar period."

Purporting to quote Gromyko, the magazine said:

The sum total of Stalin's price for peace is this:

"1. A treaty between the United States and the U. S. S. R., formalizing the commitments of both countries as set forth in the Yalta and Potsdam documents. He wants this to be a strictly bilateral pact, excluding the U. K. and countries of Western Europe which he dismisses as negligible quantities.

"2. Four-power unanimity of all questions concerning Germany. He believes restoration of Germany, promoted by either the East or the West, acting alone, is certain to lead to war.

"3. Western generosity on reparations for the U. S. S. R. Stalin regards this as the token of Western recognition of the Soviet Union's enormous blood-letting in World War II.

"4. Immediate cessation of U. S.-U. K. support of 'subversive Fascist and Hitlerite elements' inside the countries within the Soviet orbit, as well as those who gained admission to the nations of the West.

"5. The elimination of all discriminatory trade practices on the part of the U. S. and the resumption of normal trade relations, stimulated by a two-billion-dollar-loan on terms similar to those of the U. S. loan to Britain in 1946."

The United Nations World's informant, described as "a respected Republican, churchman and civic leader," was said to have conferred with Gromyko in his Park ave. office here last summer.

Gromyko said Stalin belonged to a minority group in the Politburo who favored an understanding with the United States after Maxim Litvinov resigned as Foreign Commissar in 1939. The minority group was opposed by a faction headed by Ivan Maisky, former Soviet Ambassador to London.

But, the magazine reported Gromyko as saying, Stalin soured on the United States when lend-lease was terminated abruptly.

In Germany

Reparations End Called Aim of U. S.

London, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Diplomatic sources today said the United States and Britain are talking over an idea for stopping reparations deliveries from Western Germany to Russia.

These sources, who refused to be identified, emphasized the idea was initiated by the American Government in a tentative way and that thoughts on the subject still are being exchanged in Washington and London.

The British are against the proposal in the form broached by the Americans during talks with Britain on German reparation policies. Instead, the British are tentatively for continuing part fulfillment of deliveries.

The main prizes are industrial plants dismantled in Western Germany and mostly in British hands. About 20 already have been taken down and some are crated and marked for Russia.

Russia and Poland together were assigned 25 per cent of dismantled plants under the Potsdam Pact. Ten per cent was allocated unconditionally and the other 15 per cent was to be exchanged for goods from Russia.

Britain proposed the shipment of 10 per cent if Russia will renounce claim to the other 15 per cent.

Peacetime Draft Act Now Slated To Die Next June

Senators told Army Secretary Gordon Gray yesterday that the peacetime draft act probably will be allowed to die next June 25 unless defense officials anticipate an emergency.

Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) of the Armed Services Committee said this was a subject of a secret session with Secretary Gray and Gen. J. Lawton Collins, vice chief of staff of the Army.

After the conference, from which even committee staff members were excluded, Tydings said no action on selective service appears necessary at this session.

No draft calls have been made since January of this year because volunteers have more than filled quotas for the armed services.

New Techniques To Reduce Pain Linked to War

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—The recent war greatly increased doctors' interest in the special science of reducing pain, a medical professor said today.

Dr. Mousel delivered the first of a series of technical addresses as the West Virginia State Medical Association opened its 82nd annual meeting here. Others are scheduled Friday and Saturday.

Veterans Open Virginia Conclave

Richmond, Va., August 4 (A.P.).—Veterans of two world wars came came here today for the 30th annual reunion of the 80th (Blue Ridge) infantry division veterans association.

More than 1,000 of the men who slugged through France in World Wars I and II under the slogan "The 80th Division Only Moves Forward," were on hand for the opening session. Attendance is expected to be near 1,500 before the reunion ends Sunday.

Mayor W. Stirling King and State Adjutant General S. Gardner Waller, representing Governor Tuck, welcomed the veterans to Richmond and Virginia.

CAB Suspends Alaska Airlines

The Civil Aeronautics Board moved yesterday to suspend all scheduled night-flying and all non-scheduled "charter" flights by Alaska Airlines, Inc., pending a thorough overhaul of the company's operating procedures.

It also acted to levy a "consent fine" of $20,000 for violations of Government fight regulations leading up to these actions.

Complaints filed with the board by the Civil Aeronautics Administration (CAA) allege numerous violations of the flight safety and economics regulations. Among them are charges that the air line pressed both its pilots and its flying equipment beyond safe limits in the air, that it employed pilots who were not properly qualified for the routes they flew and that it operated non-scheduled flights to and from areas which it had no authorization to serve.

Virginia Troops Win War Games; Prepare for Home

Fort Bragg, N. C., Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Nearly 500 Virginia airborne troops, triumphant over an aggressor enemy in mock warfare, made ready today to return home.

The troops, members of the 80th Airborne Division, reserve, climaxed a two-week training period today by successfully completing a two-day tactical problem.

The problem called for them to drive enemy aggressors from the Fort Bragg reservation. They went into the battle early yesterday, dropping from the skies in parachutes and gliders.

Last night they penetrated enemy positions. Today they consolidated their gains before umpires called a halt to hostilities.

Germans Get Isotopes

Goettingen, Germany, Aug. 4. Britain is sending radioactive isotopes to German universities for atomic medical research, Prof. Otto Hahn, the German atomic scientist, revealed today. He said they have been delivered in the past two months by Britain's Harwell atomic research station.

Skipper starts off with a romp with the lawn sprinkler, biting at the spray and then standing over it. Then he shakes off most of the water and dries out in a small lawn chair

Prague Hears More Priests Under Arrest

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Catholic authorities reported several new arrests of priests here today as the controlled Czechoslovak press thundered threats of further treason trials against the clergy.

Reports from Rome also told of new fights between police and Slovak Catholics seeking to protect their parish priests from arrest. A Vatican source said in one such clash police fired on the people, killing one and wounding many others.

10 Catholics Jailed

At least 10 Catholics were known to have been jailed or fined for such clashes in Slovakia six weeks ago.

The press attacks indicated the government might be preparing to bring treason charges against top church figures. One religious leader singled out for attack today was Archbishop Josef Matocha of Olomouc. He was accused of having excommunicated a priest who chose to side with the government in the church-state controversy.

Archbishop Matocha ranks second only to Archbishop Josef Beran of Prague.

The newspapers said the sentencing yesterday of Father Alois Fajstl to eight years in jail for high treason was only the beginning of a "merciless" fight against the papal excommunication decree. Father Fajstl, a small-town priest, was accused of having refused to administer the last sacrament to a desperately ill 67-year-old woman until she surrendered her Communist membership.

A high Catholic authority in Prague expressed belief in an interview that priests would not be frightened by the fate of Father Fajstl or of the new threats. He said reports had been received of several additional arrests of priests on undisclosed charges.

Doubts Reports

This churchman expressed skepticism over the government's account of the Father Fajstl case. He said no priest ever would make such conditions to a person said to be dying, and that he doubted that any militant Communist would call in a priest anyway.

Archbishop Beran remained silent and secluded in his Prague palace. He has not left the building since June 19.

Reds Winning Fight to Block 'Slave' Probe

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Failure of the Soviet Union to approve an "on the spot" investigation of forced labor probably will postpone for six months, if not permanently, the creation of a commission of inquiry by the U. N. Economic and Social Council.

Sentiment was growing in the 18-Nation Council for delaying action on the inquiry and late today three members—Brazil, Denmark and India—introduced an amendment to set the project back until the next session of the council.

The amendment was made to an American resolution calling for an inquiry.

The Soviet Union, which has been accused of operating a massive forced labor program, is the most important state which has not agreed to the "on the spot" investigation.

The U. S. is expected to continue pressing its resolution.

Italy, Yugoslavia Sign Pact

Rome, Italy, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Italy and Yugoslavia signed a new trade agreement tonight which included a Yugoslav pledge to follow a "good neighbor" policy toward Italy.

The agreement, which climaxed seven months of negotiations, called for an annual exchange of goods worth 54 billion lire (90 million dollars).

It was the latest in a series of accords tightening relations between the two countries.

Yugoslav Vice Minister of Foreign Trade Stane Pavelic pledged his nation to a "good neighbor" policy after the signing.

Pavelic hinted that his country might provide work for surplus Italian manpower, and he predicted closer collaboration between Yugoslavia and Italy on their mutual problems.

Queen Elizabeth Is 49

London, Aug. 4 (A.P.).—Queen Elizabeth marked her forty-ninth birthday at Buckingham palace today without ceremony.

Hungarian Police Chief Reported Dead

Belgrade, Aug. 4 (NYHT).—The Yugoslav Communist Party organ "Borba" today published a report that Peter Gabor, chief of the Hungarian Communist secret police and a key figure in the trial of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty last winter, died recently in a Hungarian jail.

"Borba" said: "General Peter Gabor, member of the Hungarian (Communist) central committee and head of the Hungarian political police . . . recently 'killed himself' in a prison in Budapest." The phrase 'killed himself' was put in quotes in the "Borba" account, giving the inference that Gabor had met a violent death at the hands of the Communists.

will not use any American arms aid to fight "private" wars or to suppress colonial disorders, the United Press reported.]

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg said the American Air Force does not want to monopolize strategic bombing.

"I would favor everybody getting into that to the maximum of the limitations imposed by exchequers and manpower," he said. "British strategic bombing in the last war made a wonderful record."

Denfeld said sharing of the atom bomb with other Atlantic Pact nations was not mentioned and there was no discussion of any arms aid at this stage.

[The New York Herald Tribune News Service said it is realiably reported that the French will be reassured that the frequently reported American conception of falling back on the Pyrenees does not exist officially. The American decision is said to be that the mutual defense pact means precisely the defense of France and other member states. If the Rhine is the most feasible defense line, according to these reports, the Franco-German river frontier will be chosen.]

Mrs. Roosevelt Willing to Meet Cardinal Spellman

New York, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said tonight that she had no objection to a personal meeting with Francis Cardinal Spellman to reconcile their recent differences but that she felt it was up to the cardinal to propose such a meeting.

The widow of the late President was reached at her Hyde Park home and asked about New York Mayor William O'Dwyer's comment that mutual friends of the cardinal and Mrs. Roosevelt should bring them together.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Cardinal Spellman had exchanged sharp letters concerning his charge that she was anti-Catholic in writing in her newspaper column, "My Day," aganst sharing public education funds with parochial schools.

Set VJ Fete Aug. 15

Charles Town, W. Va., Aug. 4 (AP).—Charles Town is going to celebrate the fourth anniversary of VJ-Day August 15 with a half-day holiday. The celebration will include a parade, the crowning of a queen, and speeches.

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

CHESAPEAKE BEACH PARK will choose the winner of the Miss Nation's Capitol Beauty Contest tomorrow at 3, at the swimming pool facing the bay. Forty girls, selected from an original group of 196, are competing. Judges are from the newspapers and syndicates.

The winner receives a trip to Miami Beach. Going with her will be Peggy Cady, contestant who was injured in an automobile crash while returning from a tryout. In spite of a broken leg, Peggy is making a big effort to appear at the finals tomorrow.

HERBIE SELLS, at the Casino Royale, possessor of a voice most night club vocalists would love to own, nevertheless has spent most of the last few years learning to imitate other voices.

He explains that the entertainment field has been so crowded since the war with young Army-trained hopefuls, that no matter how good the voice, there's scarcely a spot open.

Realizing this when he was discharged from the Army, he relied on some experience he had gotten while disk jockeying in the Special Services Unit, and began work on an act that would have something different to offer.

Arthur Godfrey made a place for him in his contest and, when he won, his career was started.

His current act includes such different types as Henry Aldrich, Frankie Sinatra, the Ink Spots, and Perry Como. He considers it important to have an imitation ready of whoever is the latest rage, and spends much time studying new records and shows to keep his impressions up to date.

The Casino Royale show starts off with dancer Lillian Vogelle, a girl with a hauntingly lovely face, lush figure, and an absent-minded air.

A ballerina by training, her dancing is good but uninspired. One suspects that she's thinking of far-away things, and perhaps an ethereal sort of number, on a pink cloud, would be best suited to her appearance. And appealing, too.

Mexican Railroads Get Another Loan

The United States Export-Import Bank yesterday granted another $17,900,000 in loans for rehabilitation and development of Mexican railroads.

There were two new credits:

One provided $12,900,000 to Nacional Financiera, S. A., for the improvement of the Mexican Government-owned National Railways of Mexico.

The other provides $5,000,000 to the Southern Pacific Railway of Mexico, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Southern Pacific Railway of the United States.

The $17,900,000 is to be used only for buying in this country equipment, materials and services for improvement and development of the two railways.

Senate Rejects 50-Million U. S. Loan to Spain

yesterday in violation of the Federal antilobbying law. He said the law requires members of Congress to "request" conferences with officials before they visit them and asked: "Who asked Mr. Hoffman to come here?"

No Senator spoke up then, but later Senator McCarthy (R., Wisc.) told the Senate he, for one, requested a conference with Hoffman on the then pending McClellan rider.

Senator McCarran, author of the sidetracked Spanish aid rider, led the floor fight for it. He pictured Spain as a strategically located "suppliant" for ECA aid and a potential ally of the Western Democracies if war comes, adding: "I am as certain as I stand here that war is in the offing."

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), siding with Barkley, said "this is not the time or place" to decide the Spanish issue.

Senator Lucas raised points of order against both amendments, contending they violated Senate rules against legislation on money bills.

Sustaining both points, Barkley held the Spanish loan not only was legislation but violated the terms of the original ECA act. Spain, he said, has not adhered to the basic requirements of that law.

Barkley plainly was surprised when the Senate, having sustained his farm and Spain rulings, overrode his decision against the rider limiting aid to France until Morocco ends alleged discrimination against American businessmen.

He gaveled the Senate to order and immediately submitted the amendment to a vote. The Senate was in the process of voting when Lucas protested he was on his feet first and thought there should be some debate "on the merits." The vote was vacated, and Lucas postponed further discussion until today.

Actually, the rider limits aid to any ECA country that violates a treaty with this country. Authors of the proposal say that Morocco, in discriminating against American business interests, violated an old most-favored-nations treaty and a 1906 pact with this country.

Hoffman Flays Truman, Krug for Stand on Pools

Representative Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.) yesterday charged President Truman and Interior Secretary J. A. Krug "in their apparent desire for political support, in their apparent purpose to accomplish the impossible, have been cruel to Washington's children."

He referred to Krug's closing of Anacostia pool after attempts to operate it on a nonsegregated basis. Hoffman said the President has not "disapproved" Krug's action.

The congressman said sweltering children were waiting for the two officials "to come to their senses and give them relief." Hoffman said he had introduced bills to have two of the six Interior pools run for whites, two for Negroes and two on a nonsegregated basis.

Truman Drops Plea For Arms Powers

requested presidential powers was first expressed yesterday morning by President Truman, at his press conference.

Asked if he would insist on the "blank check" powers to allot aid anywhere in the world, President Truman said he does not particularly care if that is in the bill or not.

His primary concern, he said, is that the full amount of requested aid is granted, and said he was particularly concerned about aid to the Western European members of the North Atlantic Treaty.

As drafted, the legislation names no countries but it was announced that of the $1,450,000,000 cash aid, $1,093,450,000 would go to western Europe and $300,580,000 to Greece, Turkey, Iran, Korea and the Philippines.

The program would also write off 77 million dollars for "rehabilitation," arms which originally cost this country 450 million dollars.

Connally Optimistic

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who will preside at the joint Senate hearings, praised the President's statement.

"The important thing in this bill," said Connally "is the amount and promptness of action. Nobody insists the bill can't be modified by Congress."

"This bill came up as a working paper and was not in a mandatory form," he added. "We're going to get a bill pretty promptly. We'll work a lot of it out tomorrow."

Connally said the section permitting the President to send arms to any nation will "come out" of the bill. "The bill," he declared, "will be limited to the countries we know about."

Connally and Senator Elbert D. Thomas conferred privately later in the day with Secretary of State Acheson.

The section which Connally said will be deleted would have permitted, among other things, aid to democratic forces within a country who are ousted from power by Communists.

Congressmen were told privately that this might be necessary in Austria, for example, to meet a Communist bid for power after present occupation forces are withdrawn.

Program leaders, it was learned, had in mind numerous other areas which might require similar aid, particularly in the Orient. One such country was Indonesia, where it was believed Communists might attempt to take over.

Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, also praised the President's statement.

"That will narrow the area of opposition and bring the bill down to its essentials," said Tydings.

Vandenberg Encouraged

The President's action was also termed "encouraging" by the two principal Republican Senators who strongly opposed the bill in its original form, but who fear the effects on this Nation's foreign policy if no arms action at all is taken.

"This looks like encouraging progress toward a bill we can pass," said Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.). "There are still some other hurdles," he said, and declined to amplify this.

Senator John Foster Dulles (R., N. Y.), who like Vandenberg seeks a far more limited aid bill, at about half the proposed cost, said he also seeks further changes in the bill.

Favors Other Changes

"Section 2 is badly worded," he told reporters, referring to language relating the purposes of the bill to the United Nations Charter.

Dulles, who was a member of the United States delegation to the U., N., said he also had other changes in mind, including recalculation of the amount charged to the program for the 450 million dollars of "excess" weapons.

House Foreign Affairs Committee Chairman John Kee (D., W. Va.) said he was still "very hopeful that we'll get the full amount of the bill."

Committee member Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.), however, declared, "I'm still not ready to vote for it."

Javits said he was "not satisfied that the concept of a unified command and over-all strategy" for the European portion of the aid has been "adequately covered." He said he also fears the program will "shift emphasis from the Marshall Plan to arms aid."

McNarney To Head Board

Navy sea transport units into the new Military Sea Transport Service.

In a sense, his new job will be a continuation of that work, formalized and set on a higher level, with better defined powers and procedures. He will be relieved of his Wright Air Base command and a successor named, officials said.

McNarney, one-time commander of American forces in Europe, has been mentioned for the new post of chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. But Gen. Omar N. Bradley has been definitely selected for the job, according to well-informed officials.

Beyond the long list of appointments to be made after the signing of the unification act—forecast in The Washington Post Thursday — and McNarney's appointment—there will be a few major steps toward unifying the services taken immediately, it was learned. Secretary Johnson said earlier in the week that "10 or 12" orders or announcements would follow enactment of the bill. The new appointments, the McNarney board, and the sea transport merger largely account for what Johnson spoke of, informed sources say.

Mason Reveals $2000 Error in His 1947 Tax

Commissioner Guy Mason yesterday made an off-hand disclosure to the House District Judiciary subcommittee that he was delinquent in a Federal income tax payment.

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) had asked Mason how it happened that some 400 to 500 District beer retailers were delinquent in their payments to wholesalers. "Why are they delinquent," Miller asked.

"Why is anybody delinquent?" exclaimed Mason. "I got caught being delinquent in Federal income taxes."

Mason explained later that an error on his 1947 return, prepared with the help of a Federal internal revenue tax adviser, had left him owing the Government some $2000, which he is going to pay.

He said figures were transposed in typing the form "and now I've got to pay $2000."

Warren Cites U. S. Contract Fraud Losses

Comptroller General Lindsay Warren informed Congress yesterday that "fraud" and "waste" on Government contracts have cost taxpayers millions of dollars.

In a blistering report on his audits of some $1,165,000,000 worth of contracts, Warren said there were "improper payments in excess of $6,280,000" that "were induced by fraud."

Of this, he added, only about $107,882 "has been recovered," and the outlook for additional recovery is slim.

Warren said another $2,340,000 was paid out through "improper or excessive payments" that did not involve fraud.

He said the General Accounting Office had recovered $474,717, but that Government agencies that made the overpayments generally refused to attempt recoveries, but insist upon defending their actions.

Warren blamed most of the "waste and fraud" on a "contract resettlement act of 1944" passed by Congress, which, he said, allowed Government agencies to settle contracts in full before they had been properly audited by the General Accounting Office or any outside agency.

The 1944 act, he said, "paved the way for the improper payment of many millions of dollars of public funds through fraud, collusion, ignorance, inadvertance, or overliberality in effecting termination settlements."

Warren said the act limits his office to actions where there is evidence of fraud, adding this "places the Government in the unenviable position of locking the barn after the horse is stolen."

Vinson Pledges No Delay in Bomber Probe

Widespread reports that the House Armed Services Committee's B-36 probe would be postponed until winter after a few preliminary hearings next week were scotched yesterday by Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.).

Vinson said that rumors of such a plan—which circulated among members of Congress and at the Pentagon this week—are "without foundation."

"We're going to start next Tuesday and continue straight through if we have to run until Christmas," the Georgian said. "And it's going to be a real investigation with no punches pulled."

Reports of the postponement had been coupled with suggestions that the probers would not go very deeply into the air power phases of the investigation. The committee has been directed to look into charges of "irregularities" in connection with the Air Force's B-36 procurement program. It also is supposed to determine whether current air power policies are sound.

The grapevine has had it that naval officers have been told to "lay off" any criticism of the giant Consolidated-Vultee B-36 bomber.

Commenting on these reports, Chairman Vinson said that the committee "will thoroughly investigate the merits of the B-36."

"We'll make a determined effort to find out and reach a decision as to whether the B-36 is the proper kind of intercontinental bomber to carry the A-bomb," he said.

Vinson declared that a remark he made at a committee meeting earlier this week may have helped promote the rumors of a postponement after a few opening hearings. He told his colleagues he had to go home week after next and then go in the hospital for an operation.

"I should do both," said the veteran Congressman, "But I'm not. I'm going to stick with this thing until its finished."

Former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, Defense Secretary Louis Johnson and Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington, along with Floyd Odlum, chief owner of Consolidated-Vultee, and Robert Lovett, former Assistant Secretary of War for Air, previously announced, will be among the first witnesses called, Vinson said.

President Denies He Knows Hunt

President Truman yesterday said he is not acquainted with James V. Hunt, a former Army officer who has been mentioned in a Senate committee's inquiry into operations of "5 per centers."

Mr. Truman made the statement at his news conference when he was told a case of 2500 books of pocket matches inscribed, "Swiped from Harry S. Truman" was purchased last December by Hunt from the Universal Match Co., St. Louis.

The President said anybody could buy the matches. He added, in answer to questions, that matches he frequently passes to White House guests were not given him by Hunt.

He said the reporters' information that Hunt had made the purchase of the match folders was the first he had heard about it.

Reported Bought for Trip

Roger White, attorney for Hunt, told a newsman the matches were bought at the request of the White House for use on Mr. Truman's presidential campaign trip last fall.

When a reporter asked Mr. Truman if he had received any of the match folders from Hunt, the President replied no, he had not.

Mr. Truman said he did not know Hunt, reportedly a friend of Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, Mr. Truman's Army aide.

Senate investigators, meanwhile, indicated the first phase of the public inquiry into the activities of "5 per centers" will deal with Army buying.

The special subcommittee conducting the probe expects to start hearings Monday. It has been meeting in private.

Persons familiar with the preparations said it looks now as though the emphasis at the start will be on events leading to suspension of two Army procurement officers. They are Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt, chief of the Chemical Corps, and Herman Feldman, the Quartermaster General.

They were temporarily relieved from duty after Paul Grindle, a Massachusetts manufacturer, said he paid Hunt $1000 for help in seeking a Government contract. Hunt, a "management counselor," is a former War Assets Administration employe.

Closed Meeting Today

Grindle said Hunt claimed influence with both Waitt and Feldman, and that he said he was a good friend of President Truman's military aide, Major General Vaughan. Hunt has denied he ever attempted to sell influence.

In suspending Waitt and Feldman, Secretary of the Army Gray said they failed to exhibit judgment "expected of persons in their positions.

Gray is scheduled to meet behind closed doors today with a House Armed Services Subcommittee checking reports Hunt offered to try to have Feldman rescind an Army order dealing with the manufacture of officers' uniforms.

Representative Hebert (D., La.) says he has been told Hunt sought $25,000 in the case and was turned down by the National Association of Uniform Manufacturers. Hebert named Stanley J. Cummings, executive secretary of the association, as the source of his information.

members, two residents of the District appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, and one detailed from the Corps of Engineers of the Army. Each house of Congress has a committee on the District of Columbia.

Residents of the District voted three years ago in favor of home rule in an unofficial plebiscite conducted under the sponsorship of the Board of Trade.

A total of 176,000 persons participated in the plebiscite, and voted 70 per cent in favor of home rule.

Earlier, in 1938, a similar test of local sentiment was conducted under the auspices of the D. C. Suffrage Association. In that plebiscite the vote was 88 per cent in favor of home municipal rule, 12 per cent opposed.

President Truman has taken an active part in pushing for a home-rule bill in Congress.

In today's nation-wide survey, persons with the most education are the most in favor of the home rule bill. Here is the vote by degree of education:

Figure in Bus Strike Threat Who Lost Hand Last March, Amazed at Rush of Friends to Aid

A stoic little guy, with a bulbous-nosed profile in the tradition of W. C. Fields, was the central character in the dispute between AFL drivers and mechanics and the W. M. A. Motor Lines.

Bernard J. (Shorty) Garrity is somewhat amazed to discover, after being with the company only for the past six years, that he has so many friends. The union voted unanimously to come to the aid of Shorty.

Rhode Island born and reared, Garrity for many years roamed the country, coast to coast, plying the mechanical craft, which he learned "the hard way." Shorty had acquired a Ford back in 1912, and in seeing what made that early edition of the Model T run, he disclosed for himself an aptitude for things mechanical.

The five-foot-five New Englander arrived in these parts in 1942, with a dredger working off Chesapeake Beach. He later helped build Navy living quarters at Solomons, and went to work for the bus company in the summer of 1943. That was the year he married Mrs. Dollie Ward Marquess, a widow, and set up house with her in a modest cottage at West Beach, just outside North Beach, Md.

Shorty, according to the union men, was a good mechanic, and well liked by all who knew him. He was a fellow, they say, easy to get along with.

Last March Shorty lost his right hand in a garage accident. He was installing a compressor for the air tanks underneath a bus and testing the motor when his right coverall sleeve caught onto a grease fitting. In a flash Shorty was jerked off the floor and his right hand severed by the razor-sharp steel pump pulley. The forearm was crushed; it was amputated at the elbow.

Fellow workmen had to cut Shorty out of his clothes to get him unhooked from the machinery. They say he didn't utter a word. He drank the entire pint of whisky they jammed into his remaining hand.

After 16 days in the hospital, and weeks of convalescence, Shorty was given a job as stock clerk with W. M. & A. As a mechanic, according to the union, Shorty received a weekly take-home pay of $63.35; as a stock clerk, his pay was now $42.41.

On June 11, the 55-year-old Garrity was taken acutely sick. He was in a county hospital for eight days, when it was discovered that he had an abdominal abcess. He was then rushed to a Baltimore hospital and given an emergency operation.

Garrity was convalescing—his doctor told him he could return to work at the first of September—when he received, on July 16, notification from the company that he had been dismissed. "Your absence . . . with no indication as to when you will return to work, has made it necessary to fill the vacancy . . ." the company wrote Garrity. The company's letter added:

"After you have recovered sufficiently to enable you to return to work again in some position with our corporation, we shall be glad to give you consideration if you so desire."

That night the union, hearing of Garrity's dismissal, voted for a wildcat strike. After continued talks, management and the union came to terms just 40 minutes before the strike was to take effect at 12:01 a. m. today.

D. C. Man, 35, Held On Sodomy Charge

Bethesda police yesterday charged Frank J. Bane, 35, of 1128 8th st. nw., with committing sodomy with a 16-year-old youth earlier in the day.

Police said the act occurred in some woods off Wisconsin ave. near the District line. Bane, unable to post $1000 bond, was held in Rockville jail for a hearing August 15.

Mrs. Melby Asks Custody of Sons, Funds in Suit

The wife of John Fremont Melby, assistant chief of the Division of Philippine Affairs in the State Department, yesterday asked District Court for custody of their two children and maintenance for herself and the youngsters.

In her suit, Mrs. Florence Cathcart Melby, declared she has been living with her mother in El Paso, Tex., since 1943, when her husband was assigned to foreign service in Russia. The two boys, John, 10, and Everett, 8, have been with her.

During those years and later years, when he was stationed in China, she received only $100 a month from him, the suit declared. Since his return to this country last January, she has received nothing, it added. Mrs. Melby also asked for a judgment declaring that she has not caused or agreed to their separation.

All-Night Talk Averts Strike Of Excavators

An eleventh hour, all-night session between negotiators for the area's excavators and AFL operating engineers resulted in a wage agreement yesterday just two hours before the engineers were scheduled to strike local construction projects.

Terms of the agreement were not made public and are subject to ratification by the general membership of the union, Local 77, International Union of Operating Engineers. They will meet Saturday morning.

The negotiators, who were working to avert a walkout which would have tied up most construction projects here, met at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the union hall, 426 E st. nw., and came out with the agreement at about 5:30 a. m. yesterday. A strike had been set for 7:30 a. m.

The union members, who number about 450, were represented by J. P. Shields, business agent of the local. Chairman of the negotiating committee for some 15 contractors was Edgar R. Brown, vice president of Whittington-Brown, Inc. The Master Builders Association was represented by Henry Allen of the Charles H. Tompkins Co.

The operating engineers, who operate all construction stationary engines such as cranes, bulldozers and power shovels, wanted a 25-cent-an-hour increase over their hourly wage of $1.50 to $2.50, plus a health and welfare plan. The contractors had offered a 10-cent-an-hour raise.

GOP Debates Fight on Clark Nomination

The Senate Republican Policy Committee yesterday debated whether to oppose President Truman's nomination of Attorney General Tom C. Clark to the U. S. Supreme Court, but was unable to reach a final decision.

Chairman Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), said the issue was raised by Senators Homer E. Ferguson (R., Mich.) and James P. Kem (R., Mo.) Both have criticized Clark's operation of the Justice Department.

Ferguson and Kem said later they were not yet ready to say whether they would oppose Clark.

Taft said a definite decision would be deferred until a later committee meeting.

Kiwanis Supporting Hoover Economy Plan

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—Kiwanis International, the organization's president said today, is actively supporting the Hoover commission report urging Government economies.

GOP Elects Gabrielson

tions and no groups in the Republican National Committee."

Senator Owen Brewster of Maine, speaking last night at a "Kick Off for '50" banquet in the Mayflower, struck back at an unidentified commentator, who had referred unfavorably to Gabrielson in his role as businessman. The Maine lawmaker said Gabrielson had experienced a Horatio Alger rise in life, and added:

"I hope no Republican will hang his head for having a successful businessman and lawyer as chairman of the national committee."

Representative Scott, retiring chairman, promised all-out support of Gabrielson, and called on the committee to close ranks behand him so that the party can "get somewhere."

Earlier in the day, Scott had frankly acknowledged the divisions and squabbling in the party, and had then made a vehement attack on President Truman. He called him "Typhoid Harry," after Typhoid Mary, the germ carrier, and said that, without knowing it, the Chief Executive was carrying around the malignant germs of the police state.

The chief orator at last night's banquet was Will Hays, Republican national chairman in 1918-21, who was in command when Warren G. Harding was elected President.

"In this time of raucous propaganda," he said, "it is the Republican Party that can best mobilize Americans who want ordered change, not revolution; progress, not wholesale destruction . . ."

He said what was needed in the country was not "less politics" but more attention by more people to practical politics—not only on election day but on every day of the year. The slogan should be, he said, "Every man a politician," in the sense that he participates directly and intelligently in political affairs.

At the outset of the committee meeting yesterday afternoon, an unsuccessful effort was made to keep Representative Scott in the chairmanship.

Harry Sommers, national committeeman from Georgia, said Scott's foes "tore him to pieces" in Omaha, and had continued "sniping" at him. The result was, he said, that Scott hadn't had "half a chance" to show his brilliance as an organizer and strategist. The Georgia politician said there didn't seem to be anybody to take Scott's place.

Scott, who was tapped for the chairmanship by Governor Dewey after the Philadelphia convention last summer, insisted that the committee accept his resignation. On motion of Col. R. B. Creager, national committeeman from Texas, this was done.

Scott made an appeal for harmony, and warned the party leaders not to destroy themselves.

"Suicide is just as messy in the Shoreham as it is in the poorest dwelling," he said, adding that it would be far more widely reported in the press.

In advance of the nominating speeches, Axel Beck said he had been told he could win election as chairman, but not by a big margin. He said that whoever was elected ought to have a big margin.

"We are facing another Omaha," Beck said. "The Republican Party can't afford another Omaha. The time has come when we must unite if we are to win in 1950 and 1952."

The South Dakota candidate offered to withdraw if the other "major candidate" (Gabrielson) would do likewise. Gabrielson kept his hat in the ring.

McIntyre Faries, committeeman from California, then put Beck in nomination, emphasizing the geographical issue. Most of the United States, he said, lay west of the Alleghenies. But the real reason that a man from the West ought to be chosen, he said, was that it was in that area that the GOP lost the election in '48. If those who voted for President Truman were to be brought back to the Republican fold, he said, the party should pick a national chairman familiar with the problems of that region.

The same argument was made later in behalf of "Bert" Howard of Nebraska.

Sinclair Weeks, committeeman from Massachusetts, who put Gabrielson in nomination, said he didn't agree with those who explored a hot contest for the chairmanship. He said that, actually, this was a sign of vigor and eagerness in the GOP.

He pointed out that Gabrielson started out as an Iowa farm boy and settled in New Jersey as a lawyer after serving in World War I. He told of his service in the New Jersey Legislature, emphasized that State's Republicanism, and promised that Gabrielson would be able to raise money for the GOP treasury.

Perry W. Howard, veteran Negro committeeman from Mississippi, also hit the money note.

"To elect a Congress or a President," he said, "you need money, money, money, money. Mr. Gabrielson has everything. He has learning, he knows the law, and he is a businessman."

Representative Clarence J. Brown of Ohio, who was Senator Taft's campaign manager in the fight for the presidential nomination last year, also spoke up for Gabrielson. So did others who, like Brown, sought to dump Scott at Omaha last winter.

A report spread through the ballroom that opponents of Gibrielson were going to put up Representative Charles Halleck of Indiana for the chairmanship. Halleck was a Dewey man at Philadelphia. An attempt was made to draw Halleck into the fight, but the Hoosier sent word from Capitol Hill that he would not be interested unless Gabrielson got out of the race and he himself was assured of a unanimous vote. Gabrielson refused to go along.

The balloting was a ding-dong business, with the outcome in doubt almost to the end.

The result at first was Gabrielson, 51; Howard, 2, and Beck, 47. Then Abe Shotwell, committeeman for Nebrask, shifted his vote from Howard to Gabrielson, giving the New Jersey man his final total of 52.

The two District of Columbia members of the committee—Clyde D. Garrett and Mrs. Howard A. Coffin—voted for Gabrielson. So did the Maryland members, former Senator Jacob France and Miss Bertha S. Adkins. The Virginia members—Curtis M. Dozier and Mrs. William H. Logan—voted for Beck.

In the end, as is the custom, the committee voted to make the election of Gabrielson unanimous.

After the election, the meeting authorized Gabrielson to appoint a special committee to draft "a statement of principles upon which the Republican Party will base its 1950 campaign." The committee would be made up of Senators and Representatives and members of the national and State committees.

Rep. O'Brien Seeks To Kill Sales Tax

Representative George D. O'Brien (D., Mich.) yesterday celebrated the fourth day of Washington's sales tax by introducing a House bill to repeal it.

The measure goes to the House District Committee. As the group which started this year's drive for the new sales tax law, the District Committee is expected to take no action on the O'Brien bill.

Young Officer Saves Two From Drowning

Newport, R. I., Aug. 4 (AP).—A young Army officer from Iowa was the hero today in the spectacular rescue of a woman and a girl from drowning.

Ten-year-old Dera Perrin of Groton, Mass., was caught by the undertow and heavy surf at Castle Hill beach and carried beyond her depth. Mrs. Daniel L. Russo, wife of a local physician, dashed to the child's assistance, only to find herself helpless.

Lieut. John C. Lowell, 25, of Webster City, Iowa, commanding the headquarters detachment at nearby Ft. Adams, saw their plight and plunged into the breakers. He succeeded in keeping both afloat until about a dozen of his men formed a human chain through the surf and hauled all three ashore.

New TV Idea Uses Phones, Widens Scope

By The Associated Press

So you can't get tickets to the top Broadway hit.

Well, the Zenith Radio Corp. wants to show how you can see it in your own living room via television—and the telephone—picking up the tab on your regular telephone bill.

The method—phonevision.

The corporation yesterday asked Communications Commission autority to make experimental phonevision broadcasts in the Chicago area.

It would offer phonevision as a television subscriber service to include first-run motion pictures, current stage productions and special events.

Zenith said its experimental television station W9XZV at Chicago would be used to test the plan.

The radio company proposes to distribute special receiving sets to 300 persons, most in the area of the Lakeview exchange of the Illinois Bell Telephone Co.

The phonevision broadcasts involve a dual operation, that is, tuning in on a television set, plus a telephone wire connection. Any set could pick up the phonevision broadcast in scrambled form. The telephone connection provides the key for unscrambling the picture on the screen.

A subscribed to the service simply would notify the telephone company when he wants to receive a phonevision program and the operator would throw a key.

The telephone still could be used for regular conversation while such connections were on.

Court Continues Charges Against 3 in $900 Holdup

Charges of armed robbery were continued yesterday in Arlington County Court against two Washington boys and a girl, accused of beating a restaurant owner and robbing him of $900 in cash and checks July 27.

The trio, police said, ambushed J. L. Heatwole, 4140 Lorcom la., Arlington. They will appear in court again August 16.

Those charged are: Charles Riddle, jr., 20, of 1871 Newton st. nw.; James H. Sebastian, 25, of 1346 Fairmont st. nw., and Ruth Colton, 20, of 1358 Fairmont st. nw. Two juveniles also are held in the case.

Heatwole was released Wednesday from Arlington Hospital, where he was treated for severe head injuries.

Gunman Who Fled Traffic Accident Killed by Police

Chicago, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Police today trapped and killed a gunman who had fled a traffic accident.

Ten squads of police engaged the man in a running gun battle and trapped him in a washroom of the Northwestern Railroad Station, where they cut him down with blasts from submachine guns, shotguns and pistols.

The gunman fell with at least six bullets in his head and body.

Three policemen were injured in the battle, one seriously.

Witnesses said more than 100 shots were fired.

The gunman carried a card bearing the name of Edward Shumak and police identified him as a former convict.

Khan Holdup Listed As Lloyd's Biggest

Nice, France, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—The robbery that cost the wife of the Aga Khan her jewel collection was the biggest in the history of the famous Lloyd's insurance underwriters organization, it was disclosed tonight.

John P. V. Buellens, Lloyd's chief agent in France, fixed the value of the gems at $785,000. He said it was not only a new record for Lloyd's, but might be the biggest jewel robbery of all time, anywhere.

Lloyd's stands to lose almost $1,500,000 in the Aga Khan robbery and in another in which gunmen took $672,000 in jewels Tuesday from Van Cleef and Arpels jewelry salon in Deauville.

Police had a strong suspicion the bandits were Riviera men and that they had a pipeline into the Aga Khan's palatial villa because they seemed to know all about his movements and the way his wife carried her jewelry.

The only clews were the car used in the robbery, found abandoned nearby, and a dark-blue beret and a pair of old yellow gloves left in it.

The Aga Khan and his beautiful French-born wife, the Begum, left for Deauville today—they had started there yesterday when they were robbed—to see whether Rita Hayworth, movie star bride of the Indian potentate's son, Prince Aly, really was going to have a baby.

The Begum carried a case containing her remaining jewels—a double-row pearl necklace, a diamond clip and a ruby ring.

"At least one thing we are glad of is that we have nothing left for anyone to steal from us now," the Aga Khan said ruefully.

Dean of Virginia Editors to Retire

Warsaw, Va., Aug. 4 (AP).—William Y. Morgan, 83, dean of Virginia newspapermen, will step down tomorrow as editor and publisher of the Northern Neck News, ending a 70-year working career.

Morgan, who started as a printer's devil when the News was founded in 1879, announced that the weekly newspaper will become the property of his grandson, Rodney Marshall Coggin.

King Permits Prince Philip To Join Navy

London, Aug. 4 (AP).—Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh, is leaving the royal family in the fall to carry on toward his goal of becoming an admiral of his future queen's navy.

He has the consent of King George VI to go back to sea for a tour of active duty that could last two years.

Unlike commoner wives of Royal Navy personnel, Princess Elizabeth can't go along to his station with the Mediterranean destroyer force.

She and the infant Prince Charles will remain at Clarence House, London, to carry out obligations of heirs-in-line for the throne.

Elizabeth is making public appearances that normally would be done by the king, who has been ailing.

The 28-year-old royal consort was ordered to report at Malta October 17 as second in command of the 1710-ton destroyer flotilla leader Chequers, a post that carries the title of first lieutenant of the ship and the duties of executive officer.

In navy lingo a ship's first lieutenant is called "Jimmy the one" and his job is keeping the vessel "tiddly," or shipshape.

Mother Defies Court on GI Policy; Jailed

Salt Lake City, Aug. 4 (AP).—The 57-year-old mother of a son who died in World War II entered the Salt Lake County jail yesterday to serve a 30-day sentence rather than obey a court order she considered unjust.

Mrs. Nettie W. Capps of Bountiful was involved in litigation over a $10,000 veteran's service life insurance policy left by her dead son.

The son's estranged wife brought suit to obtain the insurance money. The court ruled the man's mother should be designated trustee of the funds for the benefit of the children rather than the beneficiary.

Mrs. Capps refused to act as trustee and, instead, designated trusteeship to the First Security Trust Co.

Meanwhile, the Veterans' Administration held with Mrs. Capps that she is the sole beneficiary and the only recipient of the checks.

District Judge Ray Van Cott, jr., ordered her to accept the checks and turn them over to the trustee. She refused. June 30 she was sentenced to 30 days in jail or to pay a fine of $200 and was given a stay of execution to comply.

She appeared in court again yesterday, repeating her refusal.

The task ordered by the court involves indorsing and delivering a $53 check each month for the duration of the policy.

"My son died that we might be free," she said, "and I don't think I can be forced to pack those checks to a trust any more than I can be made to scrub the steps. . . . That would be slave labor . . . enforced labor, and in America that doesn't exist."

1 Killed, 5 Injured In Auto-Jeep Crash

Frederick, Md., Aug. 4 (AP).—Charles W. Stallings, 19, was killed and five others were injured Wednesday night when an automobile skidded on alternate route 40 and collided with an Army convoy jeep. The crash occurred about 5 miles west of Frederick.

The injured were identified as Charles W. Himes, 18; Joseph Hoffman, 16; Donald Lee Droneburg, 16 and Jack Bowlus, 17, all of Frederick; and Avery L. Newkirk of Fort Eustis, Va., driver of the jeep.

Adm. Callaghan Named To New Navy Sea Post

Rear Admiral William M. Callaghan, commander of the Atlantic Fleet training command and wartime skipper of the Battleship Missouri, yesterday was appointed director of the newly established military sea transportation service.

Correction

A headline in Thursday's editions of The Washington Post erroneously referred to Kurt Schumacher, German leader, as a Red. Actually, he is a Social Democrat leader. The Washington Post regrets the error.

2 Women Share Room Third Time For Childbirth

Boston, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Twenty-eight months ago, Mrs. Philip Kenney, 29, of Quincy, and Mrs. Bernard Baher, 28, of Roxbury, shared the same room at a Dorchester hospital when they gave birth to their first babies.

Fifteen months later they again occupied the same room at the same hospital and their second babies were born. They had not seen each other in the interval.

Today Mrs. Kenney and Mrs. Baher again shared the same room after delivering their third babies. Each has two girls and a boy.

Newspapers Lead All Advertising Media

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—Newspapers led all other media in June in the increase in national advertising, the August 5 edition of Printers' Ink will say. The publication's national advertising index will show that newspapers increased their national advertising in June by 9 per cent over June, 1948.

National advertising in magazines was down 10 per cent, in radio up 2 per cent, in outdoor advertising up 6 per cent and in business papers up 2 per cent, Printers' Ink will say. The general index will show a 1 per cent increase.

High Rate of Polio in Nation Held Seasonal; Total Set at 8299; Two New Area Cases

Latest polio figures released here yesterday by Public Health Service show that infantile paralysis in the Nation is running at a high but seasonal rate.

They show a total of 8299 new cases reported to last Sunday, in contrast to 5793 new cases during the same seven months of last year, the second worst polio year in records-keeping history.

Some basis for encouragement despite this year's high number of cases, PHS officials said, are indications that the polio peak may come earlier this summer than last.

"Significant increases" were noted for New York City and New York State.

Two new polio cases were reported in the Greater Washington area yesterday, bringing the total thus far this year to 47.

One was the fifteenth District case, a 4-year-old boy living in the 3300 block of Woodley rd. nw., admitted to Children's Hospital Sunday, and a 10-year-old boy of the 100 block of Commonwealth ave., Alexandria, the third case in that community.

In the District on the same date last year there were 20 reported cases.

58 New Polio Cases In New York; 2 Deaths

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—The city health department today reported 58 new poliomyelitis cases in the past 24 hours to bring the year's total to 519 cases compared to 92 this time last year.

Two additional polio deaths were announced in Brooklyn, pushing the 1949 fatalities to 38.

The 1949 report showed 267 cases in Brooklyn, 114 in Queens, 71 in Manhattan, 59 in the Bronx and 8 in Richmond.

Polio by States

State by State records of polio cases reported thus far this year and for comparable periods last year, as compiled by the National Office of Vital Statistics, U. S. Public Health Service. (Statisticians point out that since December, 1948, polio cases in epidemic States, notably Texas, California and North Carolina, piled up on the health authorities and were carried over into early January figures of 1949.)

Cut Prices Order Incenses British Shopkeepers

London, Aug. 4 (AP).—A quarter of a million British shopkeepers, galled by 10 years of government controls, threatened outright rebellion today against an order to cut prices.

They are members of the National Chamber of Trade.

The merchants objected to a directive issued last week for retailers to slash prices of utility clothing, footwear and household textiles 5 per cent, effective next month.

Associations of clothing and shoe dealers said members will go to jail rather than conform.

Delco Division of GM To Recall 400 Workers

Dayton, Ohio, August 4 (AP).—The Delco Products Division of General Motors Corp. announced last night it will recall 400 employes who were furloughed during the last four weeks. An increase in orders was cited as reason for the recall.

Mrs. Roosevelt

Truman Bars Offer to Quit Post on U. N.

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday said Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt has offered to resign as a member of the United States delegation to the United Nations, but that he's not going to accept it.

The subject of Mrs. Roosevelt came up at the President's news conference when a reporter asked if it was true she had offered to resign because of her differences with Francis Cardinal Spellman on whether to include certain benefits to parochial school children in a program of Federal aid to education.

The President said she offered to resign but she didn't express any reason.

Offers Every Year

Mr. Truman said Mrs. Roosevelt offers to resign every year, with her customary courtesy to him, because she thinks the President ought to have a free hand to appoint anyone he wants.

Questioned further, he said Mrs. Roosevelt is going back to the United Nations Assembly next year in her same job.

Mr. Truman also made the following replies to questions:

That the United States hasn't refused to make a loan to Mexico, and he still hopes a loan can be worked out.

That he has no advice for the Republican Party, whose leaders met here yesterday to select a new national chairman, because it wouldn't be proper for him to interfere.

That he favors the proposal for an international fair, in some American city in 1950, with the idea of promoting exports and imports, but that he isn't picking any city.

That he probably will sign the Armed Services Unification Bill just sent him by Congress, if it is in the form he thinks it is.

That he will welcome the President of the Philippines, Elpido Quirino, at the Blair House next Monday afternoon and entertain him at dinner that night, and they will talk about whatever the guest wants to talk about.

That he doesn't know anything about Navy plans for a new Antarctic expedition.

And he smilingly remarked that all he knows about any improvement in the economic situation is what he reads in the papers. But he added that even the Wall Street Journal says there has been an improvement.

Creator of Jobs For Blind Flies To London Parley

One of the pioneers in breaking down objections to employment of blind persons in industry left Washington yesterday by air to attend the International Conference of Workers for the Blind now in session in London, England.

Clunk

He is Joseph F. Clunk, himself totally blind, who is chief of the Services for the Blind, Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, Federal Security Agency.

The conference he will attend has as its major consideration the employment of blind persons in industry, in professions and in other lines of work which have been successfully demonstrated in the United States.

Virginia Expert Sees Lower Pork Prices

Blacksburg, Aug. 4 (AP).—More pork at lower prices for consumers this fall was forecast here by George C. Herring, swine specialist for Virginia Agricultural Extension Service.

Herring said a 15 per cent increase in the Nation's spring pig crop this year will be reflected in market receipts and prices. The Virginia spring crop was 7 per cent above that in 1948, Herring said.

Hagerstown Strike Ends

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 4 (AP). About 160 employes of the Troy laundry, the largest in this area, were back on the job today, ending a brief walkout over contract negotiations.

Lobbies Spend $4,098,653 in '49 for Record

Lobbyists spent a record $4,098,653 during the first half of 1949, according to official reports filed with Congress.

The total was $635,338 more than the total reported for the same six months last year. All figures were compiled by the Congressional Quarterly from official records.

The total number of organizations reporting came to 261, also a new record. Last year 218 reported.

Six groups reported more than $100,000 in expenditures. They are:

American Medical Association, $508,397; Committee for Constitutional Government, Inc., $306,297; National Association of Electric Companies, $224,222; United World Federalists, Inc., $169,401; Citizens Committee on Displaced Persons, $141,612, and National Small Business Men's Association of Akron, Ohio, $129,637.

Legion Seeks Boy 'Sponsors' at Field Day

The D. C. Department of the American Legion will open a drive for 150 "sponsors" of youths at the National Training School for Boys by staging a field day at the school Saturday at 1 p. m.

The Legion Department is one of several civic groups who encourage their members to volunteer to aid individual inmates of the Federal institutions by becoming their "sponsors."

Job Is Outlined

A sponsor is expected to visit the boy he is aiding about twice a month at the Training School, and occasionally may invite him to his home or take him to an event which interests both, such as a baseball game or a concert.

Legion Department Commander Charles K. Dunn and Joseph F. Rogers, chairman of the department's committee on youth opportunity, announced the drive and the field day at a luncheon at the school yesterday attended by James V. Bennett, director of prisons of the Department of Justice.

Because the young delinquents committed to the Training School need guidance after they are released as well as during their stay there, an attempt is being made to make the Legion's "sponsor" program a national one, Rogers explained.

Field Day Saturday

The field day Saturday is open to the public. Track meets and other sports will be under the direction of Louis C. Schroeder, member of the local Legion committee and a former track coach for French Olympics teams, and Charles J. Eckenrode, assistant director of education for the Training School.

Harold E. Hegstrom, director of the Training School, and his staff will participate in the program, which will include a ceremony by the Legion's national guard of honor and music by a fife, drum and bugle corps.

Drowned Man's Body Identified As Ex-Navy Cook

The body of a man tentatively identified as Harold H. Holmesly, 64, believed to be a former Navy cook, yesterday was recovered from Washington Channel opposite Maine ave. and M st. sw.

The body was first sighted by Edward G. Williams, 2700 Wisconsin ave. nw., skipper of the Potomac Park ferry boat who reported the incident to harbor police.

Papers found on the body led to the tentative identification. Homicide squad detectives determined that a man by the name of Harold Holmesly, a retired Navy cook had been discharged from Bethesda Naval Hospital about a month ago after treatment for a stomach ailment. No marks of violence were found on the body which is being held at the morgue pending further investigation.

Africa Defenses Planned

London, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—A "top secret" meeting of the British East Africa high commission opened in Nairobi, Kenya, today for what official quarters said was a review of "defense matters in East Africa."

Plan to Move Solomons Lab Stirs Protest

Solomons, Md., Aug. 4 (Spl.).—An emergency meeting of employes of the Naval Civil Engineering Laboratory here was held tonight following a surprise report that removal of the unit to Port Hueneme, Calif., is being considered.

Seventy-five of the 250 laboratory employes attended the meeting and discussed appointment of a committee to call on Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), and Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.) in Washington to protest the move, reported to be scheduled for October 1.

Although, the meeting was open to employes only, much of the sentiment aaginst the move was generated by Solomons merchants who declare the move would be a serious blow to business. Solomons has a civilian population of about 1000.

Action was touched off today when a notice was posted at the laboratory announcing the anticipated move. Washington sources said the move was recommended by Defense Secretary Johnson but had not yet been approved. The recommendation was reportedly a step in the economy drive.

Employes felt the notice was a definite announcement of the switch. But Capt. Ira P. Griffin, commanding officer of the laboratory, said the notice was posted partly to determine how many employes would be willing to go to Port Hueneme if the recommendation is approved.

The employe protest action tonight indicated that very few of them would be willing to move to California.

Two Painters Hurt in Fall Off Scaffold

Two painters were injured seriously yesterday when, police said, the scaffold on which they were working, came loose from one of the ladders on which it was fastened and they fell two floors.

The mishap occurred at the Burrville school, Division ave. and Hay st. ne. The men were working inside the school above a stairway, and landed on concrete steps.

The two are L. A. Buckner, 54, Fairfax, Va., who suffered fractures of both shoulders, and Lewis Heustis, 64, 201 2nd st. ne., possible fracture of the shoulder and spine. Both were taken to Casualty Hospital.

New Dental Unit Head Named at Walter Reed

A new officer will take charge of the Dental Clinic at Walter Reed General Hospital's Forest Glen, Md., section on August 9, Maj. Gen. Paul H. Streit, MC, USA, commanding, announced yesterday.

He is Capt. David G. Peifly, D. C., who will succeed Capt. James Baido, D. C., who has held the position since September, 1946. Captain Baido will transfer to the Far Eastern Command.

Captain Peifly, his wife and two children, live at 8210 New Hampshire ave., Silver Spring.

Texas River Project Bill Passed by House

The House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a bill by Representative Worley (D., Tex.) to authorize an $85,000,000 development on the Canadian River in West Texas.

The measure provides for construction of a $27,000,000 reservoir near Sanford and a $54,000,000 aqueduct to carry water to 11 cities and towns throughout the Panhandle and high plains areas.

Helicopter Saves Boy Stranded in Yosemite

Yosemite National Park, Calif., Aug. 4 (U.P.).—A daring helicopter pilot leap-frogged over a mountain range in the predawn darkness today to pluck an injured boy from the center of the Yosemite wilderness area.

Pilot Ray Daming rescued 12-year-old Terence (Kayo) Hallinan who had been stranded at remote Benson Lake since he suffered a fractured skull last Sunday.

He was injured Sunday when he was thrown from a horse while on a pack trip with four other boys and a park guide.

Bullet in Girl Victim Of Iranian Extracted

Berkeley, Calif., Aug. 4 (AP).—A bullet fired by her jealous Iranian admirer was removed today from the head of 26-year-old Judith Korb Sher.

The victim of a collegiate love triangle shooting Monday was reported in poor condition. Her husband, Sam, 26, was with her.

German Children Plan Hoover Birthday Fete

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 4 (AP). Arrangements have been made for children in 166 German cities to observe Herbert Hoover's seventy-five birthday August 10. The former President will be honored for his youth feeding program, which has benefited millions of children in Germany since 1947.

X-Ray Generator For Cancer Study Disclosed by GE

Schenectady, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP).—An X-ray generator that scientists say will offer "tremendous possibilities" in cancer research is being built.

The General Electric Co. announced today that a 70-million-volt synchrotron for the University of California medical school at San Francisco is expected to be ready early in 1951.

The machine is the first of its type for research on high-frequency radiation in the treatment of cancer.

Congress Cutting Red Tape to Let U. S. Pair Bring in Italian Baby as Their 'Natural' Child

By Harmon W. Nichols
United Press Staff Writer

Your Congress is wagging its flaps and acting like a stork.

As a result, a California soldier and his wife soon will be on the way home from Italy with their 18-month-old adopted daughter who will be listed officially as their "natural" child.

It took a lot of fancy doing, by a lot of people.

Among others, the couple can thank two sentimental lawgivers—with youngsters of their own—who helped to unravel the miles of red tape here and abroad.

History of Case

The history of the case is this:

After the war Chief Army Warrant Officer William F. Kretzinger of Beverly Hills, Calif., found himself in Leghorn, Italy. Naturally, he became lonesome for his pretty, blue-eyed wife, Mildred. He saved up his money and sent for her.

The two were happy, but they longed for the pit-pat of tiny feet around the place. Finally, they decided that the thing to do was to adopt an Italian war orphan. After "shopping" around they decided on Francesca Lucareni—blond, pretty as a picture and with flashing big blue eyes like her foster mama's.

At length they obtained legal custody of the baby, and that's where they struck the snarl of red tape.

The Italian law reads that no child may be adopted legally unless the parents are 50 years old. That let the Kretzingers out. Bill and Mildred talked it over. It would mean waiting over 20 years. Little Francesca would be 21½ by that time. Who wants to adopt an already-reared baby?

Links in the Chain

Bill sat down and wrote a long letter to his brother-in-law in Burbank, Calif., Sydney Cole. He inclosed pictures of the little cuddler. Cole went to a Burbank city councilman, Walter R. Hinton. Hinton wrote to his Congressman in Washington, Carl Hinshaw, who got hold of Watson B. Miller, the immigration chief.

It was agreed finally that an act of Congress was in order. So Hinshaw dropped a private bill into the hopper declaring the Kretzingers to be the "natural" parents of the baby. That got around the Italian adoption rules.

The measure breezed through the House without a murmur of protest. The job was half done.

Hinshaw next buzzed his friend and fellow Republican, Senator William F. Knowland, of Piedmont, Calif., father of three. They had lunch. Hinshaw showed Knowland the picture and the Senator said Francesca sure was a cute baby. He introduced a bill in the upper House. It hasn't come up yet, but it will. It probably won't be long now, Miss Kretzinger.

Italian Police Seize 1100 in Bandit Hauls

Catanzaro, Italy, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Police announced today that 100 policemen and 300 regional troopers had finished a 15-day "crime cleanup" which wiped out one of Italy's biggest bandit gangs. Some 1100 persons were under arrest.

$279,000 Estate Left by Simon

The late Max Simon, retired Washington merchant and builder, left an estate of $279,000, according to a petition filed for probate yesterday in District Court.

Mr. Simon, who lived at 3720 Nichols ave. se., died June 12 at the age of 74.

The bulk of his estate, consisting of $78,000 in personal property and real estate valued at $201,423, was left to his wife, Mrs. Eva Simon, with a provision that she can dispose of it as she sees fit.

After her death the property will be divided among his three children, Dr. Benjamin Simon of Middletown, Conn., and Mrs. Helen Servator and Mrs. Lee Hunt, both of Washington.

His will, made in May, 1945, provided that $500 be given the Southeast Hebrew Congregation Synagogue.

Mr. Simon was born in Russia and came to this country in 1905. He owned a department store on Nichols ave. se. but gave that up in 1927 to enter the building business from which he retired in 1942.

Tuck Orders Phone Co. Seized If Strike Occurs

Richmond, Va., Aug. 4 (AP).—Governor Tuck today ordered State seizure of the Clifton Forge-Waynesboro Telephone Co. at 12:01 a. m. August 10 if necessary to prevent interruption of service in event of a strike.

Members of Virginia Division 33, Communications Workers of America (CIO), have served notice on the telephone company that they intend to strike on August 10.

The company serves customers in Clifton Forge, Waynesboro, Covington and Iron Gate, and the counties of Alleghany, Augusta, Botetourt aand Nelson.

Irr Resigns As Chairman Of Planning

Baltimore, Aug. 4 (AP).—Henry P. Irr resigned today as chairman of the State planning commission in order to devote more time to his building and loan business.

Governor Lane said he would accept Irr's resignation "with regret and with thanks for his service and cooperation."

Irr has headed the commission since June, 1945. Under his chairmanship, the planning commission had several differences with Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland.

Dr. Byrd charged at one time that Irr's group was trying to control research work at the university. Only last week it was disclosed that the university president had refused to supply a list of research projects to the commission.

Professor Shown As Ex-Convict in Nurse-Beating

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 4 (U.P.).—A married university professor who admitted the brutal pistol-whipping of a pretty nurse here was revealed today as a former convict who served time for sending dirty postcards through the mails.

Federal Court records in Knoxville, Tenn., showed that the University of South Carolina professor, 45-year-old Russell B. Maxey, was indicted in 1940 for mailing "lewd, lascivious and filthy" literature and pictures.

The indictment abruptly ended Maxey's career as a junior engineer with the Tennessee Valley Authority. He pleaded guilty to all 11 counts, the record showed.

Man Fined $100 On Lottery Charge

Eddie Caden of 342 Commerce st., Alexandria, was fined $100 yesterday in Alexandria Police Court for operating a numbers game. The 40-year-old laborer was also given a 30-day suspended jail sentence by Judge James R. Duncan.

Two women arrested on similar charges with Caden July 21 had been previously convicted and their cases referred to the probation officer for report August 12. They were Martha Vinson, 49, of 321 S. Pitt st., Alexandria, and Louise Willis, 22, of 234 N. Payne st., Alexandria, at whose home the arrests were made.

Rent Rise Approved For N.E. Apartment

The District Rent Control Office yesterday announced approval of a 9.9 per cent rent increase for the 203-unit Suburban Gardens Apartment at 4904 Jay st. ne. Ernest F. Henry, attorney for Suburban Gardens Inc., owners, had petitioned for a 17 per cent rent boost on grounds of higher maintenance costs and increased real estate tax and water rates since January 1941.

The adjusted rent schedule will range from $47 per month for three rooms to $66 for five-room units. Previously rentals ranged from $42 to $61 monthly.

Kennan New Counselor

George F. Kennan of Milwaukee was sworn in yesterday as Counselor of the State Department.

Kennan is also chairman of the Department's policy planning staff. A career diplomat, he has served extensively in various European capitals.

Phone Employe

Mrs. Riggles Honord on Retirement

More than 100 friends and associates of Mrs. Margaret S. Riggles, 2005 Key Blvd., Arlington, gathered last night to honor the retiring veteran Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone employe. She is stepping down after 46 years and 10 months service.

The dinner party celebration was held at a Hotel 2400. Mrs. Riggles has reached the official retirement age for telephone employes of 65 years.

She began work as an operator in December, 1900, rose to assistant chief operator in 1906 and became a chief operator in 1908. Mrs. Riggles was appointed application supervisor in 1920, and was made an administrative supervisor in the employment office in 1946, a position she held until retirement.

$300 Bond Set For Navy Man In 3-Car Crash

Navy Comdr. Harold R. Swenson, 34, of 4308 Texas ave. se., is under $300 bond for Municipal Court appearance today on charges, brought by the policeman, Pvt. O. F. Lewis, of the U. S. Park Police, of "failing to make identity known after an accident."

Lewis on duty at the height of yesterday's 8 a. m. rush hour at 23d st. and Constitution ave. nw., spotted the De Soto sedan operated by Swenson as the car for which a lookout had been broadcast last Sunday following a three-car collision near Lincoln Memorial.

Swenson, who is assigned to the Bureau of Aeronautics, Navy Department, told the officer he had made a report to Metropolitan police following the accident but asserted he could not remember the officer to whom he had reported.

No one had been injured in the triple crash. Complainants in the crash were Henry W. Brown of 5017 N. 25th st. Arlington, and James W. Dent of 4208 Longfellow st., Hyattsville.

Working Budget Shows 2 Million Rise in Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 4 (AP).—Maryland's working budget has grown more than two million dollars since it was adopted by the 1949 General Assembly.

Figures released today by Director James G. Rennie of the budget and procurement department showed the 1950 fiscal year budget now totals $136,327,493.

When passed by the Legislature, general and special fund appropriations totaled $134,215,008. Special fund revenues — those tagged for specific purposes, such as roads and paying off bond issues—account for the net increase of $2,112,485.

Fisherman Hooks Drowned Man's Body in Potomac

The body of an unidentified man was found in the Potomac River near an Alexandria wharf yesterday noon when it was accidentally hooked by a young fisherman.

Bruce Perry, 16, of 7 Rosecrest ave., Alexandria, said he was fishing off the American Agricultural Chemical Co. wharf between Queen and Princess sts. when he felt a tug on his line.

He was reeling in the line, he said, when suddenly the body of a Negro dressed in undershirt, trousers and shoes broke the surface. Perry had hooked the body by the undershirt.

Dr. John A. Sims, city coroner, had not completed his investigation last night.

35 Air Patrol Cadets Leave for Europe Tour

Thirty-five cadets of the Civil Air Patrol took off yesterday for a two-week tour in Europe under an exchange program.

The U. S. Air Force Constellation, in which they flew, will return here Monday with 35 British, Swiss and French cadets, the CAP said.

Twenty-five of the American cadets will visit England, five France and five Switzerland.

Wisconsin Takes Over Rent Control in State

Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods announced yesterday that he has been advised by the governor of Wisconsin that the Wisconsin legislature has enacted a State rent control law specifically stating that State rent control shall be in lieu of Federal rent control, effective today. Accordingly, the Housing Expediter is issuing an amendment terminating Federal rent control in Wisconsin today.

Named Thailand Attache

Fort Meade, Md., Aug. 4 (AP). Col. Charles Albert Sheldon, commanding officer of the Third Armored Cavalry, is scheduled to leave here Friday to become United States military attache in Thailand. The appointment was announced today by Second Army headquarters here.

Correction

The Washington Post incorrectly stated in a story yesterday that two men, fined $5 and costs each on gambling charges in Arlington County Court Tuesday, had pleaded guilty to accepting horse race bets.

The two men, James Samuel, 1930 N. Cameron st., Arlington, and Walter Ferguson, 213 W. Fairfax st., Falls Church, were charged with gambling at cards in a public place. Both pleaded guilty and were fined as stated.

Georgia Cover For Bootleg Ring Charged

Atlanta, Aug. 4 (AP).—Former Gov. M. E. Thompson and other Georgia political leaders were accused last night of protecting bootleggers who flooded the State's dry counties with illegal whisky.

A counterfeiting angle was added to the already sensational developments today.

State Revenue Commissioner Charles Redwine based his charges on testimony of a former revenue department official, a special State investigator and other State agents.

Redwine already has made his information and exhibits available to a Fulton (Atlanta) County grand jury.

The testimony, as quoted by Redwine, centered on the 1947-48 Thompson administration. The commissioner also mentioned former Gov. E. D. Rivers, Thompson's political friends, former Revenue Commissioners Glenn Phillips and Downing Musgrove, former liquor enforcement chief T. M. Price, and big liquor dealers.

Exhibits show more than one million dollars in 1300 illegal sales to dry counties in a six-month period, from June 14, 1948, to January 5, 1949, Redwine said.

He added they were seized in a raid on an Atlanta liquor wholesale firm. Seven cases of whisky also were confiscated. Redwin said the State tax stamps on this liquor were counterfeits.

The far-flung liquor ring apparently flourished under State protection, the commissioner charged.

Special Election In Pennsylvania To Draw Big Guns

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 4 (AP).—The major political parties are going to roll out their big guns for the special election in Pennsylvania's Twenty-sixth Congressional District September 13.

The election will name the successor to the late Representative Robert L. Coffey, jr., Democrat, killed in a jet plane crash last April.

His mother, Mrs. Robert Coffey, is the Democrats' candidate. The Republicans have nominated John P. Saylor, former Johnstown, Pa., lawyer.

The Republicans plan to send Gov. James Duff and Senator Edward Martin into the three-county district on stumping tours. Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., New York, will head the Democrats' speechmaking delegation.

Political experts see the election as a significant straw in the political wind.

Company to Stop Benzedrine Inhaler Sales

Philadelphia, Aug. 4 (AP).—Smith, Kline and French Laboratories said today it was withdrawing "benzedrine" inhalers from the market in favor of a new nasal inhaler called "benzedrex," which cannot be misused for stimulation purposes.

The company said "Benzedrex" gives relief to sufferers of head colds, hay fever and sinusitus by shrinking the nasal membranes as well as benzedrine, but does not stimulate the user.

Reports of misuse, particularly in penal institutions throughout the country, recently caused Representative George Grant (D., Ala.) to submit a bill in Congress, the effect of which would be to require a physician's prescription in order to obtain a benzedrine inhaler.

Murder Trial Bail Refusal Explained

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Judge Charles P. Hutchinson gave his reasons today for refusing to grant bail last week to the "Trenton six," awaiting a new trial on charges of murdering a 72-year-old shopkeeper.

The judge said that under the constitutional tests for persons accused of murder there was "proof or great presumption of involvement in the murder" on the part of the defendants. Such a situation, he said, prevented granting bail.

Fumes in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Aug. 4 (AP).—Experts sniffed for the source of a mysterious smell today. The peculiar odor, something like garlic or frying onions, covered large portions of the metropolitan area.

Good For Judd

Some of the mysteries about the arms bill still await elucidation. One of them is what was in the mind of the draftsmen when they inserted the provision that the President could designate any group or faction as a nation for purposes of supplying arms. On Wednesday there was much speculation on the subject at the hearings of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs. It had been taken for granted that the Administration put in the provision as bait to the China-minded. It looked as if it were a hint that some day, who knows, it might be necessary to arm a faction inside China, though don't spell it out, please. Representative Judd took cognizance of this interpretation, for he is one of the most ardent champions of action against the Chinese Communists. However, he said, if the clause were inserted in order to seduce him, he didn't like that kind of deviousness, and, moreover, any satisfaction he might otherwise have felt was completely offset by his distaste for the liberty with American institutions which such a grant of power to the President would involve.

Here was an illustration of the fact which has emerged from the House Committee hearings that the keenness of the House Foreign Affairs Committee is equaled only by its knowledge and its understanding of basic issues. Some of its members, veterans of the second World War, know more about the countries brought up in connection with MAP than some of the expert witnesses. Others have lived abroad, Mr. Judd, for instance, having spent many years of his life in China as a medical missionary. And all of them are informed with the spirit of American institutions. This makes them jealous of safeguarding those institutions as well as eager to be helpful in the pursuit of the balance of power upon which the country is now embarked.

The mysterious clause is one of the items in MAP that seem destined for disappearance. However, it would be interesting to know what was in the Administration's mind when such a request was made. The suggestion that it refers to a group in China is not generally held. Some say American counterintelligence was in view, others the Council on Free Europe, the body which has been founded to do propaganda back of the Iron Curtain. Now a report has it that the situation in Austria was envisaged. After the liberation of Austria, it is said, the fear is that the Communists might launch a coup and upset the Austrian government, when it would become a group requiring armed support. This is certainly a dim view to take of the Austrians—who have kept communism consistently at a 5 per cent level and whose experience of Soviet occupation has sickened them to their depths.

New Judgeships

Filling 27 judgeships, as President Truman must under the bill awaiting his signature, is a very large order. It gives the Administration one advantage, however—that of surveying the general needs of the bench and of making its appointments accordingly. If such a survey is made, one fact that will come strikingly to the fore is that a vast majority of the judges appointed in the last 16 years are members of one party. Regardless of how impartial individual judges may have been in rendering their decisions, the result has been to impair the general standing of the judiciary in the confidence of the people. It is good to know, therefore, that the Department of Justice intends to recommend well qualified Republicans as well as Democrats for many of the new positions that have been created.

The danger of building one-party courts is especially acute here in Washington. Out of 12 judges of the United States District Court, 11 are Democrats, as are five of the six members of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. This lack of balance is of concern to the judges themselves, for they are eager to have the courts staffed solely on the basis of training, experience and expertness in the law. Fortunately, the bill creating three new judgeships in each of these courts gives the President an excellent opportunity to give more weight to judicial qualifications and less to party membership.

Congress finally eliminated from the bill the amendments intended to discourage the excessive use of local judgeships as rewards to Federal officeholders. In this we think it showed good judgment, for the Constitution clearly leaves the qualifications of judicial nominees to the discretion of the President. But the effect is to emphasize the duty of the President to give due weight to the claims of the District bar to fair representation on the Federal benches here. At present the District Court has a number of judges from the local bar, but the Court of Appeals has only two members from the District which it serves. The amplitude of talent available for both these courts is indicated by the list of 18 lawyers recommended for the new judgeships by the District Bar Association. To be sure, not all of the 18 on the list are of equal caliber, but among them are highly distinguished men of the law who would be a credit to either the trial or the appellate court.

Ancient Mariner

Senator McCarran, who has his finger in a number of policy pies, has now thrust it into the future, and finds that war is inevitable. For this reason he says he is going to cast his vote for the MAP as submitted by the Administration on the ground that the country might as well put itself and its allies in a state of preparedness without delay. The bent of the mind that knows that a war is coming is surely not one to rely upon as a guide to policy, domestic or foreign. This country, we had thought, is not preparing for war, but is preparing to defend the peace, and this purpose officially underlines the Atlantic Pact and its companion piece in MAP. It should be clear, however, that if the administration of an armed alliance were in the hands of men like Senator McCarran the administrators could soon create the very thing that McCarran contemplates. For, if war is inevitable, the prudent thing to do is to force a preventive war while the atomic advantage belongs to America.

The country might well ask how many persons in high places accept the assumption of Senator McCarran. Since war is their trade, the military, of course, have always to be prepared for war. But this is a country where the civilian authority is supreme, and it is composed of men who, as their duty to the people, must "seek peace and pursue it." To seek peace is, of course, not to appease, for an appeasement, which generally consists of giving somebody else's property away, merely whets the appetite and spurs the courage of an aggressor. It means a course of action aimed at producing conditions which will reduce the prospect of war. This, in our opinion, is the reason that the Atlantic Pact gained the support of the American people, for they realized, after a disillusioning experience of noncooperation in peacemaking with the Soviet, that only the building up of a balance of power with the militarized Soviet would restrain the Soviet from aggression.

It is knowledge of the declared intentions of the United States as well as the overwhelming power of the United States that acts as a deterrent to the Soviet Union—nothing else. That this is because the United States has the atomic bomb, as Mr. Churchill has said, is only partly the truth. This country is pulsating with so much energy and alertness and determination as to inspire both respect and caution in the Politburo. That is why the pundits of its controlled press are watching with even more closeness than Wall Street the permutations of the American recession. We dare say that those permutations are the subject matter of 90 per cent of the reports to the Kremlin of Mr. Panyushkin and his colleagues. They see them as the first tremors of the "inevitable" slump they have been counting upon to enfeeble before attacking the United States. For, if it is logical that the United States would be the first to be attacked, it is logical that the invitation would not come before the United States has been weakened by economic adversity and political division. Why should the Russian attack when he feels sure, according to the gospel of St. Marx, that the United States has within it the seeds of its own collapse?

If McCarranism were widespread, then we would need to fear war coming from America, rather than from Russia. As it is, the Nevadan's comment will give the Kremlin fuel for its propaganda among the Russian people. In the Russian psyche there is a fear deep-rooted in racial experience. Out of both Asia and Europe incursions have periodically pillaged Russia—out of Asia: wave after wave of Tartars; out of Europe: the Poles, the Swedes, the French, and, in the present century, the Germans, twice and the British and Poles after the first World War, not considering the sell-out at Munich. Only the fittest in Russia have survived the bloodletting and, whatever they may think of their Bolshevist masters, they are bound to become more and more attached to their government as a result of McCarranism.

Serikat

Negotiations in Jogjakarta and Batavia between representatives of the Indonesian Republic and 15 non-Republican areas of the Dutch East Indies have, happily, ended in agreement on the framework of a future Indonesian federal government. The blueprint describes a type of constitutional and responsible government modeled on western republicanism. The accord is signaled in the name chosen for the projected independent federation: "Republik Indonesia Serikat." Serikat means "united," and unity within the islands has been the indispensable prerequisite to progress toward agreement with the Netherlands. Together with the cease-fire, which has just been announced, the agreement is a good omen, for the form of the future government is less important at the moment than the fact of agreement among previously hostile elements in Indonesia. The foundation is now furnished for the coming Hague round table negotiations between the Netherlands government and the Indonesians on the transfer of sovereignty to the islands and the creation of the Netherlands-Indonesian Union. It is to be hoped that Dutch helpfulness in Indonesia and Indonesian statesmanship will be maintained at The Hague.

Fourth Round

In a discussion of the steelworkers' demand for fourth round wage increases, published in The Washington Post, J. A. Livingston pointed out that the issues involved concern not merely the ability of the industry to meet these demands but also the effect of wage increases on steel prices. The union maintains that the high profits of the industry make it possible to raise wages and simultaneously cut prices. In reply spokesmen for the industry note that steel production has declined sharply in recent months, with the result that, even without wage increases, the cost of steel production per ton is rising, owing to the heavy volume of overhead fixed charges that have to be distributed over a reduced number of production units. Increases in wages under such conditions, the companies contend, cannot be absorbed. For they would cut into shrinking profit margins, and interfere with expansion, replacements, and improvements. The alternative, a rise in prices of steel products to offset the increased wage bill, would certainly be unwise at this time. It might, and probably would, result in a progressive shrinkage of demand that would further reduce the industry's output and add to unemployment.

Even the big steel companies that have reported extraordinarily high profits for the first half of the current year would have a large proportion of those profits swept away if they agreed to the demands of the steelworkers' union. Moreover, the operating rates of the industry are now sharply below the level of the first half of the year. The steel companies also have varying rates of profit. Some of them felt the effects of the business decline sooner than others, making smaller profits last year than in 1947. In any event, regardless of what they have been earning in recent months their ability to pay increased wages cannot be determined with reference to past profits.

It is safe to conclude, therefore, in view of present conditions and past experience of the effect of wage increases, that if the steelworkers succeed in obtaining substantial wage increases, the additional cost will be shifted to the public in the form of higher prices for steel products. Or, at best, assuming that the demand for steel revives with a pickup of general business activity, hopes for a reduction of steel prices will vanish, if wages are materially increased. To be sure, with higher wages, steelworkers will have more money to spend and their buying will help to sustain business activity. However, a much greater stimulus to buying would result from lower prices for steel and the many products whose prices are affected by the cost of steel.

Robert R. Nathan, who has provided the steelworkers' union with a battery of theoretical arguments to reinforce their demands, says: "Problems arise as to how the benefits of increased productivity should be shared between owners, workers and consumers, and these are partly a matter of labor-management negotiations and partly a matter of pricing policies of business." That is undoubtedly true; but if labor insists on taking for itself all the profits from increased productivity and better business in the form of higher wages, management will be powerless to control its pricing policies, and the benefits of progress will be unequally distributed, with the lion's share going to the strong labor organizations that are in a position to drive hard bargains.

Empty Scarecrow

The President's haste in nominating Mr. Clark to the Supreme Court and Senator McGrath to the Attorney Generalship stands in puzzling contrast to his procrastination in filling the chairmanship of the National Security Resources Board. This office has been unoccupied—except in the Congressional Directory—ever since Arthur Hill resigned last December.

The vacancy, of course, is not entirely the President's fault. He tried hard enough to get his crony, Mon C. Wallgren, approved, and refused for two months to withdraw the nomination after the Senate Armed Services Committee had tabled it. But he finally did so in May. Since then he has made no further nomination. Inaction on the surface, of course, does not prove inaction underneath. Perhaps the President now considers the job so important that it deserves a slow and careful search for the best possible man. This, if so, would be a welcome change of mind from his attitude in the Wallgren nomination.

However, the time surely has come for some kind of action. The NSRB is one of the most important of governmental bodies in the national defense organization because of its prime duty of coordinating military, industrial, and civilian mobilization, planning, and management. That is to say, it would be one of the most important bodies if it were not a body floundering around without a head. The President's apparent indifference to the state of national security resources planning is not in keeping with the urgency he imparts to such measures as MAP.

Promise To DPs

I want to thank you and Mr. F. Hechinger for bringing to your readers' attention on July 31, the plight of the displaced persons in Germany and Austria.

Nine long years, first as prisoners of war of the Nazis and then in D. P. camps with bad food, clothing worn all this time, with little chance of obtaining anything better, no chance to work and now no hope of emigration.

A friend of mine recently visited the D. P. camp in Munich where there are hundreds of war invalids, young veterans and families living in the most deplorable condition, with no privacy except behind the rags of blankets they have hung in front of their beds.

When the war ended all these people were happy to see the United States Army come into Germany. Now they have the look of hopelessness in their faces for they know only that next year IRO will close most of the camps, and they are in a country where they are hated, with no work and no hope. They may not even write to their loved ones for fear of reprisals, and cannot go back to their own country for they would have to adopt communism or be eliminated.

Sterling North wrote a review of a book on camp life and he said, "After reading this bitter experience in camps we should either make good our promise engraved on the Statue of Liberty or admit our change of heart, and obliterate the evidence of our lost idealism, carved like an eternal accusation on the still unweathered stone."

Church and State

Regardless of the merits or the demerits of the Spellman-Roosevelt dispute, it seems unfortunate that talk of the inviolability of "separation of church and state" should be so loosely used in the controversy.

While the Constitution prohibits the establishment of a state church, the Government, from the establishment of the Republic up to the present, has spent millions upon millions in religious work.

The Senate and House have always had their paid chaplains, West Point and Annapolis have had both chaplains and elaborate chapels and each Army and Navy post has its chapel and chaplains, all paid out of public funds, while a vast amount of property in every State is exempted from taxation because of ownership by churches.

I am not contending for abolishing religious services. But the point is that the slogan on separation is now being used for convenience without going into the real meaning of the term. If these people using the slogan are sincere, why not go the whole way and stop appropriations and tax exemptions related to religion? Otherwise, why depend upon the slogan on the relatively small appropriations to partially feed and transport children in private schools?

For Children Only

I suggest that someone build an apartment house for families with children only. It should be a large unit built around a court to serve as a playground with a wading pool. Trees should be planted all around.

Couples with children like to live where there are other children. I think whoever starts this will go down in history as a real benefactor.

Pools and Disease

Proponents of segregated swimming advance the argument that Negroes, and some other minorities are large carriers of infectious disease and hence there is greater risk of pool contamination in "mixed" use of pools.

Dr. Ruhland, D. C. Health Officer, in a letter to the writer states that, "the disease dangers possible in swimming pools which meet the sanitary requirements of the Health Department are negligible."

Dr. Paul B. Cornely, noted public health authority says there is "no evidence that mixed use of swimming pools has been a factor in the increased transmission of disease." With reference to skin infections, Dr. Cornely says, "There is no evidence that Negroes have any more skin infection than white individuals and . . . individuals with skin lesions, Negroes or whites, should not be allowed in pools." There are no facts to show that whites have acquired gonococci infection from mixed swimming pool contacts. There is no evidence to show that Negroes suffer from conjunctivitis more than whites.

On the other hand typhus fever, hook worm and infestation of the hair with lice is greater among whites than Negroes. Poliomyelitis gives grave concern to medical authorities as to its transmissibility through swimming pools but statistics show that the incidence of polio is less among Negroes.

British Royalty

Is "U. S. Citizen" (letter printed August 2) really naive enough to imagine he has solved the dollar problem which is plaguing the best brains of Europe and America? He has, of course, overlooked the elementary fact that his majesty is paid in sterling currency. The nation's internal revenue does not affect the dollar shortage. Internally Britain is as prosperous as at any time in her history. The royal family is not financed by America's millions.

It is unfortunate that this "U. S. Citizen" is still living in the bold, bad days of the third George. Otherwise he would recognize that this "dying custom" of royalty, which never enjoyed better health than in Britain today, has united more nations in peaceful harmony than any other system of human government in this world's history.

In a revolutionary age the monarchy has given to Britain two things which most of this world stands sadly in need of: stability and continuity.

Upon the good understanding of the American and British peoples depends the peace of the world. Their greatest enemies are ignorance and prejudice. It would be more profitable for "U. S. Citizen" to turn his destructive talent upon those forces which seek to undermine democracy, than to attack an age-old institution which has proved itself so eminently beneficial.

Honor for Hoover

The other night during his radio address, Mr. Wallace mentioned the name of Herbert Hoover disparagingly. Mr. Hoover was the first American in public life to warn this country against Russia after the recent war. Surely, this country should do honor to the only living former President on August 10, his seventy-fifth birthday.

"Policy In The East"

Your attempts to differentiate between different kinds of communism in your August 2 editorial "Policy In The East," reminds me of the story that is going around about the difference between a snooper and a snuff manufacturer. The snooper has his nose in everybody's business while the snuff manufacturer has his business in everybody's nose. Putting our nose in China's business is essential so long as China's business is in our nose. Personally, I don't believe that the Communists of China are going to be affected one way or the other by foreign intervention.

The things that China needs are so basic and so fundamental that intervention or nonintervention affect them only as they tend to allay those needs.

These facts about China are basic. China cannot feed or clothe her millions. Before the war and during the war those chronic needs of China were assuaged by first, foreign capital imports; tourism; remittances from Chinese abroad. Then came the war and then UNRRA and ECA. Since 1945 these sources from the United States have been drying up. Turmoil and revolution have resulted. Whole armies deserted from the source that was drying up to adhere to the new source that seemed to be opening up. Labels had nothing to do with it. The movement was more basic, on the process level, following the course of immediate survival.

Under these conditions, the exact brand of China's communism is inconsequential, the exact extent to which intervention would nudge China toward Moscow is beside the point; analogies with the American revolution and Burke's commentaries thereon are entirely extraneous.

Let us keep our eyes on the main targets which every Chinese is aiming at. That target is food. And no matter how you disguise it or dress it up in such 10-dollar symbols as "ultracentralism" or the "chronic inability of a fragmented agriculture to support a teeming population," the problem and the target remained unaffected.

The Chinese do not particularly care whether Americans, Russians or Icelanders feed them; China wants to be fed. If our intervention meant food to China, China would forget all about "ultracentralism." If Russian intervention means food to China, then we are wasting our time "thinking of ways and means of loosening and eventually breaking" "the tie between this Nationalist communism of China and the ultracentralism of Moscow."

And just as we can't feed China with symbols, neither can Russia. If after a reasonable period of starvation under the portrait of Stalin, the Chinese tummy is still painfully contracted, the "foreign devils" thought responsible for that particular plight of China will be treated like all "foreign devils" always have been treated by the Chinese, bled white and then cast off. Unless, therefore, we become realistic in our policy toward China, we are merely wasting our time. The question we must face is not "Is China worth saving" but "Is China worth feeding?" Apparently, we don't at the moment, think so. Apparently, Russia, at the moment does.

Washington Calling

Compromise On Arms

BEHIND THE closed doors of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg made a plea as eloquent as any in his long career. It was a plea addressed primarily to Secretary of State Dean Acheson, who sat in the witness chair.

Vandenberg was pleading for a new approach by the Administration to the arms aid program. He was arguing for a compromise that would assure Europe that the Senate and the President were not in any fundamental disagreement over the need to build up through mutual aid the security of the Western Powers.

Committee members, both Republican and Democratic, were impressed with the case made by the Senator from Michigan. At times in the informality of the committee room he expressed himself in homely vernacular to hammer home his point.

Repeatedly Vandenberg stressed the need to convince Europe that there is a wide area of agreement. If Europe gets the idea that the Senate is beating the State Department to its knees, then the psychological reaction will be such as to nullify much of the benefit from any arms program.

THE DIFFICULTY of those who stand in the middle position on the arms issue has not been fully appreciated. The group that includes Senators John Foster Dulles of New York, Alexander Smith of New Jersey and Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts is just as convinced as anyone in the Administration that failure to approve any arms aid at this session would be a calamity.

But they also are convinced that an unyielding stand behind the Administration bill calling for $1,450,000,000 of aid will bring about that calamity. This, the middle-of-the-roaders believe, is playing directly into the hands of those who hope to see the aid program killed off.

One feature of the Administration bill certain to be killed off no matter what the final outcome is the sweeping provision authorizing the President to send arms anywhere in his own discretion. This covers not merely any "nation" but, under the definitions in the bill, "any group" within a nation.

Essentially, however, the compromise of the middle-of-the-roaders is concerned with the amount to be voted at this session of Congress. Vandenberg's argument before the committee was that ratification of the Atlantic Pact had created a new situation.

UNTIL A SYSTEM of mutual aid can be set up, as provided in Article IX of the pact, it is mistaken to appropriate any substantial armaments. This would mean implementation of the pact completely outside the provisions of "self-help and mutual aid." While the point was not pressed in the effort to persuade Acheson to a compromise, there are those who feel that action now on any sizable scale would put the United States in the position of setting out on its own to arm the world.

But quite apart from technicalities in connection with the pact, the weighty argument of the compromisers is with respect to strategy. To try to get all is to take a serious risk of getting nothing.

Time after time Vandenberg has demonstrated his skill as a compromiser. He prevented what might have been an irreconcilable split in Republican ranks over foreign policy at the Mackinac Island conference in September, 1943.

Vandenberg had renounced his own isolationism, having become convinced that this country could no longer live alone. But within his party were powerful isolationist forces determined to beat down such internationalists as Warren Austin, then Senator from Vermont and now the United States representative to the United Nations.

"You can't go too fast," Vandenberg said at Mackinac. "You have to bring people along with you if you're to be of any use."

The Mackinac declaration came out for participation by the United States in a world organization. But it contained qualifications about the rights of sovereign nations.

Men of ardent conviction find it hard to accept the Vandenberg type of compromise. It is always difficult to recede from a position publicly taken. But if the Republicans sincerely believe it is, then the time has come to swallow pride and take what it is possible to get.

Ties That Bind

The Nation shuddered when television suggested that the President addressed the Nation without a tie, and breathed again only when it was proved that the tie had not been absent, only blue! Edward R. Murrow had the courage to lash out against the phobia that ordains an eight-layer choker for a man's neck in all weathers.

Ask any woman if it cools and impresses her to go out with a man who is not only strangled with a tie, but boxed into a long-sleeved coat.

Just try a hot weather fashion of open necks and short-sleeved shirts for all males, including Presidents, the military, Congressmen, salesmen, policemen, musicians, bus drivers, postal workers, and gentlemen of leisure, and you'd boost national morale in 24 hours!

We suggest a committee to investigate the strangle-hold, in all temperatures, of the tie and coat habit, over the freedom-boasting American male!

Matter Of Fact

Nehru

New Delhi, India.—In a few weeks the most remarkable and probably the most important political leader in Asia will for the first time visit the United States. The prospective visitor is Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Prime Minister of India.

Nehru's visit will be an event of great importance, simply because the relationship between the United States and this enormous country will in large part determine the outcome of the Soviet Union's ruthless power drive in Asia. The visit should also be more interesting than most such occasions of state, simply because Nehru is an extraordinarily interesting man.

HE IS A MAN of many contradictions. More than any other man except Mahatma Gandhi, Nehru forced the British to relinquish power in India. Yet his most striking surface characteristic is his Englishness. Even in the baggy cotton uniform of the Indian independence movement, he manages to look the perfect English gentleman, handsome, quietly humorous, politely distant. Nehru went to Harrow, and at first his accent sounds straight English public school. It is only after some time that one senses an odd liquidity in the accent, an underlayer of emotion and mysticism in the man, which are wholly un-English, wholly Indian.

He shares certain superficial characteristics with Franklin Delano Roosevelt. He has the same dark circles under the eyes, the same way of holding a cigarette in a long holder, the same handsome regularity of feature, the same restless energy, above all the same conscious charm consciously employed as an enormously effective weapon of persuasion. Yet essentially no two men could be more different. Roosevelt was a born politician—Nehru is a politician only by the accident of history. He is an intellectual, an idealist, primarily interested, not in the dull business of government, but in ideas.

When this reporter interviewed him, for example, Nehru was obviously bored by questions about the immediate issues of policy. Yet in response to a question about the general relationship between nationalism and communism in Asia, he launched into a long and brilliant abstract discussion. (Briefly, he believes that when the Communists last year took up arms against the nationalist government here, in Burma and in Indonesia, they divorced themselves from Asiatic nationalism, and thus lost their supreme opportunity in Asia.)

Nehru suffers from the old dilemma of the idealist intellectual; the conflict between the ideal and the real. He is, for example, a convinced Socialist. Like many other Socialists, he sympathized for a long time with the Soviet Union's "Socialist experiment." He is also a deeply sincere civil libertarian; he spoke and wrote more bitterly of the British suspension of civil liberties than of any other aspect of British rule.

Yet between such ideals and political reality in India today there is a wide gulf. The Indian Communists have been using every possible technique, from acid bombs to open insurrection, to destroy the authority of the government. In self-protection, Nehru has been forced to jail more political prisoners than ever the British jailed.

THIS CONFLICT between the ideal and the real leads to some strange results. Recently Nehru risked assassination to go to Calcutta to hearten the people against the Communist terror there. Ostensibly for this purpose, he made one of his famous impromptu speeches, which are more like soul-searching soliloquies than political speeches. The main theme of the speech was Nehru's admiration for "Communist ideals."

It is this sort of thing—and there have been many similar incidents—which has led a minority of foreign observers here to dismiss Nehru as a weak though brilliant man, a sort of Hamlet incongruously cast in the role of political leader. These observers credit the miracle of keeping the Indian state functioning through these terrible years entirely to the tough, practical, aged Vice Premier Sardar Patel. It is certainly true that if Patel were to die, the creaking machinery of government in India might well break down.

Yet it is also true that if Nehru were to die (or be killed, which is more likely) the heart would go out of the new Indian state. For since Gandhi's death, Nehru has become a symbol, a rallying point, a focus for India's threatened and precarious unity. This may be because, whether or not he is an authentic great man, he has at least one characteristic of greatness—as sensitively as a finely regulated barometer records the weather, Nehru reflects the mood of the Indian people.

That mood, like Nehru's, is now one of inner conflict, of disillusion. The disillusion springs from the fact that since the British quit India, the lot of the Indian masses has become, if anything, worse than it was, simply because there is not enough food. That is one reason why Nehru is going to the United States. For a little help, some surplus wheat, some irrigation equipment, could reverse the process of creeping disillusion which is playing into Communist hands. And this help should be forthcoming, unless the United States is prepared ultimately to see India go the way of China.

GOP Asks Senate 'Must' List For Aid in Early Adjournment

Senate Republicans yesterday held two party huddles on the outlook for Congressional adjournment and came up with this offer:

If Democratic leaders would spell out the full legislative program, listing all "musts," Republicans would "cooperate" to their utmost to limit debate and speed the parting day.

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.), whose Democratic policy makers recently turned down a similar proffer by GOP Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.), indicated he would do so again.

"They want us to lay down a program that would enable them to clear out in about two weeks. Then they would go home and say this Congress didn't do anything."

Senator Eugene Millikin (R., Colo.), chairman of the Senate Republican conference, told newsmen:

"This session doesn't seem to be getting anywhere. It is just wasting time and denying members an opportunity to go home and get acquainted with grass roots sentiment."

He said Republican Senators were "shocked at the complete lack of program and direction."

"Obviously we can't cooperate on a program until we know what it is," said Millikin. "But we are not going to get ourselves in the position of running out when there's work to do."

Millikin said Republicans considered among other things a proposal by Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) for Congress to recess from late August to mid-November so members could "take a refresher course" from the people. They reached no decision.

Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) said Democratic leaders "want to adjourn but don't know how to."

"They want us to bail them out by forcing an adjournment, and we are not going to do it," said Aiken. "They want to be able to say a coalition blocked their program."

All GOP Senators attended the adjournment huddle after the subject was considered at an earlier meeting of the Senate GOP Policy Committee.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) said Republican Senators want an early adjournment "but we probably can't fix any exact date."

"That would enable Senators to filibuster or block any plan to speed up legislation," said Taft.

Government Agency Manual Now Available

White House May Press for School Aid

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

President Truman may call House Administration leaders to the White House within the next few days to press for action this session on Federal aid to education, Capitol Hill sources speculated yesterday.

The White House would neither affirm nor deny that such a meeting was contemplated.

House school help supporters pointed out that although the Chief Executive made Federal aid to education one of his major campaign issues last fall, the situation in the House is such that only an urgent White House appeal is likely to bring the bill to the floor.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) has never favored Federal aid to education, and other Administration leaders have freely predicted the bill is dead for this session.

Won't Give Up Hope

Congressional advocates of national help to the hard-pressed school systems, however, have refused to give up hope. They believe the President is very likely to try to get this much of his domestic program particularly in view of other reverses the Administration has been suffering.

The Senate has already passed a 300-million-dollar compromise annual school aid bill, but so far all school help bills have been bottled up in the House Education and Labor Committee.

Members of the committee had expected a meeting to be called yesterday, but Chairman John Lesinski (D., Mich.) did not call one.

Meanwhile four members of the committee, Representatives Hugo S. Sims (D., S. C.), Carl D. Perkins (D., Ky.), Tom Steed (D., Okla.) and Andrew Jacobs (D., Ind.) addressed a letter to Lesinski requesting that the committee meet to discuss the Senate-passed bill.

"This won't get you anywhere," Lesinski told Sims when the latter handed him the letter. Subsequently Lesinski told inquiring committeemen there would be no meeting of the committee this week. He was vague about whether one would be held next week or not.

Steed yesterday notified House leaders he would not back the Administration's new compromise on minimum wages unless a meeting to discuss the Senate-passed aid to education bill is called.

House Democratic leaders had hoped to send the compromise minimum wage bill to the floor next Monday approved by a majority of the House Labor Committee, but they are unlikely to be able to do it without Steed's support. Most issues in the committee this year have been decided on a 13-to-12 roll call with Steed usually the pivotal vote.

Steed said that while he helped draft the Administration's compromise measure he was withdrawing his promise to support it.

"I promised to go along on this," he said, "but since the House leadership has broken its promises on aid to education I am withdrawing my promise on minimum wages."

Meanwhile the four who want the committee to vote on the Senate-passed bill are backing a move to force a meeting by petition. If they can get nine more signatures over the week-end they can file the petition with the clerk of the committee Monday, and under the rules of the House a meeting will have to be held within three days.

The Senate bill would leave it to each State to determine whether any part of its Federal aid should go to private schools. The bill by Representative Graham Barden (D., S. C.), favorably reported by a House subcommittee, would forbid use of any of the money for any but public schools.

Sims said yesterday that the Senate-passed bill could have been reported out last Tuesday if members had had an opportunity to vote on it with amendments.

Truman Sees No '49 Repeal Of War Taxes

President Truman said yesterday nothing can be done about repealing any wartime excise taxes before the next session of Congress.

He told his news conference that a lot of research by congressional committees and the Treasury is required.

This appeared to put the crusher on any forlorn hopes remaining that Congress might respond to demands for knocking out some or all of these taxes this session.

However, Beardsley Ruml, former chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, said at Murray Bay, Quebec, that the wartime excise rates should and could be repealed by August 15.

He declared the rates "are producing an ever widening black depression in affected industries," adding:

"If all business were equally depressed we would have between 10,000,000 and 12,000,000 unemployed. Excises applied to the cost of doing business, such as transportation and communication, are pyramided and raise costs and prices to the consumer of every article of commerce."

Mr. Truman himself had sought to kill the excise tax on freight. His view was that repeal would be a basic business stimulant that might lead to lower consumer prices.

But House Democratic Leader McCormack said last week after a conference with the President that the subject of excise taxes could not be opened without risking a broadside repeal that might cost $1,700,000,000 in revenues without new taxes to replace them.

The wartime excises are increases or new taxes on sales of a long list of items such as furs, jewelry, railroad tickets and theater admissions. They differ from other excises of a permanent nature.

The President's Calling List

President Truman yesterday had the following White House appointments:

10:30 a. m.—Press-radio conference.

11—Senator Green (D., R. I.)

11:30—Representative Kruse (D., Ind.)

11:45—W. T. Kennedy, new president Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

12 noon—Representative Celler (D., N. Y.).

12:15 p. m.—President signs H. R. 4566, revising U. S. code of dealing with the Coast Guard.

Budget Bureau Uses 'Millibucks,' 'Billibucks'

Budget Bureau personnel, weary of the many ciphers that are routine in their bookkeeping these days, have devised a handy shortcut, it was discovered yesterday.

In office parlance and interoffice memos, the bigger items on the Federal cost sheets are now referred to as "a millibuck" or "a billibuck." Saves work and avoids confusion, they point out.

D.C. Appliance Sales Slump, Except Video

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington sales of electric appliances, with the big exception of television, suffered a sharp decline in the first six months this year.

In addition, price slashes and cut-throat competition reduced profit margins. One of the first fields where supplies exceeded demand in the postwar period, appliance dealers currently are in the midst of an adjustment period. They are trying to pare inventories and clear slow-moving stocks. Also, they are attempting to keep up with fast-changing models.

Extent of the sales drop this year is reflected by figures released yesterday by the Electric Institute of Washington. Television was the one bright spot, sales totaling 15,450 in the first six months and more than doubling the same 1948 period. Apparently, this gain was at the expense of radio sets, whose sales were nearly halved in the same period.

The six-month sales figures also showed sharp decreases in washers, refrigerators, ranges and other items.

Here is the sales picture for June and the first six months as compared with the like periods last year:

	—June—		—Six Months—
	1948	1949	1948	1949
Television	1573	2690	7454	15,450
Radio sets	2820	3082	38,145	19,768

OUT OF THE RED: American Airlines, Inc., reported a profit of $3,536,000 for the first six months, after provision of $90,000 for Federal income taxes. The normal tax was substantially reduced by the carry-forward of losses sustained in 1948. For the first six months of 1948 the loss was $4,098,000. Revenues of $49,752,000 for the period exceeded those for the like 1948 period by 29 per cent. Total operating expenses, including depreciation, were up 8 per cent.

ODD LOTS: Auto output this week is estimated at 144,445 units, compared with 140,046 last week . . . American Building Association of Washington, observing its seventy-fifth anniversary tomorrow, has resources exceeding 28 million dollars . . . A confidential survey indicates that television hikes a family's electric bill by $6 a year . . . Beer and ale sales in the first six months amounted to 40,787,916 barrels, a new all-time record . . . Net increase in savings held by savings and loan associations in the first five months totaled 617 million dollars, 48.7 per cent greater than in the same 1948 period, according to the United States Savings and Loan League.

EARNINGS: Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., reported net income of $1,709,319 or $1 a share for the 26 weeks ended July 2, compared with $2,288,237 or $1.33 a share in the same 1948 period. Other earnings reports:

Human Faults Get Blame for Divorce

a thin-built man, his skin drawn tight over the angular bones of his face. His voice is so soft-pitched that the man will have to listen closely to catch what he is saying.

3 Hourly Visits a Week

The man has started on a road the end of which no one can see. He will get no pat answers here, no promises. And he will leave his business perhaps three times a week to visit this tiny office, an hour at a time, and for many, many months.

It will cost him folding money, too. A complete psychiatric examination in Washington runs from $10 to $100. Subsequent treatment costs, usually, $10 an hour if the psychiatrist is a young man, up to $25 an hour if he's older and more experienced. Prices in the psychiatrist's office, as at so many stops on the divorce road, are conditioned somewhat on ability to pay.

Then there are the various clinics which charge only nominal fees, though some of these have a long waiting list, what with broken and breaking marriages strewing the Washington scene.

But the man with the alcoholic wife and in love with another woman is seeing a private psychoanalyst, and at $15 a visit he will be paying $45 a week in the hope of straightening out his direly complicated life.

Patient Talks About Self

What is that hour—Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 11—like? On the man's part it is an hour mostly of talking—anything he wants to talk about, but it will be about his life.

On the psychoanalyst's part—an hour of listening and being extremely observant, of picking up what he considers are cues to the patient's real problems.

The patient may lie on the couch, the theory being that if he is fully relaxed he will talk more easily. For the same reason the window blinds may be drawn, so that the office is dark and the cacophony of streetcars from the avenue below becomes perhaps only a distant hum out of another life. Behind the patient, at the head of the couch and out of sight, sits the psychoanalyst . . . listening.

Sometimes the patient sits in a chair with his back to the psychiatrist. And sometimes the conversational position is normal, facing each other.

Some Take Notes, Others Don't

Some psychiatrists take notes at the time. Some use shorthand. Some use recording machines, though there is a school of thought among psychiatrists that opposes this on the grounds the patient will be more reluctant to talk if he knows his secret thoughts are going down in such a permanent form, and spoken by his own voice. Some, for the same reason, take no notes, trusting their memory to record the interview after the patient has left.

And then there is another way to get at the patient's real person. The psychoanalyst brought out a mammoth stack of hand-and-type-written pages. They were fabulous things to read, for they were the innermost thoughts, the fantasies, the daydreams of his patients as they had put them down at home, in that process called free association, to bring to him.

One stack, held together by a fresh clip, was authored by the man with the alcoholic wife. The man who was undecided, not knowing if it would be right, about leaving this wife for the woman he loved.

Passages of it made you jump, not at the idea that people think such things but that here they were on paper, first person singular . . . that this man might be anyone, might be your boss, the man in the hand-tailored sharkskin suit, the man who gives you dictation day in and day out, who thrice weekly at 10:45 leaves the office for a mysterious appointment.

"I wish my wife were dead. Then it would be simple. If my wife were dead, everything would be simple . . ."

Looking for Easy Way

It hardly, one thought while waiting for the blood to come warm again, takes a psychoanalyst to arrive at the conclusion of the one who has this man for a patient: "He is looking for the easy out instead of facing reality and working out his problems."

Actually, the psychoanalyst said, it is not at all unusual for a man in this one's predicament to wish—to himself or to his psychoanalyst—that his wife were dead. The statement was readily believable. It was seeing the wish in the man's own, naked handwriting that brought you out of your chair.

Now, in another passage, the man has doubts . . .

"But suppose I did leave my wife and marry ——— . . . Would I be able to satisfy her, would I be a good husband to her . . ."

Cue to the psychoanalyst: "This man is not sure of his ability to cope with his problems."

And again, from the hand written notes: "I day dreamed that I gave my boss a swell idea for the business. He said, Jones, you're a genius, and that raise will start next week . . . Driving home today, I saw a beautiful Georgian house I'd like to have and sitting in front of it a long, green Packard convertible, and I day dreamed that I went to the races and won $10,000 . . ."

Cue to the psychoanalyst: "This man has wrong values: He places too much store on money."

And so it may go on for months, no end in sight now, but the man is getting there, the psychoanalyst believes . . .

Before picking up on his story again, he diverged to tell of other cases.

One which he turned down was that of a husband in whose coat pocket his wife found letters from another woman. The wife, whose personality one could perhaps best describe as "dominant," told him she would leave him unless he took psychiatric treatment for a prolonged period.

"Just an excuse with her," the psychoanalyst said crisply. "So she could say later, 'I gave him every opportunity to change . . .'"

Force Not Proper Entree

The husband said okay, he would see a psychiatrist—provided his wife saw one, too, for if there was anyone in the family who needed to see a psychiatrist, he averred, she was it.

The psychoanalyst declined to have anything to do with all this mess: "Being forced to see a psychiatrist is not a proper basis for the practice of psychiatry." So he simply—and very courteously—told the couple that his schedule was full and gave them the name of another psychiatrist to see.

What about the causes of divorce, and their cure, as the psychiatrist sees them?

There are any number of books which will list very neatly for you, all tied up in packages, the six or the nine or the eleven-and-a-half chief reasons for divorce . . . money, religion, sex and so on.

The average psychiatrist is very unlikely to be so pat.

Emotional Growth Needed

The psychiatrist, this one was saying, sees marital problems, like other emotional aches and pains, as deriving from basic failings in the structure of the individual personality. And their cure as being the emotional development of that personality. Marital discord is only an indicator of a deeper personal shortcoming.

"If I had to say one thing as to the cause of a bad marriage, it would be that people are too dependent on each other. Happiness cannot lie in another person—but only in yourself. These women I get who sit around Washington and say my husband doesn't make me happy! When they should be getting together with their neighbors, gardening, anything . . ."

The psychiatrist aims at the goal of bringng the patient to a state where he can make up his own mind about his problems.

"When I was a sophomore in the business," one said, "I used to tell my patients exactly what they should do. I very quickly learned that they went out and did the exact opposite.

Now He Just Finds Facts

"Now I just try to bring out all the facts surrounding their problem. Then I tell them, 'You make up your own mind . . . this is your life . . . you're the one who has to live with this woman—I don't.'"

The psychoanalyst with the Himalayan range of day dreaming pages puts them away and expressed a similar sentiment.

So that the man with the alcoholic wife—no matter how many Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays he continues to come to this tiny office with the ascetic air—will get no answer that, yes, the thing for him to do is chuck her and shuffle off to Buffalo with that other woman he loves.

"My course of action in this case," the psychoanalyst said in a voice so soft you had to be very quiet to hear, "is simply to delay action until the man understands himself better. When that happens he will need no psychoanalyst, or anybody else, to tell him to get rid or not to get rid of his wife. He will be able to make up his own mind. When that happens he will be a man, and a human personality again."

DUPONT HIT—Anna Magnani and Massimo Girotti as the shrewish wife and the car-stealing husband in "Woman Trouble," the Italian comedy on the Dupont screen

Female 'Basilio'

The Music's Original in C. U. 'Barber'

As its final offering of three palys, Catholic University's drama department goes scholastic with a production of Beaumarchais' "The Barber of Seville."

This is the comedy which inspired Rossini's long-loved opera, and though this "original version" omits Rossini's music, it wisely includes some songs and original music by Ed Cashman, with the composer at the piano.

For although Director Dick Sykes and his cast inject a combination of the coy and frantic, comedy ages fast. Only a genius in theatrical technique could probably blow the dust off this classic and, hardworking though the present C. U. company may be, genius is not in evidence.

James Waring's setting and lighting are finely in the modern spirit, however, which, for the purposes of this report, makes him a rose among thorns.

I was mildly astonished to find that, evidently in order to give employment to the affable Eileen Whyte, Beaumarchais' original music master, Basilio, had been changed to a female, which the program blithely lists as Basilia. Which just goes to show you how theater can affect the most original-minded scholars.

Teddy Marie Kinsey, who must be awfully tired of those Kinsey jokes, is a charming Rosina. Robert Moore is Almaviva, Louis Camuti Figaro, Bill McGuire the Notary and Gordon Golden the Justice. Diana Shane and Cassie Meer play two arch maidens archly.

The play will continue in the university's campus theater through next Tuesday evening.—R. L. C.

One on the Aisle—

'Home of Brave' Courageous Film

By Richard L. Coe

WHILE ONE CAN'T help feeling a trifle sardonic about doing so, you should decidedly go to the Trans-Lux to see "Home of the Brave."

This is an excellent picture on several levels. Its story is engrossing, closely-knit, its dialogue immense natural. The acting is fine and the comparatively modest production costs belie the tradition that it takes millions to make a good film. It has courage in stating its theme forcefully and heart in tackling it so passionately.

That theme is tolerance, and if its ending strikes you, as a Washingtonian, as pat, you can't be blamed for wondering what happens to the hero after he returns to his country, a country whose Capital is so baldly hypocritical.

For the hero of "Home of the Brave" is a Negro soldier, a surveyor who goes into a jungle island of the South Pacific to lay plans for its subsequent invasion. How this Negro fares with his four white companions forms a skein of sensitive relationships.

One of the men knew him well, was his buddy on a New Jersey high school basketball team. Though the natural social barriers were felt in their after-school relationship, there was some trust between these two. Still, neither, at heart, is fully assured.

Corpl. T. J. was a "success" in civilian life, in his present rank hating the Army, too blind to see that his enlisted rank is much the same sort of thing under which Moss, the Negro, has lived from birth. He has open scorn for the Negro.

Major Robinson, aware of his youth but more so of his responsibilities, is abashed at the necessity which gives him a Negro and three white men to command, inherently distrusts the situation, but his zeal to do a job well ultimately carries him along to respect for the dark-skinned soldier.

Justifiable Flashback

Sergeant Mingo, second in command, takes life as it comes, people on trust. He recognizes the differences and the problem of race relationship realistically and, of them all, it is his approach which is the most solid.

After their mapping mission has been all but completed, the Japs ambush the party, fatally wounding the longtime friend, Finch. Just before the fatal shot, Finch had, in the heat of anger, told the ——, —— N—— to get down. He didn't quite say Negro, but there was a fatal moment of hesitation before he changed it to a kidding name. However, Moss is stunned to find he is glad Finch is dead. This shock to his spirit paralyzes his legs.

Only until an understanding doctor and the realistic Mingo explain to him that his relief at Finch's death came from the knowledge that otherwise he might have stopped the bullet with his own life, does the Negro recover. He and Mingo, who's lost an arm, return to the States to start the restaurant of which Moss and Finch had dreamed.

The story is told in flashback, and for once that treatment is justified, as is the psychologist who has much more to uncover than lush libidos. By the marvels of war-developed medicine, he's able to get at the root of the Negro soldier's subconscious and so to heal him by manly truth.

"HOME OF THE BRAVE," a United Artists release, produced by Stanley Kramer, directed by Mark Robson, screenplay by Carl Foreman based on the play by Arthur Laurents, music by Dimitri Tiomkin. At the Trans-Lux.

THE CAST

Maj. Robinson	Douglas Dick
T. J.	Steve Brodie
Doctor	Jeff Corey
Finch	Lloyd Bridges
Mingo	Frank Lovejoy
Moss	James Edwards
Colonel	Cliff Clark

Splendidly Performed

Carl Foreman's screen play is adapted from a stage drama of the same name by Arthur Laurents, whose original, flashbacks and medical uses, has been carefully followed, except that the hero was a Jew, not a Negro. "Home of the Brave" opened at New York's Belasco Theater four years ago, but just as the play was catching on, the records show, the theater lease was withdrawn.

The film company is excellent, with James Edwards giving a finely restrained performance of Moss. Jeff Corey's doctor is admirably natural and the four men, Douglas Dick, as the youthful major; Lloyd Bridges, as the old friend; Steve Brodie as T. J., and Frank Lovejoy as Mingo, are first rate.

There is an excellent score by Dimitri Tiomkin, who gets needlessly lush only for Finch's death scene. Mark Robson directed and "Home of the Brave" is a credit to all concerned.

Indians Cuff Nats Twice, Cut Yanks' Lead to 2½

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

About Pitchers:

THE BEST PITCHER in the American League is ambidextrous, belongs to the New York Yankees, draws two salaries and is known tc Yankee fans as Allie Page. He's a composite of Right Hander Allie Reynolds and Southpaw Joe Page, who between them, have rolled up 20 wins for the Yankees against a merc five defeats.

Their winning format is simple. Reynolds goes as far as he can, and then Page moves in. Only once, while being credited with 11 victories and two defeats, has Reynolds gone the full distance. When Page isn't saving Reynolds' games, he's winning them on his own.

POVICH

Big Page is reminiscent of another Yankee relief pitching specialist of a few years back—Johnny Murphy. In the lengthening afternoon shadows, it was Murphy who used to trudge to the mound to save ball games for Lefty Gomez. Reynolds has not yet expressed himself on the help he has been getting from Page, but Gomez always had a proper appreciation for Murphy's assistance.

Thus it was that when Gomez was asked in spring training one season how many games he thought he would win, he had a ready answer: "I dunno. You'd better ask Murphy."

KEN HEINTZELMAN of the Phils, who has been around for a dozen years, was royally snubbed when Billy Southworth failed to name him as one of the National League All-Star team's pitchers. At the time, Heintzelman had the best record of any pitcher in the league, 10 wins and 2 defeats, and unquestionably deserved the honor.

Since the All-Star game, Heintzelman hasn't been the same good pitcher. He has been whacked hard in his latest starts, and Philly fans are blaming the snub by Southworth. Speaking of Heintzelman, one of 'em is sympathetic. "There's a guy," he says, "who's pitching with a broken heart."

UP IN BOSTON the other day, 35-year-old Ellis Kinder of the Red Sox struck out 14 Browns and achieved a new record for American League strikeouts in a single game this season. Kinder needed only one more victim to equal the 15 strikeouts of the Boston immortal, Joe Wood, all-time high for a Red Sox pitcher.

The surprising feature is not that a Boston pitcher struck out 14 men, but that he should be Kinder. Never before did he achieve even modest fame as a strikeout artist. Unlike such as Wood and the late Walter Johnson, Kinder is no fast-baller. But with the Red Sox, the pitching business of late has been giddy, anyway. For 2½ months they struggled along with the league's worst pitching. In the past three weeks it has begun to look like the league's best.

HAL NEWHOUSER is no longer the American League's strikeout king; in fact, he's having a horrible time of it trying to win ball games. But the Tigers have come up with his successor in Virgil Trucks, their strong-armed right-hander who now throws the fastest pitch in the league.

Trucks might have gone on to a wider lead among the strikeout pitchers except for an accident while pitching in Washington in mid-June. He lost his footing on the mound, and sprained his ankle. Thereafter he was ineffective for weeks. Inclined to put on weight, Trucks was unable to do the running that keeps him in shape. Not until his ankle healed did Trucks resume his strikeout habits, a fortnight ago.

MICKEY HARRIS, the tradee from the Red Sox, is learning that it's not easy to win for the Nats. He has started six times, and has yet to turn in a victory for the Washington club, despite some well-pitched ball games. Still, he's philosophical. "I'll win a ball game some day, I'm sure," he said recently.

Harris learned to be philosophical while with the Red Sox in 1946. A doctor friend prevailed on him to visit a hospital and talk baseball with the patients. He kept the date on a night after he had blown a three-run lead and lost a game for the Red Sox.

Not until Harris was talking to the patients was he aware he was in a psycho ward. He realized that when one sick man interrupted him with: "Harris, you bum, why don't you rack up? All you do is blow leads."

The doctor apologized to the pitcher later. "I'm embarrassed, Mickey," he said. "I should have told you they were psychos. Incidentally, about that fellow who made that crack. That's the first sane thing he's said in months."

Tigers Trip New York in 11th, 3-2, on Mullin's Hit

New York, Aug. 4 (AP).—A pair of jinxes worked overtime today as the Detroit Tigers outlasted the New York Yankees, 3-2, in an 11-inning struggle.

The defeat cut the Yanks' first place margin over the Cleveland Indians to 2½ games.

Pat Mullin, who thrives on Yankee pitching, punched out the winning hit, a single to right that brought in Eddie Lake from third with the winning run after two were out in the top of the eleventh.

It was the fourth hit for the Tiger centerfielder. Mullin's first hit, a single to center, scored pitcher Fred Hutchinson in the third with the Tigers' first run.

Hutchinson, although relieved by Virgil Trucks in the eleventh, was credited with the victory, his ninth and fifth in succession.

Vic Raschi went the route for the Yankees and was tagged with his sixth defeat. He has won 15. Half of his defeats have come at the hands of the Tigers.

All the Yankee scoring came in the first inning when Tommy Henrich, Joe DiMaggio and Charlie Keller each doubled.

The Tigers got one run back in the second. Vic Wertz singled and raced to third on a double by George Kell. Wertz crossed the plate on Aaron Robinson's infield out.

Weik Loses 1st in 12th, 6-3; Feller Breezes in 2nd, 14-1

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Doubling up trying to catch up, the Nats instead got beat up last night.

They spent the entire evening and part of this morning trying to whip the Cleveland Indians. They didn't, but they certainly made 'em work hard.

They carried the pennant-contending Tribe 12 innings before yielding the first game of the twi-night-morning bargain offering, 6-3. The afterpiece went the customary nine innings, and brought the customary Nat loss, 14-1.

For 24,299 Griffith Stadium customers, it was good entertainment. For the Indians it was better than that. The double triumph coupled with New York's defeat shaved the Yankees' first place margin to 2½ games, the lowest it's been since Cleveland started its climb in mid-May.

Although they're moving in the opposite direction, the Nats made progress, too. They gained a half game on the last-place Browns and are now only four games out of the dungeon.

While the Indians paraded five pitchers to the hill in the opener before returning Bob Lemon the victor, Rookie Dick Weik almost went the distance for the Nats.

He was relieved in the twelfth when the Tribe punched out two doubles and an equal number of triples for three runs to break the 3-3 stalemate. Weik had allowed only seven hits until then.

Tribe Tough After 9

It was Cleveland's eleventh straight overtime victory and the twelfth in 13 extra-inning games. It was also the Nats' sixtieth defeat, most of which have come in regulation nine-inning contests.

Backed up by 20 hits, most of which were just trifling singles, Bob Feller didn't have to be as good as he was to cakewalk to his ninth decision in the nightcap.

Feller yielded only six hits and fanned nine, his highest strikeout total of the season. Practically everybody Cleveland sent into the fray got at least one hit. Dale Mitchell got five.

Paul Calvert started the parade of poor Nat pitching. He retired in the third, bequeathing a 5-0 deficit to Al Gettel who left in the 8th, but not before adding four more runs to the Indians' total.

Young Dick Welteroth pitched only one-third of an inning, but he was a howling success in his short stint. He pitched five-run five-hit ball before Lloyd Hittle braved the mound and finally stopped the Indians in the 9th.

Only 12 of Cleveland's runs were earned. Two of the four Nat errors provided them with their other two tallies.

Jake Early spoiled Feller's shutout. He did it by rapping into a double play to score Buddy Lewis n the fifth inning.

Tough One for Weik

Weik's defeat in the opener was his fourth and his second straight overtime loss since he was promoted to the varsity last week. The Browns beat him in the tenth after he had shut them out for eight innings on only two hits.

Even in defeat, the 22-year-old Iowa righthander was brilliant last night. He yielded only seven hits before his collapse in the twelfth. The Indians got only four hits off him in the first seven innings, but one of them happened to be Joe Gordon's fifteenth homer, a well-stroked shot which came to rest in the eighth row of the left-field bleachers in the second inning.

That was the only run of the ball game until the sixth when Sherry Robertson rewarded Weik by slugging his ninth homer to bring him a 2-1 lead. Johnny Simmons, who had walked, was on base when Robertson cleared the right-field barrier.

Satch Paige Comes In

The homer not only propelled the Nats into the lead, but it also brought about Starter Frank Papish's downfall. Unnerved, Papish went hog wild.

He walked Clyde Vollmer and had a 2-0 count on Sam Mele when Boudreau retired him in favor of ancient Satchel Paige who proceeded to retire the Nats without further scoring.

The game rocked along at 2-1 until the eighth when the Indians lashed out with three singles and also benefited from a Weik wild pitch to score twice and force into a 3-3 command. With Mitchell on second and Larry Doby on first as the result of singles, Weik moved them both up with a wild pitch on his second toss to Mickey Vernon.

Dodgers Rout Pirates, 11-3 On 3 Homers

Pittsburgh, Aug. 4 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers whipped the Pittsburgh Pirates, 11-3, today to sweep the four game series.

Gil Hodges, Duke Snider and Tommy Brown contributed home runs in the 14-hit attack which marked the Dodgers' fifth consecutive victory.

Big Don Newcombe went the distance although tagged for 11 hits, and registered his tenth victory. He has lost three. The Pirates got nine of their hits in the first five innings, but could manage only two runs.

Newcombe again was in trouble in the seventh and eighth innings, but was bailed out each time by double plays.

Vic Lombardi, former Dodger was the loser. He was touched for seven runs before he was replaced by Murry Dickson in the fifth and was charged with his second loss. He has won four.

Hodges' homer, his seventeenth, sent the Dodgers off to a 2-0 lead in the second inning. The Brooks picked up three more in the fourth when Snider cracked his seventeenth four bagger with two mates aboard. Brown's homer came in the fifth with one on.

Dino Restelli, of the Pirates, slides in home safely as Brooklyn Catcher Roy Campanella leaps high into the air to grab a bad throw from the outfield in the third inning of yesterday's game. Restelli didn't score often enough, so the Bums won in a walk, 11-3

Can't Blame Him

Perspiring Sandifer Longs For Life of a Sportswriter

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Occidental College, Aug. 4.—"I wish I was a sportswriter."

Dan Sandifer, sophomore running star of the Washington Redskins, was perspiring freely. He threw the remark at a recumbent figure in a bathing suit, watching the Redskins drill from the side of an adjoining swimming pool.

"And I wish I was a football player," the sportswriter came back, proving himself a clever conversationalist and a first-rate storyteller.

There's no choice between the jobs at this stage of the football season. Even under the ideal conditions in which they work out, the Redskins' training season is a hard, relentless and monotonous grind—for the players.

For the corps of newsmen who pipe information into Washington's newspapers it's something else again. A lark, you might say, if the sports editor wasn't listening. A nice trip, but plenty of work you'd call it if he was listening.

The Redskins happen to be the most thoroughly covered team in professional football. Their management may be ill-advised on some things but it goes all out to keep the press happy.

A fraternity house is provided for living quarters, complete with well-stocked refrigerator. An auto is available at all times for the use of newsmen. They have complete freedom of Ocidental College's pool, dining room, library, and it is possible to interview any player or coach at any time of the day or night.

On their third day of practice the Redskins were already feeling the monotony of the whole thing . . . an excellent indication of that was their frequenty questions about the time, aimed at anybody with a watch . . . you might say that Ed Quirk, the burley fullback from Missourl, already has the team made . . . his new plastic helmet was fitted to his head by the owner, George Marshall, in person . . . Harry Gilmer, who has put on 3 muchneeded pounds since arriving here, is passing almost as sharp as Sammy Baugh . . . Quarterback Tommy Mont is getting a workout at running as well as passing . . . coaches are seeing all the speed they could ask in Sandifer, Eddie Saenz and Howard Hartley . . . that trio appears in midseason form already . . . Pete Stout, Texas Christian rookie, is one of the finest ball handlers on the squad . . . the unseasonable heat forced Ed Lovuolo, rookie tackle, out of this morning's practice . . . Later in the day he was forced right off the squad . . . The mammouth 279-pound lineman was released and waivers were asked on him.

D. C. Printers Rained Out

Brooklyn, Aug. 4.—Washington, now favored to capture its first ITU baseball championship since 1941, got a day off today when rain washed out the entire tourney program. However, the Columbians are going to pay for it.

Tomorrow at 11 a. m., the unbeaten Washington nine meets St. Louis at Ebbets Field. Then it plays a double-header in the afternoon. Saturday, another triple-header stares the hard-hitting club in the face.

Cards Retain Half-Game Lead, Win, 10-2

St. Louis, Aug. 4 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals retained their half-game grip on the National League lead today by battering the Boston Braves, 10-2, while Al Brazle and Ted Wilks held the Braves to six hits.

The Redbirds slammed out 17 safe blows against Johnny Sain, Glenn Elliott and Bob Hall. Sain was knocked out of the box in the fifth inning.

It was Brazle's twelfth victory, giving the Cardinals three out of the four-game series.

Brazle, who gave up three hits in five innings, was replaced at the start of the sixth after he had been struck by a batted ball.

Ron Northey, Redbird right-fielder, cracked out a home run in the third inning—his third of the year—and Jeff Heath got one for Boston in the ninth—his first of the season.

Stan Musial and Red Schoendienst both collected three hits out of five times at bat to lead the Cardinals.

Chisox Purchase Slugger From L. A.

Philadelphia, Aug. 4 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox today announced the purchase of John Ostrowski, third baseman and outfielder, from Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League in exchange for Infielder Bobby Rhawn and an undisclosed amount of cash.

Ostrowski will join the White Sox in Washington tomorrow. The new Chisox player is a right-handed batter with a current average of .325. He has hit 32 home runs and has driven in 91.

—With Marshall—

Coach Almost Wins a Point

Occidental College, Aug. 4.—Owner George Marshall looked at the new head coach of the Washington Redskins, Billick Whelchel, as though expecting him to leap into frenzied action.

"What are you going to do about it?" he asked.

Whelchel studied the new plastic headgear Marshall had recommended for his football team. The few seconds of silence seemed a lot longer.

"Exactly nothing," Whelchel said. Marshall was speechless, for once.

"The best idea in a change like this, from leather to plastic headgear," Whelchel continued, "is to let the players decide on it themselves. They're superstitious, you know, and may dislike being ordered to change. As long as we've decided the plastic ones are best, we should make the shift gradual. Then everybody will be satisfied."

Marshall thought over the psychological aspects of the thing, something new to him.

"Very good idea," he finally agreed, "but meanwhile go ahead and buy the plastic helmets for everybody. They'll have to come around to wearing them."

Appling Should Break Maranville Mark Here

Philadelphia, Aug. 4 (AP).—Luke Appling will have to wait one more day to tie the major league record for most games played at shortstop.

The Chicago White Sox shortstop had hoped to tie the mark of 2153 games set by Rabbit Maranville with five National League clubs between 1912 and 1931, but rained forced the postponment of the Chicago Philadelphia game. Appling who has played 2552 games during his 20 years with the Chisox will get his chance to match Maranville's record in Washington tomorrow night.

Bosox Wallop Browns, 12-2

Boston, Aug. 4 (AP).—Boston's Red Sox supported the six-hit pitching of Joe Dobson with a 14 hit attack for a 12-2 victory today over the American League's last place St. Louis Browns.

Since Detroit beat New York 3-2, the distance between the league-leading Yankees and the third-place Sox was reduced to five games.

The decision, before 5582 paid fans and 6900 small-fry guests, gave the Sox a sweep of the three-game series with the Browns and was their fifth consecutive triumph.

Dom DiMaggio, with two hits in four trips, took over the American League batting lead with a .347 average. They ran his hitting streak to 31 consecutive games.

Bob Dillinger, DiMaggio's and Williams' nearest competitor going into today's game, sat out the game. He was reported suffering a slight touch of pleurisy. Williams walked three times and now has drawn 106 passes this season.

The Sox made victory certain with four runs in the opening inning.

Trick Bears Trick Gus

Summit, N. J., Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Everything was topsy turvy today when three publicity-shy Bears broke loose at the camp of heavyweight contender Gus Lesnevich who is training for next Wednesday's NBA title bout with Ezzard Charles.

The Bears, brought from a nearby amusement park to pose with Gus, broke away from their trainer and scampered at will among some 400 onlookers. The uproar started when Lesnevich attempted to feed sugar to one of the bears, "Sambo," a 550-pound animal. Sambo broke away from the trainer and his cohorts followed suit.

It took 15 minutes for trainers, aided by a hurriedly-assembled volunteer group, to recapture the animals.

Sweep Series

Reds Beat Phils Twice, 8-5 and 9-1

Cincinnati, Aug. 4 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds knocked off the fading Philadelphia Phillies in both ends of a doubleheader today, 8-5 and 9-1, to sweep a four-game series.

The Reds clipped three Philadelphia pitchers for 11 hits in winning the opener and Johnny Vander Meer, veteran Redleg southpaw, threw a five-hitter in the nightcap.

Kent Peterson was the winning pitcher in the opener, but gave way to Ewell Blackwell in the sixth. Russ Meyer was the losing hurler. Danny Litwhiler hit a homer for the Reds, while Bobby Blottner drove in four of the Phils' five runs with two doubles and two singles.

Schmitz Has No-Hitter for 7 Innings

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—Johnny Schmitz pitched a three-hitter today as the Chicago Cubs ended an eight-game losing streak, with a 1-0 victory over the New York Giants.

A home run by Andy Pafko in the second innnig proved to be the decisive blow. It came off Larry Jansen, the loser, and ended a six-game winning streak by the Giants. Jansen allowed but four hits as his season record levelled off at 11-11.

Schmitz had a no-hitter going into the eighth inning. Sid Gordon, first up for the Giants, hit a slow roller toward third and beat it out for a single on a very close play that brought a squawk from the Cub bench.

Yesterday the Giants went six hitless innings against Bob Rush, only to break out in the seventh.

Gordon moved to third on a single by Monte Irvin, but stayed glued to the bag as Billy Rigney hit into a snappy double play. On an attempted double steal, Gordon was rubbed out at the plate, Catcher Mickey Owen to Gene Mauch and back to Owen.

Owen, who earlier had erased Irvin on a steal attempt, helped Schmitz in the ninth when he grabbed a foul fly by Henry Thompson and doubled Wes Westrum off first. Westrum had opened the final inning with a single, the third hit off the Cub lefthander.

Tam Circus Starts Today In Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—The All-American championship, first installment of George S. May's $66,000 golf carnival, tomorrow sends some 500 professionals and amateurs into a complex 10-day outing at Tam O'Shanter course.

Half of the field in the All-American's concurrent pro-amateur-women's open circus will play 18 holes tomorrow.

The other half shoves off Saturday. May proudly points out that no qualifying is necessary. But in effect there is quite a bit, because Sunday's second round of the 72-hole medal play test will find a field of only 200.

This is accomplished by the May code of eligibility which whittles the second rounders to 125 pros, 10 amateurs and 30 women.

The $20,000 All-American which leading money winner Sammy Snead never has captured is only a prelude to May's "world championship of golf."

The "world" event, another 72-hole medal chase, starts next Thursday. (Wednesday is held open in event of an All-American playoff, of which there have been three in the eight previous meets.)

Interest Maintained

In order to maintain player interest (especially) and spectator interest in his fairways marathon, May has a $10,000-$7000-$5000 lure for win, place and show in the $35,200 "world" affair.

Needless to say, the potential of $13,333 for winning both events has Tam swarming with every pro who has the $20 entry fee and can raze to Chicago.

The cofavorites are Snead, the National PGA-Masters-Western Open champion, and National Open titlist Cary Middlecoff, who gave Snead a merry chase in last week's Western at Minneapolis.

Nats Lose Twin Bill

Vance, but Boudreau slapped a single to right to drive in two tallies. The Nats deadlocked the struggle in their hilf of the same round on Eddie Stewart's double, Buddy Lewis' infield single and Eddie Robinson's long fly to Kennedy in right.

Boudreau Saves One

Boudreau, fielding brilliantly and often spectacularly, staved off the run temporarily when he smothered Lewis' single, headed for left field, and thus held Stewart at third base. But not even Boudreau could do anything about Eddie Robinson's fly to Kennedy against the boards in rightfield.

Weik weathered a shaky eleventh inning, filling the bases on three of his eight walks with two away, but he escaped unscathed as Robertson turned Mitchell's grounder into a force out.

But things happened too fast for young Weik in the fatal twelfth. Doby started it by lacing out a single to left, but stretched it into a double with a flash of real speed and a head-first slide. Vernon cracked out a triple and the 3-3 deadlock which had existed since the eighth inning was dissolved.

Amid the cheers of practically every customer, Weik was lifted at this point in favor of Joe Haynes. Boudreau greeted him with a single to center and when Stewart tried and failed to make a shoestring catch of the ball, Boudreau pulled up at third with a triple. Kennedy cracked out the second double and the fourth extra-base hit of the inning to drive in Boudreau with the third run.

Lemon, who allowed only two hits in his four-inning stint, retired the Nats in order in the twelfth to salt away his thirteenth triumph.

IN SHORT—Vernon found it tough to stay on base. He was picked off once in each game and thrown out trying to steal in each game also . . . The White Sox move in tonight to open a four-game set. Luke Appling, who'll be tying a major league record by playing in his 2153d game at shortstop will be honored in pregame ceremonies . . . After that, Sid Hudson will try to entertain the Sox with either Mickey Haefner (remember him?) or Bob Kuzava doing the Chicago pitching.

Langston Wins Johnson Title

Don Wills pitched a no-hitter and struck out 10 men as Langston won the Eastern Division of the American Association, 1-0, over Kelly Miller in a Walter Johnson Memorial League 12-and-under game last night at Banneker.

Langston will meet Hayes, Western Division winner, in playoffs next Friday and Saturday at Griffith Stadium.

Brothers, Keene Win in Clarksburg

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 4.—Elkins Brothers, Washington (D. C.,) heavyweight, won a 10-round decision over the "Alabama Kid" of Columbus, Ohio, in the main event here tonight. Julian Keene, another Washington heavy, also won a 10-round decision, whipping Bill Harrington of Columbus, Ohio.

Small Dazes Daley

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 4 (AP).—Georgie Small, 158½, Brooklyn, outpointed Bill Daley, 155, Brookline, Mass., tonight in the 10-round main event at Fort Hamilton Arena. Daley was floored seven times.

Ted Rodgers, Coss Lose In Doubles

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 4 (AP).—Top runners in the National Junior tennis tournament ran smack up against some tough opposition today in the fourth round.

First-seeded Gil Bogley of Chevy Chase, Md., had to pour in everything he had against Ted Jax of Hamtramck. Bogley won, 6—4, 6—3, but much of advantage came because Jax couldn't hold his own service. The victory put Bogley in the quarter finals.

For third-seeded Hamilton Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., trouble began in the first set against John Hernandez of San Antonio. It went to 14 games. Richardson finally edged Hernandez, 8—6, 6—4.

The Washington, D. C. team of Tim Cross and Ted Rogers was a casualty in the second round of the junior doubles.

They were eliminated in straight sets, 6—2, 6—2, by Keston Deimling, River Rorest, Ill., and Larry Huebner, of Fresno, Cal., the fourth seeded favorites.

Bogley and his partner, Dick Squires, of Bronxville, N. Y., passed into the third round of the doubles by defeating a Milwaukee team Wayne Cody, and Don Rondeau, 6—1, 6—2. Bogley and Squires are seeded third.

Sixth-seeded Jacque Grigry of Alhambra, Calif., was eliminated in an upset. He was resoundingly defeated, 6—1, 6—1, by Ernest Du Bray of San Francisco, who was unseeded.

In the boys' division, Jack Frost of Monterrey, Calif., who is ranked first, had rough going in the first set but rode away with the second. He beat Lewis Royal of Chattanooga, 7—5, 6—0.

It Will Still Be BAA Against NBL

Divisions Will Stay the Same

New York, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Maurice Podoloff, president of the newly created National Basketball Association, said today that the groupings of the two leagues that were merged probably would be preserved for at least another year to maintain traditional rivalries.

Podoloff said he expected that the structure of the old Basketball Association of America and the National Basketball League would be retained rather than a division along geographical lines at the league's first meeting at Chicago, August 11.

Such an alignment would put Minneapolis, St. Louis, Fort Wayne, Chicago, Rochester, Washington, Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia and New York of the B. A. A. in one division, and Syracuse, Anderson, Sheboygan, Tri-Cities, Denver, Waterloo, Indianapolis and Milwaukee of the N. B. L. in the other division.

Because of the tremendous traveling distances involved in the expansion of the circuit from the Atlantic to the Rocky Mountains, Podoloff said that the criss-cross scheduling of inter-division games would provide the biggest problem of the Chicago meeting.

The chubby, energetic president said that the new schedule probably would find the clubs playing about twice as many games in their own divisions as outside the divisions, but that they would benefit at the gate because of the traditional rivalries that have been developed within each circuit in the past.

Hoenig Wins Hearst Golf

Chicago, Aug. 4 (AP).—Don Hoenig of Thompson, Conn., today won the fourth annual Hearst National Junior Golf tourney with a 72-hole total of 307, topping the field by 14 strokes.

Second with 321 was Tom Brennan of Milwaukee, followed by John Moynihan, jr., Albany, N. Y., and Larry Warren of Boston, who tied for third with 322 each.

Washington's two representatives finished well down in the list today.

Stewart Hurls No-Hitter

Shepard's Team Votes Down Strike, 9-6, After Bert Is Fired

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 4 (AP).—The Waterbury Timers of the Class B Colonial League, facing an ouster from organized baseball if they refused to play, voted 9 to 6 late today against going on strike.

The players' meeting was called because of the release of Bert Shepard, their pitcher-first baseman-manager who lost a leg in the war.

Before leaving for Bristol where they were scheduled to perform tonight, the players named three of their number, Joe Consoli, Hal Winters and Bill Szabo, as a committee to try to raise money for Shepard's salary so that he could be rehired.

Inability to pay Shepard the $4000 to $4500 a year he was reported to be drawing was the only reason for his release, the team management announced.

Business Manager Henry "Duke" Delpo, who attended the players' meeting but withdrew when the strike vote was taken, reiterated that he was sorry it was necessary to let Shepard go.

"If they (the committee) can raise the money, we'll see what happens," Delpo told reporters.

When the players threatened to strike yesterday, Delpo said that any who took such action would be ruled out of organized baseball and would have to pay a $250 fine before they could be reinstated.

First Baseman Leo Eastman has been named temporary manager of the team.

Shepard, whose right leg was amputated in a German prison camp after his fighter plane was shot down in 1944, played for the Washington Senators part of the 1945 season.

Quantico Romps

Wolfe Only D.C. Boy Left At Houston

Special Dispatch to The Post

Houston, Tex., Aug. 4 — Billy Wolfe and Winston Sutter were the only District of Columbia representatives left after the first round of match play in the National Jaycee junior golf tourney here today. And Sutter promptly was eliminated in the second round.

Wolfe, lone survivor among six D. C. contestants, defeated Jack Radcliffe, Parkersburg, W. Va., 2 and 1, in his first test.

Sutton won over John Brown, Lexington, Ky., in the morning, 2 and 1, but was ousted by Gil Frey, Portland, Ore., in the afternoon match, 7 and 5.

In the other first-round matches, Dennis Bolster lost to Miles Schlopik, Chicago, 5 and 4. Russell Johnson, Rockford, Ill., defeated Richard Foster, 1 up.

Billy Delk, Greenville, S. C., ran up a 9-7 score on Kay Fletcher and Stanley G. Mouser bowed to Billie Hoag, Peoria, Ill.

Defending Champion Gene Littler, San Diego, Calif., had to go an extra hole to take his first-round match from Leon Randall, Kingston, N. Y.

Gaithersburg Meets Silver Spring in Benefit

The third of a series of baseball games for the benefit of the Montgomery County Cooperative Agriculture Center will be played tonight at Gaithersburg when Silver Spring meets Rockville.

Paid admissions will go to the fund for the further development of the center. Admission is 75 cents and children under 14 will be admitted free.

Earl Cochell, Eric Sturgess Are Upset

South Orange, N. J., Aug. 4 (AP).—Felicisimo Ampon of the Philippine Islands and Art Larsen of San Francisco carried off the honors in major upsets today in the twenty-third annual Eastern grass court championships.

In one of the most bitterly contested tourney matches thus far, Ampon defeated Eric Sturgess of South Africa, 4—6, 6—0, 75.

Larsen, eighth seeded in the tourney, put out second-seeded Earl Cochell of San Francisco, 6—4, 6—1. The victors will meet tomorrow in a semifinal match.

Coming from behind, fourth-seeded Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., eked out a 5—7, 6—0, 6—3, victory over Sid Schwartz of New York in another quarter-final match. His semifinal opponent will be the winner of the match between top seeded Billy Talbert of New York and Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., tomorrow.

In the women's play, Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., will meet Beverly Baker of Santa Monica, Calif., in a semifinal match tomorrow. In the other semifinal battle, Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, will be pitted against Mrs. Pat Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif.

Major Shifts Slated In Staffing of 10,000 New VA Hospital Beds

VA: Major shifts must be made in the personnel of VA's Department of Medicine and Surgery.

The Senate has approved a 16 million dollar increase in the budget for that department. The money, if finally approved, would prevent the firing of 5000 doctors, dentists, nurses and other hospital and medical personnel. The additional money, however, won't solve all of the department's problems.

In the first place, the department estimated its needs at 48 million dollars additional. The 16 million dollars would permit it to retain 5000 of the 6500 employes it has over the number allowed in the House budget. The department can absorb this small reduction by employe turnover.

But its big problem will be the staffing of 10,000 new hospital beds to be available before next June 30. The Senate was assured that the 16 million dollars additional would allow for the "gradual and orderly redistribution of personnel" to staff the 10,000 new beds. This means that VA must transfer people from existing hospitals to the new ones as they are opened. In other words, hospitals now operating will have their personnel reduced.

Bernie E. Loshbough of the National Security Resources Board staff, has been appointed chairman of the Connecticut Housing Authority . . . David Farber has resigned from the National Association of Broadcasters to join the NLRB economic staff . . . There was a net reduction of 7057 Federal employes during June, but in this city there was a net increase of 1180 . . . At Justice, Marcus A. Hollabaugh and Joseph E. McDowell are the new chief and assistant of Anti-Trust's special litigation section . . . Civil Service is accepting applications for librarians at starting salaries from $3727 to $6235 . . . Agriculture employes are still protesting about the quality of food served in their cafeteria.

PAY RAISE strategists yesterday were fighting among themselves. After what one member described as a "no-holds-barred session," the House Postoffice and Civil Service Committee failed to agree on either a postal or classified pay raise bill. It will meet again today.

One committee group is supporting the Senate classified pay bill, which was explained here in detail yesterday. Another bloc is insisting on larger pay boosts for employes in the lower grades.

But the big scrap was over a postal pay bill. The Murray subcommittee is behind a bill to wipe out the first two clerk-carrier grades and to give a flat $100 increase to all postal workers.

Representative Corbett (R., Pa.) introduced a substitute, which will be debated again today. His bill would: raise annual leave for postal workers from 15 to 20 days a year; give employes credit toward longevity raises for past and uncredited service, and give all regular employes a flat $150 pay boost, 2½ cents an hour boost for substitutes and hourly employes, and 2½ per cent increase for fourth class postmasters.

On the Senate side, meantime, Democratic Majority Leader Lucas is reported to have agreed tentatively to allow the three pay bills to come up for debate the latter part of next week. The executive bill will be called up first and will be followed by the postal and classified bill.

Reclamation Commissioner Mike Straus is now back on the payroll of his agency after a four-month lapse. He is expected to sue for the salary he was denied through a congressional rider . . . Two Bureau of Standards scientists, Dr. Herbert Insley and Dr. F. P. Hall, won the Ross Coffin Purdy Award for their outstanding contribution to ceramic literature . . . At General Accounting, V. R. Weethee and John H. Thompson are employe representative and alternate on its efficiency rating board . . . The dual and deceptive wage rates for Capitol Hill employes would be wiped out and a single aboveboard schedule provided for them in the legislative salary bill to be approved by the Senate Civil Service Committee. It's about time.

Park Group Acts to Keep Local 'Color' Of Capital

Wurster Declares Authentic Settings As Well as Flavor Must Be Retained

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday took steps to protect certain areas in the District from "adverse development."

The group conferred with Commissioner of Public Buildings W. E. Reynolds, Chairman W. W. Wurster said, and preliminary discussion emphasized the importance of completing recommended acquisitions.

Referring to prior approval by the commission of a bill for preservation of historic Georgetown, Chairman Wurster, also dean of the School of Architecture of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said the same thinking should be applied to Washington proper "so as not to lose some of the color of the Capital."

"Architecture is history," he said, "we must see that not only the flavor is preserved, but also the authentic settings."

He referred specifically to the Court of Claims building 17th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., as a structure that should be preserved.

The commission, meeting on the second of a three-day session, also took under "favorable advisement" the plan of Representative Jenkins (R., Ohio) for a street in the Capitol named after his State. The group agreed that Riverside dr., from Lincoln Memorial to 14th st. could make an "Ohio drive" or "Ohio ave."

The commission unanimously adopted a resolution "expressing their deep appreciation" of Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant III for his "long service to the Nation's Capital and environs, and his wise, progressive and patriotic leadership." They named the former commission chairman as chairman emeritus.

Other action taken included:

Tentative planning for a joint meeting of the American Civic Association, the American Institute of Architects, the Joint Committee of Professional Societies with the Commission next May to discuss future development of the Capital.

Tentative approval of lines for George Washington Memorial Park from Spout Run to the Arlington-Fairfax line.

A discussion of mutual cooperation with a group from the North Virginia Regional Planning Committee.

A hearing with members of the Washington Housing Association on closer relations between the two bodies.

In the morning session, the commission gave its tentative okay for the Maryland plan of allocating $657,000 of Capper-Cramton Act funds about equally between Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties to acquire park lands in half a dozen or more stream valleys. Further study of the program will be made at the September meeting of the group.

Prince Georges GOP Unit Seeks Voting Machines

The Republican State Central Committee of Prince Georges County yesterday asked the county commissioners and election supervisors to use voting machines in all elections.

John R. Fletcher, chairman of the committe, said letters had been transmitted to the commissioners and election supervisors urging their immediate approval of a plan which would provide the machines for the 1950 election.

Asserting the machines would "be of great benefit to the voters," Fletcher said they would eliminate "cumbersome" methods now employed and minimize the possibility of fraud.

Butter Stocks Seen Bar To Sharp Price Rise

Reserves of butter now appear to be ample to protect consumers against a sharp price advance next fall and winter.

Agriculture Department reports indicate that private and Government holdings are equivalent to slightly more than one month's needs. This is the biggest reserve for this time of the year since before the war.

Battle Wins Primary by 23,389 Votes

State Senator John S. Battle won the Democratic nomination for Governor in Tuesday's primary by 23,389 votes, unofficial complete returns from the State's 1768 precincts showed yesterday.

Battle, 134,881; Francis P. Miller, 111,492; Horace H. Edwards, 47,380, and Remmie L. Arnold, 22,050.

The Virginia State Board of Elections promised a preliminary investigation of a bribery charge in the Democratic gubernatorial primary campaign to see if the facts warrant a full scale probe.

The charges were made two days before the Tuesday primary by Robert Hazelwood, campaign manager for Remmie L. Arnold who ran a poor fourth among four candidates.

Hazelwood stated he had been offered $10,000 to desert Arnold by a man "very close" to Senator Harry F. Byrd, leader of the State Democratic organization. Byrd asked that the charge be investigated.

The Republican contest for lieutenant governor was still in doubt last night. With only half the precincts reporting, Thomas E. McGuire of Petersburg led Berkeley Williams of Richmond, 1965 to 1875.

No Anti-Byrd Victors Shown on Local Level

Although anti-Byrd forces chalked up a plurality in Arlington County Tuesday in the State-wide Democratic race for Governor, official returns yesterday showed no such anti-organization victory on the local level.

Only a handful of the 54 Democratic committeemen, chosen in the county in a party election simultaneous with the primary, are reported as "anti-Byrd."

Defeat of two staunch Miller-for-Governor supporters, Albert Carretta and James E. Franklin, surprised even some opposition spokesmen. Both men were committee incumbents.

Carretta, running for committeeman from the Cherrydale precinct, received 171 votes. Although his precinct gave Miller a plurality in the State-wide race, Carretta was bested by two known Byrd supporters, Charles Hanowell, 325 votes, and Jessie Ward, jr., 322 votes.

Franklin, running in the Thrifton precinct, received 165 votes, lowest count in a four-cornered precinct race.

Most notable victory for Miller forces in the county Democratic committee contest was that of H. Smith Rucker. He polled 312 votes in Park Lane precinct, despite the fact it went for organization man John S. Battle in the State-wide Governor's race.

Stanley Stanton, also elected Park Lane committeeman, polled 302 votes, with defeated candidate William Nemeth polling 197.

Meningitis Hinted

D.C. Boy Ill; YMCA Camp Quarantined

A YMCA camp near Carlisle, Pa., was placed under quarantine yesterday when one of the campers, a 12-year-old Kensington (Md.) boy, was reported ill with "probable meningitis."

The boy, Herman Tunis of 44 Farragut st., son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard J. Tunis, was admitted to the Harrisburg (Pa.) Hospital.

Physicians listed the boy's condition as serious and said the nature of his disease could not be positively diagnosed until tests have been completed.

Dr. W. D. Schrack, epidemiologist for the Pennsylvania State Health Department, said the camp will remain under observation quarantine until the nature of the Tunis boy's illness can be determined.

Neighbors of the Tunis family said young Herman does not attend school but is being taught at home by his mother.

6-Week Infant Smothered in Coach Pillow

Deputy Coroner Richard Rosenberg certified that the child, Craig Wright, 1230 Holbrook tr. ne., suffered accidental death "by suffocation."

The infant's unconscious form was discovered by his mother, Mrs. Gwendolyn Wright, at 7:15 a. m. in his carriage in the living room.

She called her husband, Keith, an Army sergeant stationed at Fort Myer, who applied artificial respiration. The effort proved futile and the child was pronounced dead shortly afterward by a Casualty Hospital ambulance doctor.

Board Studies New Manager For Alexandria

Appointment of Alexandria's new city manager is expected shortly, perhaps at next Tuesday's meeting of the City Council.

The council has narrowed the original field of 30 candidates to two experienced city mangers, it was learned, but has not yet been able to reach unanimous agreement on either one. The candidate selected is expected to receive more that the $8500 now paid for the position.

Search for a permanent manager to fill the vacancy caused by the sudden dismissal of Nicholas A. Colasanto started in June after the election which decided City Council membership for the next three years.

Robert S. Marshall, jr., executive director of the Alexandria Redevelopment and Housing Authority, has been serving as manager in a temporary capacity. He did not apply for the permanent post.

D. C. Agencies Transferred; $60,000 Saved

District budgeteers yesterday figured the city was good for a $60,000 bonanza this year through the transfer of three District-supported agencies to the Federal Government.

On Tuesday, President Truman signed legislation transferring the officers of Registrar of Wills, probation system and the Commission on Mental Health to the administration office of the United States Courts.

Commissioner Guy Mason wrote the Budget Bureau yesterday asking that the budget estimates for the three agencies be rescinded in the current year's city budget.

Three days ago the District Budget Office estimated another saving of $18,000 through a 1-cent-a-day reduction in the daily rate to be charged for District patients the coming year at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

First CIO Member Nominated To Virginia's Lower House

For the first time in the State's history, a member of the CIO has been nominated to the Virginia House of Delegates, it was disclosed yesterday. Democratic Party nomination in his area is tantamount to election.

He is Temple Kessinger of Covington, who will represent Alleghany County and the city of Clifton Forge.

A tightly-knit and energetic campaign among union members in Covington, Clifton Forge and Iron Gate put Kessinger into the Democratic nomination over the incumbent, Hale Collins.

Kessinger is president of Local 675 of the United Paper Workers of America. He is employed as a rewinder in the finishing room of the West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co. plant at Covington.

Charles C. Webber, president of the Virginia Industrial Union Council, the state body of the CIO, and also director of the CIO's Political Action Committee in the State, said that union men in Kessinger's district united, regardless of affiliation, to put the nominee over.

Among the union groups in the district are Kessinger's local; a local of the CIO Textile Workers Union at Covington; a local of the CIO Fur and Leather Workers Union at Iron Gate; a local of the AFL International Ladies Garment Workers Union at Clifton Forge, and railroad shop and operating brotherhoods at Clifton Forge. The latter are independent unions.

The vote in the race was 2115 for Kessinger and 1844 for Collins, a difference of 271. In the same district, Francis Pickens Miller led for the Democratic nomination for Governor with 2252 to 1138 for John S. Battle, the Byrd machine candidate, who was nominated in the State-wide primary.

Webber said the campaign began early, with union political leaders making certain that all members' poll taxes were paid up. Subsequently a block-by-block drive was conducted, both before election day to apprise the union members of the issues and candidates, and quickly on election day, last Tuesday, to see that all members voted.

As Kessinger was nominated, another union man, an incumbent union member of the House of Delegates, was defeated. He is W. H. C. Murray, member of the International Typographical Union, employed in the composing room of the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

He ran thirteenth among 17 candidates for the seven seats allotted to Richmond, though he received more votes Tuesday than he did two years ago when he was elected. He said on long-distance telephone yesterday that he ascribed his defeat to two factors.

The first and major one, he said, was entry of "several thousand" Republicans into the Democratic primary to "save the Byrd machine from defeat on the Governorship." The second, he said, was the fact that at the last session of the Virginia Assembly he introduced five controversial bills concerning segregation of Negroes in the State.

Crash Driver Released in $3000 Bond

No Hearing Date Set In Accident Near Laurel Pending Outcome of Injuries

Ernest Baker, 38, Baltimore truck driver whose vehicle figured in the triple crash near Laurel Wednesday, yesterday was released in $3000 bond on charges of manslaughter and reckless driving.

No hearing date has been set pending the outcome of the injuries suffered by 32 persons in the truck-bus-auto smash-up in which two Towson, Md., residents were killed.

Fatally injured when their convertible coupe was demolished by Baker's careening tractor, which tore loose from its trailer, were Harold M. Quenzer, 42, and his wife. Police said they were part of a party of four couples driving from Baltimore to Washington for dinner.

Majority of those injured in the collision were treated and released at Washington, Prince Georges County and Baltimore hospitals.

Bus Driver in Good Condition

The driver of the heavily loaded Greyhound bus was reported in good condition last night at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale. He is Lee Turner Poole, 24, of Herndon, Va. He suffered a compound fracture of the right leg.

Also at that hospital in satisfactory condition is James W. Sewell, 49, of Hughesville, Md. Sewell's injuries were minor, physicians said.

Mrs. Mary Giddings, 54, of Laurel, was reported in good condition at Prince Georges County General Hospital, Cheverly. Her right leg was fractured.

In fair condition at Providence Hospital were Mrs. Raffaella Di Giorgi, 59, 820 Xenia st. se., with a fractured ankle, and Miss Raffaelle Di Giorgi, 25, same address, lacerations.

Listed as critical at University Hospital, Baltimore, is Mrs. Dotty Gallen, 26, wife of a Baltimore dentist. Mrs. Gallen has multiple fractures and internal injuries. Reported in good condition there was Erwin D. Schwartz, 57; 1433 Belmont st. nw., with a fractured right leg.

State's Attorney Daniel Murray, of Howard County, said the police investigation had turned up "nothing new." The truck driver told police his tractor-trailer jackknifed when he applied his brakes to avoid a car he was passing. The two sections split, one striking the auto and the other the bus.

4 Hurt in Car-Truck Accident Near D. C.

Four persons were injured in a car-truck accident at Indian Head and Livingston rds., just over the District line in Prince Georges County, about midnight Wednesday.

Police said the car, operated by James Broody, 51, of 70 N st. se., was traveling toward Washington when it collided with a truck driven by Sidney J. Proctor, 38, 6121 St. Barnabas rd., Oxon Hill.

Broody's wife, Mrs. Cornelia Broody, suffered a fractured jaw. She was reported in fair condition last night at Casualty Hospital. Broody received forehead abrasions and his 2-year-old son, James Broody, jr., face lacerations. Proctor suffered a back injury and face cuts.

Both operators were charged with reckless driving by Prince Georges County police, and a hearing set for August 12 in Marlboro Police Court.

In Washington six passengers were slightly shaken up when a Capital Transit bus jumped the sidewalk as it turned from Sherman ave. into New Hampshire ave. nw.

All six passengers refused treatment. The driver of the bus was Carl W. Smith, 44, 101 4th ave., Takoma Park, Md. The bus also scraped a tree and knocked down a stop sign as it went over the curb, police said.

Convention Unit Picks Arata Vice President

Clarance A. Arata, manager of the Greater National Capital Committee of the Washington Board of Trade, was elected a vice president of the International Association of Convention Bureaus, it was announced yesterday.

The election took place at the organization's convention at Pittsburgh, Pa. He has been a member of the board of directors of the convention organization for two years.

Brain Tumor Fatal

Billy Fague Dies, Hero of Fight to Walk

BILLY FAGUE

Billy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson Fague, 6316 7th st. nw., was born with three joints in his lower left leg. For two and a half years the leg had been in a cast, as he underwent three operations.

Just as the operations were beginning to give hope that the courageous youngster might walk normally, the brain tumor was discovered. Billy died Tuesday night after an operation to remove it.

Billy's mother had given five inches of bone from her own leg, leaving a 10-inch sear, to fill the space left when her child's "false joint" was removed.

Billy's father is a retired Census Bureau employe. He was an artillery captain in World War 1.

Besides his parents, Billy is survived by two sisters, Miss Anne Fague, of the 7th st. address, and Mrs. Virginia Brady, Arlington; and a brother, 10-year-old Tommy.

Tommy's friends will be pallbearers at the funeral. Services will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Hines Funeral Home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Two Rumored As in Line for Judgeships

It was reported yesterday that Justice Department officials would be named to two of the six new judgeships here but a department spokesman denied any such decision has been made.

The report was to the effect that one of the three new Court of Appeals judgeships and one of the three new District Court judgeships would be given to these men: Assistant Attorney General David L. Bazelon and Assistant Solicitor General George T. Washington. It was not indicated which man would get which post.

The department spokesman said, however, that no names have as yet been sent to President Truman who Wednesday signed the bill creating the new jobs, as well as 21 other Federal judgeships around the country.

The District Bar Association submitted a list of six candidates for the Appeals bench as well as a dozen for the District Court posts.

Attorney General Tom Clark last night was out of the city until Monday, and Senator J. Howard McGrath, who has been named to succeed him when Clark moves to the Supreme Court, said he was not in a position to make any statement on the report.

Non-Resident Tuition Must Be Advanced

Tuition for nonresident children hoping to attend Washington schools must be paid in advance for each semester before the pupils may be enrolled, the District Board of Education warned yesterday.

The registration dates for elementary pupils are September 1, 2, 6, and 8. All nonresident elementary school pupils must be enrolled in the offices of the divisional director, and their registration should be completed by September 6.

All secondary school nonresident pupils must begin registering not later than September 1 to have the matter completed by September 6. Secondary schools may register nonresident pupils any time after August 15.

Postmaster Approved

The Senate yesterday approved the nomination of Francis L. Leverone to be postmaster of Mount Rainier, Md. He succeeds W. F. Keys, who retired.

'Bottle Club' Foe Informs House Group Of Threats

Restaurant Man Urges Advancing Of Closing Hour To 2 a. m. Sunday

Philip A. Guarino, president of the Washington Restaurant Beverage Association, yesterday told a congressional subcommittee his life had been threatened because he attacked the District's after-hour clubs.

He first revealed the threats in April.

By phone and by mail, Guarino said, he was told that "if I didn't keep my mouth closed about after-hours clubs, my body would be found riddled with bullets and floating down the Potomac River."

Guarino told about the threats in urging the House District Judiciary subcommittee to strike at the after-hours clubs by approving a bill to move up from Saturday midnight to 2 a. m. Sunday the dead-line for serving liquor in Washington bars and other drinking places.

The bill, sponsored by Representative Klein (D., N. Y.) is opposed by the Commissioners. It was indorsed in testimony yesterday by Bourbon Dawes, executive secretary of the Hotel Association of Washington, by Mrs. Franklin G. Sartwell of the Metropolis View Citizens Association, and by Peter Borras of the Washington Restaurant Association.

The subcommittee heard testimony for and against a bill to ban credit purchases of beer by retailers in Washington. A similar measure was vetoed by President Roosevelt in 1939, and the Commissioners cited his veto message in opposing the new bill.

Testifying for the bill were Representatives Forand (D., R. I.) and Miller (R., Neb.) and George Hocker, representing a number of brewers and wholesalers doing business here.

Among those who opposed the bill were Commissioner Guy Mason, Chairman Alan W. Payne of the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board; Hilliard Schulberg, executive director of the Washington Retail Liquor Dealers Association, and Bourbon Dawes of the Washington Hotel Association.

Mason also indorsed a bill to let grocery chains in Washington sell beer in all their stores. Each chain now is limited to a beer-sales license for a single store. Myron G. Ehrlich, Washington attorney, filed a memorandum supporting the bill.

Traffic Tips

5. If you don't carry your lunch, pick the places and the foods you eat with care. Just because the rest of your body is vacationing, that's no reason for abusing your digestive system.

Youngsters particularly, do better when they eat at regular hours, with regular foods. Avoid foods that are apt to sour or spoil in hot weather. Don't eat crazy combinations, like sour pickles and ice cream, that you would abhor at home.

Young Woman Told Husband Died Day Before Birth of Son

A young mother who this week gave birth to a son has finally been told that her husband died.

The mother, Mrs. Caroline Davison Hayden, 27, received the news yesterday at Bethesda Naval Hospital from her father-in-law, Capt. Reynolds Hayden, retired Naval medical officer.

Hugh McCormick Hayden, 28, of 3603 Norton pl. nw., Captain Hayden's son, died Tuesday night of a heart attack shortly after visiting his wife at the hospital. Their son was born the next day, but Mrs. Hayden was not permitted to know of her husband's death until Wednesday night.

Captain Hayden led up to the shocking news gradually. His daughter-in-law, who knew something was wrong because her husband had not visited her since their child's birth, took it courageously, the captain said.

Captain Hayden was commanding officer of the naval hospital at Pearl Harbor when the Japanese attacked December 7, 1941.

Yesterday, both mother and child were doing very well, her physician reported.

Funeral services for Hugh Hayden, a wartime submarine officer, will be at 11:30 a. m. today in Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Rescue Squad Delivers Baby After Radioed Instructions

Squad Chief Don Dunnington and members Loyall Fisher, Megs Newkirk, Robert Musgrove, and William Miller were summoned to Tobeytown Wednesday to transport the mother to a hospital.

When they arrived at the tiny community west of Rockville, the baby already had been born. There remained the problem of cutting the umbilical cord. So squad members radioed Rockville police dispatcher Jack Wilton for help.

By telephone, Wilton contacted Rockville physician, Dr. Gordon S. Rosenberger, told him the problem. Rosenberger gave his instructions to Wilton, who relayed them to squad members by radio.

The mother, Mrs. Dorothy King, 20, of Tobeytown, was rushed to Suburban Hospital in a squad ambulance, where both were said to be doing well last night.

Alexandria Again Acts on Slum Areas

In Montgomery

Garbage Can Clean Up Drive Opens

Montgomery County's Health Department is beginning an unusual drive to clean up the county's uncovered or unsanitary garbage cans.

Beginning today department sanitary inspectors will paste red, 3x5-inch stickers on unsanitary cans stating: "This container is condemned for the use of garbage."

Inspectors will begin their pasting tour on commercial establishments. Later they will take in private residences.

County Health Officer V. L. Ellicott said that uncovered refuse is a breeding place "for disease-carrying rats and flies and imperils the health of the community."

The red stickers also point out that garbage receptacles must be made of galvanized steel or similar rust-proof material, and should have close-fitting covers.

If owners fail to replace unsatisfactory garbage receptacles, Dr. Ellicott said, they can be fined for maintaining a "general nuisance."

Alexandria city officials moved on two fronts yesterday in their latest effort to clean up the city's slum areas.

In one move, the owner of a group of sub-standard row houses was summoned to appear in Alexandria Civil and Police Court this morning to answer charges of violating city health and building regulations.

A city council committee in another action, asked the Alexandria Redevelopment and Housing Authority to apply to the Government for 400 low cost housing units under the new Federal housing act.

Ordered to appear in court was Robert Sisson, 31, Morrisville, Va., farmer, who is listed as owner of two rows of sagging frame houses in the 700 block of Wilkes st. and the 400 block of S. Columbus st.

One warrant charges him with "failing to place in safe condition" houses at 711 through 719 Wilkes st. and houses at 426 through 438 S. Columbus st. This warrant was sworn out by A. R. Iash, city building spector, who said he had told Sisson last month to repair the houses or tear them down.

The other warrent, sworn out by Dr. T. F. McGough, city health officer, charges Sisson with failing to install sanitary facilities at 715 and 717 Wilkes st. and at 426, 428 and 430 S. Columbus st.

A campaign to clean up the slum areas which spot the old part of the city was started three weeks ago at the suggestion of City Councilman Marshall J. Beverley.

One result of Beverley's report to the council on bad housing conditions was the creation of a council slum clearance and housing committee which held its first meeting Wednesday night.

In commenting on the application for 400 low cost housing units, City Manager Robert S. Marshall, jr., who is on leave as executive director of the housing authority, estimated it would be 18 months before the new housing would be available.

Boys Forum Hears Barkley on Need To Study Politics

Vice President Alben W. Barkley yesterday told 96 members of the Boys' Forum on National Government it is becoming more and more necessary for people to study the science of government and of politics as our national life grows more complex.

The Vice President's remarks were made as the youths, who have been studying the government for the past week, were "graduated" at exercises in the old Supreme Court chamber where the Senate is currently meeting. He presented the boys their "diplomas" and forum pins.

Barkley said the complexity of life and the fact that politics and economics often go hand in hand has made it more necessary for the Federal Government to extend its powers of regulation and guidance.

The commencement was the final event of the forum, a series of tours, discussions and meetings with Government leaders sponsored by the American Legion.

Wife-Beating Charge Dropped Against Man

A charge that he beat and threatened his wife has been dropped against Louis Martin, 33, of 3935 C st. se. Assistant United States Attorney Raymond Baker said he nolle prossed the case this week after Martin's wife, Lucille, refused to press the case. Mrs. Martin is the mother of six children.

Martin, a 220-pound construction worker, was charged with beating his 130-pound wife July 16. At the suggestion of his lawyer, Municipal Court Judge Thomas D. Quinn sent him to Gallinger Hospital for 30 days' observation. He was released there Monday as being of sound mind.

Supper Set Saturday

A chicken and ham supper will be part of the annual Barnesville picnic at St. Mary's Church, Barnesville, Md. on Saturday. Supper will be served from noon to 9 p. m., with a tournament scheduled to begin at noon.

Woman News Vendor Fined $25 In Refuse Case

Mrs. Maud Mayola Jones, 67, widow and newspaper vendor, yesterday was sentenced to $25 or 30 days in Municipal Court for failing to protect her house at 315 I st. ne. against rats and for having it cluttered with too much trash and refuse.

She was charged with the rodent control violation following an inspection June 15. She pleaded not guilty to the charge a week later but was convicted. Since then, her case has been continued five times to give her time to clean the place up.

Yesterday, the court was informed that no changes had been made and the sentence was imposed by Judge Frank H. Myers. Mrs. Jones said she had only $12 to her name. She was committed to District Jail.

House Delays Vote To Clarify Gas Act

After three hours of debate yesterday the House put off until tomorrow a vote on legislation to make clear that independent producers and gatherers of natural gas are not subject to regulation by the Natural Gas Act.

The debate disclosed a sharp division in House ranks, with the argument being whether or not one effect of the legislation would be an increase in the price of natural gas to consumers.

Students in Drama

A group of students of Wilson Teachers College, 11th and Harvard sts. nw., who are conducting a summer theater, will present "The Little Foxes" at the college auditorium at 8:30 p. m. today. Dr. Blanche Davis of the college faculty is directing. The presentation is open to the public.

GU Language School Acquiring Library

A special library for the new Institute of Languages and Linguistics at Georgetown University is now being acquired in Europe by Professor Francis Seidler of the university faculty.

The institute, unique in American education, will open in September as part of the School of Foreign Service. It will use newest techniques, similar to the simultaneous interpretation system of the United Nations, and methods developed by the Armed Forces during the war for teaching languages. Professor Seidler also will acquire reproductions of art masterpieces for the university.

99 Firms Get Phantom Emergency Orders

The Government is now placing "phantom" orders for 74 million dollars worth of cutting tools with 99 firms so the concerns will be ready to go into production swiftly in case of emergency, it was announced last night.

The announcement was made by Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman, acting chairman of the National Security Resources Board which is placing the orders.

The board some time ago placed similar "phantom" orders for 100,000 standard machine tools.

Hizi Koyke Stands Out As Butterfly

By Paul Hume

Fortune Gallo's San Carlo Opera Company opened a 10-night stand at the Watergate last night.

Hizi Koyke was the star of the evening in Puccini's "Madam Butterfly." For years the little soprano's portrayal of the tragic heroine has been one of the finest delineations on our operatic stages.

It has become even more refined, with greater dramatic inflection, achieving a poignancy that moves every beholder.

Her voice is heavier than in past years. The first act is vocally difficult for Koyke, but as the opera moved into the final acts, she warmed wonderfully to her task. Her death scene was shattering in its real, though economical handling.

No other soprano today is so able to handle the staging of this part. A special word of praise is due to the star for her off-stage high B in the final act.

Orchestra Inadequate

Mario Palermo was a sound Pinkerton and Stefano Ballarini a reasonable American consul. He makes the part less wooden than many actors. Lorraine Calcagno may have the voice for Suzuki, but she obscures it effectively with a vibrato a yard wide. Her stage business is silly next to the art of Koyke.

The orchestra is entirely inadequate for Puccini and will be more so in its heavier assignments of Verdi and Bizet. Can something be done about adding a few more strings? The quality of the playing is poor enough for lack of rehearsal.

The job of amplifying both singers and orchestra was smoothed out between the first and second acts, so that the terrific volume of early scenes was not inflicted on subsequent acts.

Company an Oasis

The scenery suggests that attempts are being made to give an effect of locale. The lighting at the close of act one was mishandled but improved thereafter. A curtain has been arranged which gives a welcome appearance to the barge before and between the acts.

In opera-less Washington it is good to hear the San Carlans again. Their chorus is old and tired in sound, their repertoire the standard works. But for those who miss opera in any form, they are an oasis. Butterfly was an acceptable opening with the prospect of future improvement.

Spotsylvania Clerk Charged in Poll Tax Fraud

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 4 (AP).—W. Cary Crismond, 45, clerk of Spotsylvania County Circuit Court, today was charged with fraudulently seeking to validate his sister's mail ballot in Tuesday's primary election.

A warrant sworn out by Commonwealth's Attorney T. Stokely Coleman charged Crismond altered the name on a 1947 poll tax receipt in an effort to validate a mail ballot submitted by Crismond's sister, Mrs. Ruth C. Johnson, West Point, Va.

Crismond posted cash bond of $1000 pending a preliminary hearing before Trial Justice A. Nelson Waller on August 26.

Report of CIA Blames Spark In Fatal Fire

A flash fire in a Rosslyn motor pool garage, in which one man died and another was severely burned July 25, probably was caused by a spark from an electric blower that ignited a puddle of gasoline.

Cause of the fire in a Central Intelligence Agency building was listed in an official report on the accident received yesterday by Arlington Police and Fire Department officials from the CIA.

The county officials last week said they were denied information on the accident when it occurred.

The fire caused the death of James Daly, 41, of 5718 Euclid ave., Cheverly, Md. His brother, Vincent, is in "fair" condition at Providence Hospital with third-degree burns of the upper body. Both were employed in the CIA garage.

An Arlington Rescue Squad ambulance gave the men emergency treatment before they were taken to Washington hospitals by District ambulances, the CIA report said.

Woman Again Denied Bail in Mate's Death

A second request to have bond set for Mrs. Ruth Maxwell, who is charged with murdering her soldier husband in Alexandria Saturday night, was denied yesterday in Alexandria Corporation Court.

Judge William P. Woolls told defense attorney Walter J. Young, however, that he would consider the application further Monday if Young could find more authority for his request.

Mrs. Maxwell, 28, was ordered held without bond for the grand jury by Police Court Judge James R. Duncan Monday on the recommendation of Commonwealth's Attorney Howard W. Smith, jr.

She is accused of killing Corp. Gardner Maxwell, 30, of Fort Belvoir, by cutting his neck with a milk bottle. The killing reportedly occurred on the front steps of their boarding house at 732 N. Washington st. during a late evening argument. She has claimed self-defense.

Judge Woolls also denied a request that Mrs. Maxwell be allowed to attend her husband's funeral yesterday at Arlington Cemetery.

Lovelies Tonight Face Beauty Test

Three additional finalists in the Miss Washington beauty-talent contest will be selected tonight from nine competing lovelies at the Apex Theater, 4813 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Winners in tonight's competition will vie with six other girls selected in previous competitions, Monday at the Capitol Theater.

Cabbie Hands Gun to Police Minutes After Wife Is Shot

Golding Vaughan, 39, of 417 12th st. se., a cab driver accused of shooting Lucille Butler, 27, his common-law wife, yesterday calmly surrendered a shotgun when cornered by police 10 minutes after the shooting.

Vaughan was arrested in his taxi on 4th st. nw. when he halted for a stop sign at New York ave.

Alerted by a broadcast lookout, ". . . driving silver-topped cab No. 1, subject has a shotgun in the cab with him . . . " Police Pvts. Elroy A. Short and Albert Devine of No. 13 Precinct station spotted the glint of Vaughan's taxi from their cruiser. This was at 10:30 a. m.

The policemen drew their pistols as they turned east off New York ave., blocking the cab.

As they approached, Vaughan handed two 12-gauge shotgun shells to the officers. Vaughan then took the shotgun from the trunk compartment and handed it over.

He was booked at No. 5 Precinct station on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon. He was accused of shooting the Butler woman in the stomach after an argument. She was reported in critical condition at Casualty Hospital.

According to police, the argument started when Vaughan pulled a phone from his wife's hands under the impression she was calling another man. The call actually had been to her mother, police said.

House Passes 8 D. C. Bills; 2 on Insurance

Two bills to revise local insurance laws here were among eight District measures approved by the House late yesterday.

One insurance bill would set up new standards for industrial life insurance policies for increased protection to policy holders. The second would revise the group insurance law, primarily to permit coverage for groups smaller than now allowed by permitting insurance to be written for a number of groups through a trustee.

The other bills would:

1. Remove the District residence requirement for members of the District Commission on Mental Health.

2. Authorize a portion of the recent $330 retroactive municipal pay raise to be paid to retired police and firemen without their making application for it. Existing law gives them the money, but they have to apply for it.

3. Provide statutory authority for requiring residents of the District Home for the Aged and Infirm to pay for their care if they or their relatives are financially able to do so.

4. Authorize District contracting officers to make contracts up to $3000 without prior approval by the Commissioners. The limit is now $1000. House approval sent the contract bill to the White House, all the other bills were forwarded to the Senate.

5. Provide a chiropractor's license for Abraham J. Ehrlich.

Unincorporated Business Permit Deadline Sept. 1

Owners of local unincorporated businesses whose gross receipts exceeded $5000 last year must file for a license before September 1, District tax officials warned yesterday.

C. A. Beard, jr., administrator of the Income and Franchise Tax Division, said very few applications have been received to date. He pointed out that penalties for engaging in business here without a license can run as high as $300 a day.

Prior to the new District revenue act only unincorporated businesses grossing more than $10,000 were required to file for licenses. Application forms are available in Room 9 at the District Building.

Army Band at Capitol

Robert Nicholson, baritone, will be featured soloist at tonight's regular Capitol Concert by the U. S. Army Band on the east plaza of the Capitol. Sgt. Keig Garvin, trombonist, as well as the U. S. Army Band dance orchestra will also highlight the program. Capt. Hugh Curry will direct.

Peoples Drug Managers to Aid Chest Campaign

A staff of 60 members of Peoples Drug Co. stores in the Greater Washington area enlisted yesterday to represent the 1950 Community Chest campaign in their store neighborhoods.

This was announced yesterday by Aaron Goldman, chairman of Business II unit of the campaign organization.

Goldman wrote to George B. Burns, executive vice president of the drug concern, that he is "immensely gratified that your store managers have agreed to act as workers. It has given all of us a lift to know that your organization is so deeply interested in the success of the campaign."

Swimmers From D. C. Win at Camp Letts

The swimming squad was the only team from the Washington Boys YMCA able to defeat athletes at the Y's Camp Letts, but some 55 city-bound boys had a good time yesterday anyway.

These lads spent the day away from the District at the Y area playing, sailing, swimming and general relaxing. MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Married Two Years, Happily Thus Far, Wife Is Disturbed by Husband's Insistent Claim That Marriages Turn Sour After Five Years

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband has a mixed-up idea about marriage and his viewpoint is becoming embedded in my mind, too, even though I don't subscribe to it. We both would appreciate your authoritative opinion to settle the argument.

A few couples we know, who have been married about five years, seem to be very cold to each other. They speak sarcastically to each other and are quite critical of each other's views when conversing with friends. In fact, they don't act a bit like married adults really in love.

Why does this happen after five years of marriage? Bert's view is that it is typical married behavior after a few years. He says it is only human for two people living together to act that way after a time. He says "A man gets tired of a woman, day in and day out, after five years and is apt to be impolite."

Man Says His Wife Cannot Face Facts

WE HAVE been married two years, and quite happily so far; but after such remarks I feel it's just a matter of waiting for my five years to be up, when he will start being inconsiderate of me. When I try to draw him out on the subject he just ends the discussion by saying that I cannot face a fact.

More recently he keeps laboring the idea in conversation with our engaged friends, and it hurts me to hear him talk in that vein. Also I think it hurts the girl who is getting married. Incidentally Bert is an orphan and we both belong to a hard-working class of people and know the value of money. All our friends are like ourselves; none are the ritzy type. Please give us the benefit of your thoughts on the subject outlined. G. B.

Ounce of Truth in Bushel of Ignorance

DEAR G. B.: Right you are—Bert is airing a "mixed-up" idea that nobody should swallow whole. There is an ounce of truth and a bushel of ignorance in his contentious viewpoint.

In my opinion Bert has got wind of the old social axiom which says that marriage gets down to earth about the fifth year—either with a crash or a contented sigh, as the case may be. And he is setting himself up as a prophet on the basis of this scrap of folklore. But what he, in his ignorance, fails to grasp is that one doesn't have to be madly in love to have good manners, or to deal considerately with spouse or business partner.

For the most part in modern life, people marry in a great dither of sex infatuation and romantic tension, in a state of emotional intoxication and hunger that fogs their mind in mutual dealing. And it is this high fever that passes away as the years wheel by, leaving the married pair without "wondrous" illusions about each other; but it doesn't follow necessarily that embittered crossfire then flares up.

Rational Devotion Beats Infatuation

THAT only happens if they haven't basic good character, good sense and kindliness of attitude. In the event they are average-decent in these respects, sturdily willing to do right by each other and thus make the best of their common lot, they then begin to grow in bonafide companionship; and in five more years they will have achieved a real sanctuary against storms that blow.

For both man and wife there is more satisfaction, more security and in fact more freedom of soul in a "down to earth" marriage sustained by bone-bred manners, conscientious consideration and true-blue loyalty, than in the "romantic" kind where selfish infatuation is the principal adhesive factor.

In all probability your longer-married friends who wrangle rudely have drifted into the habit due (1) to taking the other's allegiance for granted, while (2) relying on sex relations to heal wounds verbally inflicted. But this is dangerous practice that insidiously destroys regard and degrades all aspects of the union—so my advice to you and Bert is to beware their mistake, beginning now and forevermore. M. H.

About Coffee Pots For Outdoors

We want to purchase a coffee pot for use over an outdoor fireplace. Want kind will hold up best and take the fire and blackening? Would enamel be good? A Reader

Because outdoor cooking utensils are subjected to rough use and because enamel does chip when knocked about, I'd recommend a heavy aluminum coffee pot. A simple Scout trick to make the black soot easier to remove is to cover the outside of the pot with soap. Wet the bar and rub it over the entire surface. This way the soot does not adhere so tightly and can be removed quite readily by scouring with steel wool.

Another way to make it easier to remove the soot is to cover the utensil with the new plastic film which has recently come on the market. The same product can be used instead of fat when frying and can be purchased in household departments.

PETUNIA!

Nary a plumber
I'm able to find
And I'm losing my patience
My temper—my mind!

Tie a string around that faucet, Petunia, so the water will run down it. And put a new washer on your shopping list.

I have a pair of good woolen blankets which need cleaning. Is laundering preferable to keep them in good condition? S. S.

It seems a matter of personal preference which method you use to clean blankets, dry cleaning or laundering. If the bindings on the blanket are rayon satin or taffeta, dry cleaning will be gentler on them and leave them in nearly new condition. Also, dry cleaning a blanket does not change its shape as washing and drying sometimes does.

Those who prefer washing their blankets feel that washing fluffs them and leaves them with a lovely fresh-washed odor. Of course, to have the blanket come out so, it must be washed in lukewarm water with mild soap or detergent for not more than three minutes. To dry, it should be hung over several lines to distribute the weight and avoid pulling out of shape. When thoroughly dry, the bindings should be pressed with a warm iron.

We shall soon have to decide on colors for our new home. We wish walls in living room to be light green as that fits in with our furniture. What color should we have woodwork and ceiling? The same as walls, or white or grey? Can you suggest color scheme for the bedrooms? There is a small hall off which the bedrooms and bath open. What is the best color suggestion for woodwork here? Also a color scheme for the bathroom. We had thought of a light green spiral tile pattern with yellowish dot—and cream or yellow tile walls. Would white or black tile trim be best? What color should the upper part of the bathroom wall be painted? Can you suggest colors for the kitchen which will look well from the dining area? The kitchen faces northwest and has white steel cabinets as well as white stove and refrigerator. We will have to select linoleum also. F. W.

In a small house, spacious and harmonious effects can be achieved by choosing one master color scheme to be used throughout the house. To vary the scheme from room to room use different colors for accent. Working on this idea for the living room you could use green, golden yellow, and warm brown. The ceiling should be white or lighter green than the walls. The woodwork could be white or, to add to the feeling of spaciousness, all of the wood trim in the living room could be painted the same green as the walls. Although gray would be more practical because it is darker than white, in my opinion it would not make as attractive a room as white or green woodwork would.

Carrying your master color sceme into the bedroom, you could use pale yellow walls and spreads, brown rugs, and jade green in one, pale green walls, darker green rugs and white spread and coral accent in another and in the third off-white walls, green spreads and rugs and sunshine yellow accent. In all bedrooms white woodwork would be lovely.

As you have outlined, carry out a yellow and green scheme in the bathroom. You could use either white or black tile trim. The upper part of the walls could be painted the same color as the woodwork in the bath—probably white.

In the kitchen use white woodwork with sunshine yellow. The floor could be green with yellow accent.

Howard Mitchell and Family in Vermont

The National Symphony's conductor, Howard Mitchell, and Mrs. Mitchell, and their four children, have gone to Thompson's Point, Charlotte, Vt., to spend the remainder of the summer. They will return to their home on Fessenden st. the middle of September.

Home Picklers, Markets Are at Their Prime

By Lucia Brown

DO you want to eat your food with relish next winter? Or maybe with homemade pickle?

A glance at any fruit and vegetable stand is a colorful tipoff that the time for making it is here. Tomatoes are ripe, cucumbers are green and the corn is full of kernels. Watermelons with thick, juicy rinds stand in cool rows. Peaches blush by the beautiful basketful. Beets, red and green peppers, pearly white onions, celery, and cabbage—they're all there, just waiting to be packed away with vinegar and spice and everything nice.

Here is a quintet of relish and pickle recipes. The first, for an unusual uncooked pickle, came from an old-fashioned kitchen up in Connecticut. Some of the directions may sound a bit odd, but follow them exactly for best results.

MY MOTHER-IN-LAW'S PICKLE

1 quart cucumbers, cut in small pieces
1 large cauliflower, broken in pieces
2 sweet red peppers, cut small
1 large green pepper, cut small
1 quart onions, sliced
1 quart small white onions, whole
3 large apples, chopped fine
1 cup coarse salt
1 quart white wine vinegar
¼ pound mustard seed
¾ cup flour
¼ cup mustard
1 tablespoon turmeric
8 cups sugar

Place the first seven ingredients (through the apples) in a large kettle. Sprinkle with 1 cup coarse salt and cover with boiling water. Let stand overnight. In the morning, drain off the brine. Add the vinegar and mustard seed and bring to a boil. Make a paste of the flour, mustard, turmeric and sugar. Stir this paste slowly into pickle and mix very thoroughly. Pour pickle mixture and juice into sterilized jars and seal immediately.

THIS watermelon pickle recipe won a prize for a Washingtonian, Mrs. William A. Brown, jr., of 2002 Klingle rd. nw. She submitted it in the recent contest for best relish recipe conducted by Family Circle Magazine and it copped sixth place. A picture of Mrs. Brown, a bride of a little over two years, appears along with her recipe in the August issue of the magazine.

ROSY WATERMELON PICKLE

5 pounds watermelon rind (from ½ large melon)
Salted water (¼ cup salt to 1 quart water)
8 cups sugar
4 cups vinegar
4 cups water
2 sticks cinnamon
2 teaspoons whole cloves
2 teaspoons whole allspice
2 lemons, thinly sliced
Red food coloring

Pare green skin from watermelon rind and remove any pink portion. (This should leave about 4 pounds of prepared rind). Cut into ½-inch cubes. Cover with salted water and soak overnight. Next day, drain, rinse with fresh water and drain again. Cover with fresh water and boil 10 minutes until tender. Drain.

Combine in a kettle the sugar, vinegar, water, lemon, cinnamon and other spices listed above. Boil this syrup for 5 minutes. Add the drained rind and simmer for 1 hour, or until rind is clear. Tint with red pure food coloring. Pack at once into hot sterilized jars and fill with hot syrup. Seal, and store in cool dry place.

SPICED PEACHES

7 pounds (28 medium) peaches
Vinegar-water (3 quarts water, 3 tablespoons vinegar)
2 cups sugar
¾ cup light corn syrup
1 cup white vinegar
1 cup water
½ teaspoon whole ginger
1½ teaspoons whole cloves
1 cinnamon stick, broken

Put peaches into boiling water for 1 to 2 minutes. Remove and plunge into cold water. Skin, halve, and remove stones. Place in vinegar water to prevent browning. Combine remaining ingredients. Heat to boiling. Add peaches. Boil gently for 3 minutes. Fill hot sterilized jars with peaches. Cover with boiling liquid. Fill to 1 inch from top. Seal as directed for type of lid being used. Submerge in boiling water bath. Process for 20 minutes. This recipe makes 7 pints. (Note: One of the cloves may be inserted in each peach half, if desired.)

CORN RELISH

10 to 12 ears (2½ quarts cut) corn
1 cup (2 medium) chopped green peppers
1 cup (2 medium) chopped sweet red peppers
1¼ cups (4 medium) chopped onions
1 cup (½ medium stalk) chopped celery
1½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons prepared yellow mustard
1½ tablespoons mustard seed
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon celery seed
1 quart distilled white vinegar
½ teaspoon turmeric

Boil ears of corn for 5 minutes. Dip in cold water. Cut from cob and measure. Combine all ingredients and boil gently for 20 minutes. Pack while boiling into sterilized jars. Be sure vinegar solution covers all vegetables. Fill jars to not more than 1 inch from top. Seal as directed for boiling water bath for type of lid used. Submerge in boiling water bath and process for 15 minutes. This recipe make 7½ pints.

KANSAS CHUTNEY

1 onion, chopped
13 tart apples
1½ cups seedless raisins
1 tablespoon salt
3 cups vinegar
1½ cups sugar
1½ cups tart grape jelly
Juice of 4 lemons
Grated rind of 1 lemon
½ teaspoon red pepper

Put peppers, onion, apples and raisins through food chopper. Place in large saucepan and add remaining ingredients. Simmer until thick, about an hour. Pour into hot, sterilized jars and seal at once. This recipe makes 4 pints.

CORN OFF THE COB: It makes a wonderful relish when combined with peppers, onions, celery, white vinegar and, of course, the proper seasonings

C IS FOR CHUTNEY, that highly spiced relish or condiment that's so good with curry and many other dishes. Grind raisins, apples, onions and peppers for it through the food chopper

Market Memo

August Pours Out Its Trove Of Fine Fruits, Vegetables

SUMMER RAMBEAU APPLES are just about at their zenith now, with plenty of ripe ones of good quality on sale. This big, pale green apple is fine for eating raw, making pies and sauce, frying—just an all-round apple.

THE PEAK OF THE PEACHES will come early next week, dealers say. Prices are reasonable and varieties grown in Virginia, Maryland and New Jersey are available here.

TOMATOES AND CORN continue to be top vegetable values. Growing conditions this year have been especially favorable for tomatoes. August rates as the month of greatest variety and abundance on vegetable markets in general. Green and lima beans, peppers, carrots, Colorado peas and many other offerings are good buys.

CANTELOUPE from California are plentiful here and of fine quality. Cheaper than these are those from down around Ridgeway, N. C. They aren't as large, but have a nice flavor.

FOR A QUICK MEAL, try those frozen, breaded shrimp. You'll find you can have wonderful French-fried shrimp on the table in a jiffy if you have a package of these "fantails," so-called because the little finny tails are left on for ease in handling and as decoration. They come from the sea islands of Georgia.

Household Suggestions

If care is taken the job of housecleaning can be accomplished without utter ruin of the hands. Before starting to clean moisten some white soap and work it into the pores, around the cuticle and under the fingernails. Then proceed with your work and after it is over you will find all soil will wash off with the soap and the pores will not have taken up the grime. Rubbing hand lotion well into them after each washing will also help to keep the hands soft.

If you have no one who can receive the things at the new residence when moving, it is well to put a card or label on each article telling in which room it is to be placed. It will save time and labor when you get over to the new home.

One of the new dustpans on the market has a rubber edge which enables the pan to lie perfectly flat against the floor and does away with that elusive dirt that always gleefully runs underneath the edge of the pan.

TOBÉ SAYS—

Tent Coat Is Tops

The most dramatic coat fashion in years is the enormously full coat that flares in a wide sweep from a soft narrow shoulder, exactly like a tent.

Gres launched it in Paris last February, and it is now the star of top winter coat collections.

Extreme? Yes—but so comfortable to wear over everything that it's really practical as well. It's smartest in casual fabrics—black tweed, navy chinchilla, the natural fleeces.

Amend Part II, Article XIV, Section 75 (e) TWENTY-MINUTE PARKING METERS, by adding the following: (South E Street) E Street, N.W., north side, between 13½ and 14th Street. J. R. YOUNG, Director. MASON, G. R. YOUNG, Commissioners, D. C.

STATE OF MARYLAND, WATER Pollution Control Commission, 2203 North Charles Street, Baltimore 18, Maryland.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Water Pollution Control Commission, State of Maryland, on May 13, 1949 revision of the following regulation was approved and is now adopted having the full force and effect of law on and after July 1, 1949. This is a revision of our existing regulation which has been in effect since August 1, 1948.

Regulation IV, revised and approved May 13, 1949. Treatment and disposal of Industrial Wastes; No industrial wastes other than acid-mine drainage shall be placed or permitted to be placed or discharged or permitted to flow into any of the waters of the State in any manner by any person unless the industrial waste after treatment or untreated shall meet with the ten industrial waste requirements established by the Water Pollution Control Commission before being discharged into any waters of the State. These ten industrial waste requirements are as follows: (1) Settleable solids, must not exceed 500 p.p.m.; (2) Turbidity, Must transmit 10% of light through 12 inches of sample in a 3-inch column or the equivalent in p.p.m.; (3) Oxygen consumption, must not exceed 50% of normal saturation of dissolved oxygen in the receiving stream; (a) Biochemical Oxygen Demand—Biochemical Oxygen Demand in effluent must not exceed 100 p.p.m.; (4) Toxicity or toxic compounds, eliminate, or reduce to limits of tolerance, substances toxic to humans, livestock, fish, aquatic and wildlife; (5) Color—color intensity regardless of light frequency must not exceed 400 p.p.m. on the chloroplatinate scale; (6) Dissolved solids—must not exceed 1500 p.p.m., with the exception of natural mineral salts; (7) pH, must not range below 5.5 or above 8.5; (8) Temperature, must be below 100° F. in the stream within 50 feet from waste outlet; (9) Floating solids and liquids—solids in the effluent must not exceed 1/32 inch particle size. Oils and grease in the effluent must not exceed 30 p.p.m.; (10) Taste and odor—effluent must not exceed threshold odor number of 1000. Mixture of the waste and receiving waters shall have a threshold odor number not in excess of 80. All analyses to be conducted in accordance with the American Public Health Association Standard Methods. These are maximum values but are not fixed values. They cannot be made more liberal but they can be made more stringent if a survey of the stream indicates that it is polluted or is continuing to be degraded. Any industrial wastes, after treatment or untreated, which do not meet with the above requirements shall be deemed and considerd in violation of this regulation based on laws of Maryland, Chapter 697 of the Acts of the General Assembly of the State of Maryland of 1947, and shall be subject to penalties imposed thereby. Each day upon which a violation occurs under this regulation shall be deemed a separate and additional violation. This revised regulation approved May 13, 1949 supersedes the previous Regulation IV which was effective August 1, 1948. State of Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission: Joseph H. McLaith, Chairman; Paul W. McKee, Executive Secretary. Aug. 5.

BROKERS, ATTENTION

500 acres located in the zone of new So. Capitol St. Bridge about 4 blocks beyond the Dist. line in Md. (this bridge will be finished in about 3 months). Here are some of the increased values that occurred in the Virginia end of those 3 big Virginia bridges. Acreage in the business zone is worth as much as $500.000 an acre. A farmer bought a farm beyond the Memorial Bridge at $3000, is now worth over a million. One of the vice presidents of the Riggs National Bank bought 30 acres for $30.000 and sold it through a condemnation jury for $1,600.000. That will give you an idea what you might expect in the zone of So. Capitol St. Bridge. Hot Shoppe paid $50.000 for an acre right near us lately. Business-zoned property within 2 blocks of our land is being offered at $60.000 an acre. Of these 500 acres, we sold 100 acres to veterans who are going to improve it soon. This property is suitable for apartments, row houses and commercial; $2500 an acre as an entirety which is only about 5½c a sq. ft.; terms 15% cash, balance at 4% interest with release clause. I have been in the land business for 60 years and now in my 83d year I am liquidating my own estate. I am pioneer developer of Chevy Chase, D. C., and six other additions to Washington. Fulton R. The Lyon's Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—The city of Hiroshima will dedicate a world peace center there, on the anniversary of the dropping of the atom bomb. The American Broadcasting Co. is sending Norman Cousins, author of the atom-bomb book, "Modern Man Is Obsolete," to cover the event . . . the board of trustees of the American Medical Association soon will accept the resignation of Dr. Morris Fishbein, who was its spokesman for many years . . . Former Justice Jimmy Byrnes has been attending so many watermelon festivals, bar association meetings and civic celebrations throughout South Carolina that his friends are sure he wants the Governorship.

Despite the published announcements to the contrary, Shirley Mae France will remove her bathing suit, once she starts her Channel swim. Otherwise the shoulder straps would cut into the heavy grease she must use to keep warm.

Ed Small, the film producer who is financing her trip, paid her $5000 in blocked English pounds . . . John Falter, the artist, is in Italy doing a Stromboli cover for the SatEvePost . . . After the press-luncheon and dinner aboard the Ile de France last week, the ash-tray count showed only 50 were taken by souvenir-collectors. The French Line expected to "lose" more than 200.

Benny Fields, the minstrel, went to the race track, where he saw "Square Sam," a member of the Friars Club and inveterate horse-player. Fields saw him standing at the $50 window, greeted him and then asked: "Where is the $2 window?" . . . "The $2 window?" snickered "Square Sam." "Why ask me where the $2 window is? How should I know?" . . . "You just keep on standing here," replied Fields, pointing to the $50 sign, "and you'll find out."

George Burns of Burns & Allen was introduced at the Stork Club to Valentina, the designer. "Of Valentina & who?" Burns demanded. "With me everybody is a double-act" . . . Vincent Sheean has a broken knee-cap, suffered when his car had a brush with an unbending tree . . . Paul Muni, who won rave notices from the British critics when he opened in "Death of a Salesman," used a recording machine to help him memorize his lines. This was a practice he introduced in rehearsing his screen roles. He first records the lines in a monotone, and plays the recording over and over until he's memorized all the words. Then he tries the variations in reading.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

"You Can't Always Talk With Your Folks"

It's rather hard for parents to find their young folks turning to other adults for counsel and advice. In spite of ourselves, we feel that we have failed in some way or other. We may hide our feelings or we may even let the young people know we are hurt.

As a matter of fact, it is natural and good that young people in their teens should find some older friends other than parents in whom they can confide. In even the best of families, as children grow up, they develop ideas and feelings that they are reluctant to discuss with their parents but want to talk over with some understanding person.

If we, as parents, have not taken our youngsters' ideas seriously or have even made fun of them, it is easy to see why they turn to others. But even in families where this hasn't occurred, one finds the same sort of thing. In such cases, it may be that the people fear that they will hurt their parents' feelings if they express ideas that are at odds with ones held by the older members of the family.

In any event, we should be happy that there are grownups—friends or relatives—with whom our growing young people can thrash things out.

Man Found Guilty As Drunk in Beating

Beverly P. Davis, jr., 34, who is waiting grand jury action on a charge of beating his son, yesterday was found guilty of being drunk at the time the alleged beating took place. Municipal Court Judge Frank H. Myers gave him a suspended sentence and placed him on personal bond. He had pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Davis, who is an unemployed laborer, was arrested at his home at 711 Tuckerman st. nw., July 23, after he allegedly beat his son, Robert Lee Davis, 11, with a belt until the boy suffered a mild concussion.

TRY IT — HOLD A NEIGHBORHOOD FLOWER SHOW

During the warm summer days of August the flowers that were patiently planted in the spring and early summer are blossoming in all their glory.

Now is a good time to plan a neighborhood flower show, so get yourself a committee of other interested people and make your show arrangements. Any group can plan a flower show, and the more people who enter into the preparation, the more the responsibilities may be shared.

One group of boys and girls can promote interest by making signs or pulling a wagon decorated with flowers and the date of the show up and down the sidewalks. A committee can make entry blanks and sign up individuals in different classifications. Paper ribbons should be made as awards for the largest blossoms, the smallest one, the tallest flowering plant, the most beautiful bouquet, or any other classes which your committee may plan.

What's the Verdict?

LANDLORD AND TENANT

Q. A merchant occupied a small store under a two-year lease at a monthly rental of $100. After 15 months' occupancy, he moved to a better location, notifying the landlord, and refusing to pay any more rent. The landlord would not accept the surrendered premises, made no attempt to find another tenant, which he could have done, and sues for nine months unpaid rent at the end of the lease. Is he entitled to it?

A. Technically he is entitled to all the unpaid rent for the final nine months, but some courts have ruled that he must use every diligence to find a new tenant and thus to cut down the damages. These courts allow him to recover only for the difference between what another tenant would have paid and what the merchant agreed to pay. The better decisions, however, seem to be those which permit the landlord to recover for all the unpaid rent. The tenant having broken the lease, it ought to be his duty to find another tenant suitable to the landlord, rather than that the landlord be put to that trouble. F. L. D.

Cases discussed illustrate general principles. They should not be construed as legal advice in particular cases. Take your legal problems to your lawyer.

His Students Must Have Been 'Well Red'

J. Ashby Mason of 1761 Shepherd st. nw. says one of our afternoon contemporaries appears to have run out of commas at a most inopportune moment. As a result, a recent news item contained the sentence:

"The witness was Dr. Herbert J. Phillips, who was fired last January from the University of Washington where he had taught philosophy for 26 years because of his Communist connections."

DOLE-FUL TALE

Our story about the Congressman who mistook denture powder for talcum powder, and then couldn't remove his shirt, has a sequel.

Doris Johnson, hostess on a TWA flight between Washington and Rome, was asked for a shaving kit by one of her passengers. Doris gave him the kit and a water jug, and he retired to the lavatory.

Pretty soon the passenger

Doris scanned the shaving utensils, found them in order. But, testing the contents of the "water" jug, she discovered what had happened.

CRISIS AVERTED

Bryson Rash, WMAL's presidential announcer, served as a judge at the recent Alexandria Kiwanis pet show.

Just as a large white duck paraded past Bryson, it stopped and laid an egg.

Rash says that there is no truth to the report that the duck thereupon whispered to him: "See! You radio guys ain't the only ones who can do this."

Fortunately, no broadcast was in progress at the time, or the duck might have been forced to join the comedians' union.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Well-trained, gentle black male dog, part Scottie; loves children." (Glebe 2812.)

"Small silver-gray female cat with quite a history." (North 4935, extension 406.)

"Male and female 10-week-old kittens." (Taylor 0514.)

"Cute 8-week-old kittens, three males and one female." (Chestnut 3360.)

THE GENTLER SEX

Mulling over the case of the Chicago woman who shot her former husband for calling her a "bleached blonde," Jean Broulik of 3850 39th st. nw. suggests:

Yea, Hell hath no fury,
The wise men all preach,
Like blondes we accuse of Resorting to bleach.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

You say that "a man has certain defenses against the heat." I'm intrigued.

Inasmuch as you men wear all that silly clothing, I'd like to know: What defenses?

Viette Sandbank,
2923 S. Columbus st.,
Arlington, Va.

Dear Viette:

We look at you uninhibited females, and either

1. Feel a vicarious coolness come over us, or
2. Promptly forget about the heat.

Bill.

CONCRETE EXAMPLE OF THE USE OF A PUN

A fellow's best friend is his mother all right—but at times even mother can't resist the urge to lower the boom on her son with a devastating pun.

Bolton M. House of 4500 Edmunds st. nw. got home quite late the other night, after attending a union meeting with a friend.

When his mother asked where he'd been so late, Bolton replied, "At the Cement Workers' meeting."

"Ah," quipped Mom, "no wonder you look like you're plastered."

Incidentally, Nate Leiderman of 1508 41st st. se. had a hard time keeping pace with the conflicting stories which said that there would (and would not) be a strike by the union.

"It just goes to show you," muses Nate, "that this cement union can't be taken for granite."

Tammany Hall Picks Wagner as Candidate

New York, Aug. 4 (U.P.).—Robert Wagner, jr., was named the Democratic candidate for borough president of Manhattan today.

The son of former U. S. Senator Robert Wagner got the unanimous designation from Tammany Hall to run for the post now held by Hugo Rogers, for many years a Tammany leader.

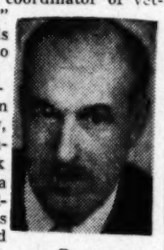
Wagner's designation was another victory for Mayor William O'Dwyer who had forced Rogers to resign as head of Tammany.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Vaughan Helped Tanforan Track

By Drew Pearson

Gen. Harry Vaughan, the President's jovial, back-slapping, poker-playing military aide, holds the official title of "coordinator of veterans' affairs."



Pearson

As such he is supposed to help veterans.

But yesterday this column showed how, when the Tanforan racetrack in California violated building regulations aimed to speed veterans' housing, General Vaughan used his influence not to help the veterans, but to help the racetrack. His known influence was brought to bear in the fall of 1947.

Here is what happened. After Guy Standifer and other Tanforan officials were jailed in California for violating housing regulations, Eugene Mori, new president of the racte track, called on the office of the housing expediter in Washington in October, 1947.

With him came the fabulous Greek friend of General Vaughan's, John Maragon, who had accompanied President Truman to Potsdam, caused the demotion of an Air Force general, once held a White House pass and a special White House parking reservation.

Mori and Maragon informed the housing expediter's office that the Tanforan track was now under new ownership, though how they offered any proof remains a mystery, since the wartime owner, Joe Reinfeld, never was known to the public. Reinfeld, one of the biggest rum-runners of prohibition days, was the chief secret owner.

It was at about this point that General Vaughan first intervened. Apparently he didn't like the way the housing expediter treated his bosom pal, Maragon, for he complained about it to his other pal, Lobbyist James Hunt, and a few days later Hunt showed up at the housing expediter's office alone.

Hunt told housing officials that his friends from the Tanforan track hadn't been treated courteously. He also warned that Housing Chief Frank Creedon could not afford to get in wrong with his "friends," though he did not identify who those friends were.

Housing officials blew up, said there had been no lack of courtesy and did not change the injunction which banned the use of building materials by Tanforan.

The lobbying talks dragged on. Hunt and Maragon vied with each other to see who could do the most for Tanforan.

After more than a month of this, General Vaughan apparently concluded that his boy friends weren't equal to the job. So he telephoned Housing Expediter Tighe Woods himself and asked for an appointment. Later that afternoon, Vaughan appeared in Woods' office, explained that he was personally interested in Tanforan, argued that the track's ownership had changed, and that the Government's policy was to grant building permits to clean up fire hazards.

Tighe Woods had then been in office only six days, and the influence of the White House was potent.

He sent a memo to the Justice Department stating that the injunction against Tanforan could be lifted. Simultaneously, Tanforan submitted notices from the obliging City of San Bruno claiming that the race track was a fire and health hazard unless cleaned up.

So, at long last, the ban on Tanforan was lifted—chiefly on General Vaughan's plea that its ownership had changed.

As of this week, however, Justice Department officials, when queried, said they had no evidence that the ownership of the race track had really changed.

Therefore, it may still be that Joe Reinfeld, who once ran the biggest fleet of rum boats off the Jersey coast and who was once indicted for the murder of a prohibition agent, is still the real owner of Tanforan and the man who really profited from General Vaughan's lobbying against the veterans.

It is true that track president Guy Standifer was out, having gone to jail; and that Eugene Mori was the new president. But, according to a Federal Court deposition published by the Newark Star-Ledger on January 15, 1949, Reinfeld was the chief owner of the track.

It now looks as if John Maragon was in serious trouble over both his income tax and perjury. Senate investigators have now established the fact that the lobbyist who long had the inside run of the White House maintained a secret bank account in the National Bank of Commerce in San Antonio in 1945 and 1946. Approximately $40,000 was deposited there.

Despite this, Maragon informed the Senate investigating committee that he had only a small income in 1945, '46 and '47 and he failed to reveal his San Antonio bank account. All this was sworn to under oath.
